SHOWING OFF A CITY

It has been customary in past years, if you visited some unfamiliar city and asked to be shown about, for your friends to take you thru the handsome resident sections, and show you the fine schools, city hall, library, etc., and other manifestations of wealth and civic spirit.

This is all very well, yet it does not tell the whole story of the development of a community. The finest form of advance, is what a city has been able to do for its working people, the mass of toilers who are trying to subsist and educate their families on meagre means.

The student of social advance of the future will do something more than look at handsome public buildings and homes of the wealthy and cultured. He will want to see the homes of the workers, and if there are any slums, to inspect them. If he finds tumble down tenements and forbidding looking quarters of the working people, all kept in a state of disorder, he will conclude that the advance of that community has been superficial. The shabby public buildings and the tasteful homes seem built on a false foundation.

But if he goes around among the modest dwellings of the working population, and finds the spirit of improvement, if he sees mechanics cultivating their gardens and women raising flowers, people painting houses and straightening up fences and cleaning out rubbish and planting trees, then he is going to say, "This is a fine and progressive city."

The public buildings may not be quite so scrumptious, there may not be many castles and palaces for the rich. But if the spirit of improvement has taken hold of the mass of the people, if the owners of property have gained a feeling that they are responsible for the neatness and attractiveness of the same, that town is at the top of the civic procession.

THE RAILROAD STRIKE BALLOT

The country is anxious to see full justice done the railroad workers, but it watches with some anxiety to see how they vote as to the question of a strike on the wage decision of the Railroad Labor Board.

The railroad men are probably earning at this time from 50 to 100 per cent more than the average farm laborer. They have regular employment, an advantage not shared by most classes of labor.

Furthermore, unless there is an universal suffering and a complete prostration of industry, the warring elements of labor and capital must submit to peaceful arbitration constituted by the authorities. The labor board fixed a scale of wages that many people feel is very liberal to labor, reducing their wages less than the drop in the cost of living. There will be a widespread feeling that those who decline to accept this award, should have a permanent vacation, or go into some industry where stoppage would not create such suffering. The country will not tolerate having its most vital industry tied up as the refusal of either party to accept fair arbitration.

DEMPEY WILLARD FIGHT IS PLANNED

Tex Rickard is evidently bent on bringing Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard together again. The promoter has had conferences with Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, during the past week and is reported to be settling all of the preliminary details. If arranged the bout is to be staged in Jersey City July 3. Besides demanding huge purse, Kearns insists that Willard be forced to whip some heavyweight before he tackles Dempsey.

Newton York, Charles Westbay, Lloyd Weaver Rex Berkshire and Howard Kirkpatrick made a tour through Indiana and Ohio last Sunday. They saw considerable fine land splendid crops of corn and alfalfa. Mr. Berkshire was very much impressed with Indiana, her good people and methods of farming and it could not be surprising that he does pitch his tent in that State in years.

PROPER GRADING WILL BRING TOP TOBACCO PRICES

Kentucky farmers can do much to obtain better prices for their tobacco by careful attention to the stripping and grading of their crops, tobacco specialists who have made a study of the various markets say. Many growers who have practiced careful grading have realized as much as two and one-half cents above the season's average price while conditions in the tobacco growing sections of the State indicate that this practice could be followed profitably by growers. Speculators also have demonstrated the increased profits to be gained by grading, many of them having realized substantial gains by buying poorly-graded leaf and reselling it after it had been properly sorted.

Grading will not improve the quality of leaf as has to sell but it will enable the farmer to make the most of what he has whereas indifferent or no grading at all reduces the price received on the entire lot. This is true since buyers are compelled to bid low enough to insure themselves against the risk of buying a low quality or worthless product. In buying any product the buyer prefers well-graded lots rather than those which are mixed. This is especially true in tobacco, the specialists say.

While variations in different stalks of tobacco make exact grading somewhat difficult they by no means make it impossible, nor do they lessen the possibility of grading as strictly as possible. The mixing of inferior and superior grades, the inclusion of green, damaged or sucker leaves and bits of stalk all tend to reduce the price which the grower receives for his crop, according to tobacco specialists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

This that is true is shown by investigations conducted on different markets by station specialists. Bidding fell off or ceased entirely when the basket was found to be greatly mixed or to contain too much inferior leaf. Green, spotted, damp and dirty tobacco is especially avoided by buyers. The investigations have shown that the crops which bring the highest price are usually those which have not only been well grown and cured but also strictly graded. Investigations being carried on at the present time by the Section of Markets of the station in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture are expected to bring out information which will furnish a basis for the formulation of suitable and well-defined grades for the various types of tobacco grown in the State.

KENTUCKY WELL SUITED TO PRODUCTION OF PORK

Because of its particular climatic conditions and the feeds which it is capable of producing Kentucky is especially adapted to the production of pork, according to the third edition of Bulletin No. 175 which has just been revised by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for distribution to farmers and other interested persons of the State. The circular discusses in full the growing and fattening of hogs in the dry lot and on forage crops and gives the results of experiments which have been conducted by the Kentucky station in these two projects.

A number of different experiments conducted for the purpose of comparing different methods of feeding and management are reported in the publication in connection with dry lot feeding of hogs. The first experiment reported was conducted to compare the efficiency of corn alone and corn supplemented by feeds containing more protein and ash. Of the four rations used corn alone was found to be the least economical for pork production. Other experiments reported are those showing that so-called "runts" may be economically fattened for the market, those showing that ground wheat fed to pigs produced more pork than did corn alone and those showing that hogs which have reached a sufficient size may be finished for the market on corn alone.

To make the production of pork most economical the animals should be provided with pasture whenever possible, the bulletin states. Included among the reported experiments in this division were those showing that young pigs should never be run on pasture without grain, one showing that winter feeding of hogs for the market can be made profitable in the State, another pointing out the advantages of different kinds of pastures and those which were conducted to determine the rapidity and economy of gains supplementing corn meal and ryegrass pasture with different grains.

The circular which was written by Prof. E. S. Good, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, is well illustrated to show the most striking points of the various experiments. It may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

The pocketbook that was advertised in last week's RECORDER belonged to Miss Lizzie Pope, of near Grant. She called in last Monday and received same.

KENTUCKY PASTURES ARE NOT PRODUCING FULL QUOTA OF FEED

Each Acre Could Carry More Live-Stock If Given Good Fall And Winter Care, Specialists Say.

Much of Kentucky's pasture land is not producing its full capacity of feed as shown by the fact that at the present time the State has one hog to each four acres, one cow for each ten acres and one sheep for each 13 acres, according to estimates made by specialists at the College of Agriculture. There are a little less than 5,000,000 acres of pasture land in the State, this amount including all forms of pasture from blue grass to the poorest growth of weeds and wild grasses. The low average carrying capacity of this land could be increased materially by giving the pastures more careful attention through the fall and winter, according to R. E. Stephenson, soil specialist at the college.

"Most pastures can be improved by good treatment," said Dr. Stephenson. "Good bluegrass will produce more feed if the weeds are mowed off once or twice each year. Some Japan clover which comes on in dry weather when bluegrass produces little feed will be found helpful. In many sections of the State this clover has come on without seeding."

"The poorest pastures are badly in need of reseeding and fertilizing. If level enough to cultivate a tilled crop may be grown and many of the weeds destroyed by cultivation. Acid phosphate should be applied in the fall at the rate of 200 pounds or more an acre. Following this ryegrass should be sown as a nurse crop and then a grass mixture seeded in February. If the field can be treated with limestone sweet clover should be included in the grass mixture. Otherwise alfalfa and clover are probably the only clovers that would be successful. Orchard grass, timothy, red top and blue grass makes a good mixture to sow."

"When pastures cannot be plowed they should be reseeded without tillage in February when the ground is frozen. A liberal use of seed will help toward thickening the grass stand if the weeds are kept clipped and farmers refrain from pasturing too closely."

"The use of phosphate on pasture land pays when the fertilizer can be worked into the soil but its value as a top dressing is questionable on hill land where it would be difficult to hold until the grass could make use of it."

1921 WORLD'S SERIES BEGINS OCTOBER 15

The world's series of 1921 will open on the Polo Grounds in New York Oct. 5. Two games will be played to a decision at the National American league grounds in case Cleveland wins in the American league. If both New York teams are winners, all games will be played on the Polo Grounds. The schedule: Oct. 5th and 6th, National League grounds; Oct. 7 and 8, American league grounds; Oct. 9 and 10, National league; Oct. 11 and 12, American league.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, (colored) entertained, Saturday and Sunday, Mrs. Samuel Moore, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Covington, Ky.

Pumpkin pies will be plentiful this fall and winter as there is a bountiful crop of pumpkins.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

Deputy little Elaine Evans head the cast of Twin Beds, which comes to Cincinnati, for its annual engagement week of Oct. 2. Many of the old favorites in the cast will also appear. It is expected that the usual crowded houses will be the rule during the week's stay. A liberal scale of prices has been adopted.

Last Wednesday evening about 7 p. m., Sheriff Conner was called by phone to Florence where he found Ella Pierce wandering alone from home for several hours and did not know where she was going. Mr. Conner soon identified the unfortunate woman and took her to her home near Gunpowder store.

E. M. Prewitt of the State College, with Farm Agent Sutton, organized a half month testing club in connection with Campbell county, last week. A number of cows have been entered in this contest and the number of pounds of milk given by each cow will be weighed and tested and reports published of the result.

Mr. G. E. Riggs, one of the county's hustling young farmers, of Ft. Pleasant neighborhood, who is acting business at the county seat, last Saturday morning, and made this office a pleasant call. He gave us $1.50 and had his name enrolled as a reader of the RECORDER.

The Ladies Aid Society of Burlington Baptist church had an all day meeting with Mrs. Annie L. Gaines at her home last Thursday on the Petersburg pike. A bountiful dinner was served at the noon hour which had been prepared by the ladies of the society.

Should you happen to visit Cincinnati during the week of Oct. 2, remember that the great laugh-maker, Twin Beds is the attraction at the Grand Opera House. It is a prime favorite with theatre-goers, the country over, and Cincinnati in particular.

Mayors, bankers, lawyers, prominent government, state and county officials, prominent business and professional men and Ministers of the Gospel have endorsed Tanlac. W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

R. E. Stephens, soil expert of the State College, spent several days last week with Farm Agent Sutton in Boone county checking up yields on experimental lots in different parts of the county.

The basket ball season opened on the High School grounds last Friday afternoon. The boys team defeated Petersburg 34 to 7 and the Petersburg girls defeated the Burlington girls 24 to 4.

The people who couldn't pay their bills last July because they were just going on their vacations, are unable now because they have been away and spent all their money.

The ringing of bells is supposed to express the joy of the people but so far none of the kids have showed any signs of jubilation when the school bells ring.

W. B. Johnson, of Walton, was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday. Mr. Johnson is one of Walton's progressive real estate agents.

"When the swallows homeward fly" was a favorite old song, but what some people want to sing is, When the swallows downward fly.

Mr. H. G. Clutterbuck who conducted a store in Burlington several years ago, is now in business at 27 East Court St., Cincinnati.

S. E. Ryle, breeder of the Jersey cattle, of Waterloo neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday.

HOME TOWN PAPER WEEK

It is very rare that the average newspaper boosts its own business, but gives quantities of space in boosting the affairs of others.

Somebody suggested that it was time for the newspapers of the county to adopt a week in which their own business should be given prominent and the RECORDER thoroughly endorses the idea.

The date set is the second week in November, from the 7th to the 12th, including that great world event, Armistice Day.

The official title for the week will be "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week."

Thousands of papers will join in this event, and our readers will hear more about it as time goes on.

Ever ready to help in a cause that is in the interests of a better community, better living conditions, and better government, we now ask the readers and advertisers of the RECORDER to turn in and lend a hand during "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week" and boost for us.

NOTICE—Those who desire to have their names on the ballots as directors of the Farmers Mutual Insurance Co., at the election to be held on the 3rd of October, 1921, will please notify the undersigned at once.

R. B. HUEY, Secretary.

The prevalence and dangers of diphtheria in Kentucky are emphasized in a bulletin issued by Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer. The bulletin was issued at this time, according to Dr. McCormack, because the first epidemic of the year already has commenced its ravages in Menifee county.

"There are certain facts," Dr. McCormack said, "which parents should recall now that diphtheria has appeared for the first time this season in epidemic form in Kentucky. One half of the deaths from the disease, to which children particularly are subject, occur every year within three months after the disease has been acquired. These deaths are absolutely needless. If, after the disease has been acquired, an antitoxin is administered to the child suffering within the first three days of the disease's course, the sufferer's life will be saved every time. The thing for parents to do is to send each child which has a sore throat to a doctor immediately and, where he has had the disease, not to permit him to return to school until he is shown by a laboratory analysis to be completely cured."

"Last year for the first time since vital statistics in Kentucky have been kept the death rate from diphtheria increased. This did not alarm us especially as the increase in this State conformed to an increase all over the United States, but the State Board of Health is anxious to keep the disease well in hand this year." Dr. C. H. Voorhies of Lexington has been sent by the State board to Menifee county to fight diphtheria there. Three deaths already have been reported and there are approximately thirty cases of the disease in the county.

MANY FARMERS SEE BEST FARM METHODS

Approximately 75,000 farmers as well as a large number of interested city persons saw the best methods in a number of farm practices by visiting the College of Agriculture exhibit at the Kentucky State Fair, according to reports made by those in charge of the display. Other features conducted by the college which contributed toward the success of the fair were the junior livestock judging contest and the girls' demonstration team contest, both held for the first time, the poultry standardization exhibit and the exhibits made by the boys and girls in the various livestock classes.

The Boone county team composed of Robert Clore, Franklin Huey and Marvin Kendall and coached by County Agent W. D. Sutton took first place in the junior judging contest in which 26 county teams competed. Roy O'Neil, Carroll county, Robert Clore and James Weller, Mercer county, the three highest scoring boys out of the 78 in the contest will compose the Ky. junior livestock judging team.

First honors in the girls' demonstration team contest went to Simpson county which was represented by a team composed of Gladys Halburton, Ida Lewis and Evelyn Cummings. The team demonstrated canning and was coached by Miss Maude Meguiar, home demonstration agent.

POULTRY PROFITS REQUIRE GOOD MANAGEMENT OF FLOCK

Under present conditions with indications pointing toward over-production of poultry products the most certain means of insuring profit from the farm flock is to adopt the most efficient methods of management, poultrymen say. One step toward greater efficiency in the producing flock which can be taken by every poultry raiser is to cull the pullets and remove those that show by their physical characteristics that they are not capable of sustained high egg production, according to J. H. Martin, in charge of the College of Agriculture poultry work.

A study of the head of each bird is an important part of the culling operation with pullets, Mr. Martin said. The ideal pullet head should be short and broad with a short, well curved beak, a bright prominent eye and plenty of depth of skull above the eye. At the same time the head should be trim and neat and show no signs of beefiness or masculinity. Since early maturity in pullets is one indication of their laying tendencies, the birds that show early reddening of the comb be favored in the culling while those that have dull heads after a majority of the birds of the same age have started laying usually should be discarded. In body types the pullets that will make heavy layers will have well-sprung ribs and a back that is straight and broad. They will carry their weight well out in the rump instead of being wedge-shaped back of the hips. The back of the promising pullet will have the same characteristics desired in the fine beef steer, that is, broad and flat on top with deep sides giving the bird a somewhat rectangular shape.

Any pullets that show long narrow heads, commonly known as "crow-headedness," that are late maturing, have poor chest development and pinch back or that lack depth of body measured by the distance from the end of the keel bone to the top of the backbone should be discarded in the fall, the poultrymen say.

Men-- this is the right idea about Fall Clothes

TWO PANTS SUITS

$20 $25 $30

You'll profit immensely by this idea. There is as much style as the most fastidious dressers demand and more service than you'd get with a suit that has but one pair of trousers. Verily it means two suits at the price of one, for there is extra wear in every pair. See these all-wool two-trousers fall suits when in town--they average 100 per cent. from any angle--quality, style or price.

These two-trousers suits are less costly than many with but one pair, yet the fabrics are the same. For instance, we're showing the ultra-fashionable pencil stripes, overlaid and plain checks, soft-toned color effects, in excellent weaves and patterns. Models are singles and double-breasted, built along smart lines, and, what is most important, built to stay that way. When you see the clothes and prices together you'll marvel. As values go, they are beyond comparison. There are many on display in our show windows--more in our immense clothing department inside. Sizes from 31 to 44 chest measurement.

FEDERAL BANK TO AID BURLEY MEN

Reserve System to Honor Association To Be Used For Farming.

Washington — Further assurance of Federal assistance for burley tobacco growers, through organization, was given today when the Federal Reserve Board issued a ruling that growers' drafts on the association, accompanied by weight tickets, will be eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve Banks as agricultural paper, and entitled to six months' credit provided the growers sue the proceeds of the drafts for agricultural purposes.

This action, it is said, will relieve the tobacco farmers of the only possible difficulty in financing their product through the cooperative association now being formed.

At a conference here last week six representatives of the Preliminary Committee of the Burley Growers' Cooperative Association, urged that such a ruling be issued. Those who attended this conference were: Judge Robert W. Bingham, Louisville chairman; James C. Stone, Lexington, vice chairman; Charles N. Manning, Lexington; William E. Simms, Spring Station; W. Z. Montgomers, Elizabethtown; and James C. Wilson, Louisville.

Following this conference, members of the committee said, that while it is by no means necessary for the association to have the drafts classified as agricultural paper, such a decision would be very helpful in completing its financial arrangements.

W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, today sent a letter to Judge Bingham, advising him of the issuance of the required ruling.

This letter, in part, follows:

"The Federal Reserve Board has considered the question upon which it was recently asked to rule by a number of gentlemen representing the Organization Committee of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association. This question is whether certain drafts drawn upon and accepted by the association in accordance with the plan now contemplated should be classed as agricultural paper, eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve Banks, with a maturity up to six months or should be classed as commercial paper, eligible for rediscount only, when its maturity is not in excess of ninety days.

"The Federal reserve board ruled some time ago that drafts drawn upon and accepted by co-operative marketing associations in transactions similar to those contemplated between the growers and the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Marketing Association in the instant case were not trade acceptances within the meaning of the board's regulations, for the reason that looking through the form of these transactions and at the substance thereof, the growers represented advancements made by the associations to the growers rather than partial payments of the purchase price of the product delivered to the associations.

"Further consideration of the subject confirms the board in the views expressed in its former ruling and you are advised therefore that in the board's opinion, drafts with maturities not in excess of six months, drawn by the growers accepted by the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Marketing Association and discounted by the growers with their endorsements, in accordance with the statements of facts contained in this letter, will be eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve Banks as agricultural paper, provided the growers use the proceeds of the drafts for agricultural purposes and provided, also, the drafts comply in other respects with the requirements of the law and the board's regulations."

PORKERS GAIN RAPIDLY ON SOYBEANS AND CORN

That soybeans and corn grown together and hogged off are a profitable means of pork production is shown by the results obtained by Tom Wheatley, a Washington county farmer who cooperated with county Agent R. M. Heath and the extension division of the College of Agriculture in showing the value of this method. Nine hogs which were turned into a field of soybeans and corn each made an average gain of 41 pounds during the 150 days that they were on feed making a total of 370 pounds of pork produced by this method, according to a report of the project. The animals weighed a total of 1,460 pounds when the demonstration started and 1,830 pounds when it was finished.

DOZEN CULL HENS PRODUCE
THREE EGGS IN SEVEN DAYS

Culling was the means of removing 12 non-producers of eggs from the flock of 60 White Plymouth Rock hens owned by George Hill, a Marshall county farmer, according to report he has just made on a demonstration conducted by the College of Agriculture extension division. The week before the culling the 60 hens produced a total of 61 eggs while the week following the 48 hens which were retained as layers produced 43 eggs while the 12 culls produced three.

SURFACE FAMILY REUNION

Saturday, Sept. 24, 1921, being the anniversary of the birthday of Mrs. Will Graves, the youngest daughter of the late Noah and Mary Surface, it was planned by her children to give their mother a great surprise by having a reunion of the Surface family (this day) at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Crigler, located on the road leading from Hebron to Limaburg. The details were quietly arranged, well carried out and proved to be a great success in every particular. All her brothers and sisters with their families were quietly notified and invited to participate in the affair which they did by coming with baskets well filled to help supply the edibles for this occasion. (Some of the children and grandchildren could not come.)

2nd Generation—

Those present of the 2nd generation were J. W. Howe and wife Amanda, John W. Hogan and wife Fanny, Benj. C. Surface, John S. Surface and wife, Elv Surface and wife and Will Graves and wife Mary.

3rd Generation—

Those of the third generation were Will and Frank Howe and wives, Hugh Kernohan and wife Tillie Howe, Harvey Utz and wife Arminta, Otis Barlow, Edgar Graves and wife and Will Crigler and wife Etta.

4th Generation—

The fourth generation was made up of grandchildren, the names of some of which I do not recall, but there was quite a number of them. All told there were present about forty, including Miss Barlow and Allie Corn and wife. It was a very great surprise to Mrs. Graves and her children are to be commended for the love and honor shown her this day. All present enjoyed themselves greatly in talking over events of the past, the present and the future. Some of the older ones played practical jokes on each other, some kept others laughing at their nonsense and witicism, some talked on the present times compared to the past, some on the tax question, some on prohibition, some on good roads, and Will Howe, secretary of the Pulter county Auto Club, was at home on that subject and presented some beautiful mountain views which he saw on his Eastern trip. Each one tried to interest others and all did all he or she could to make the others enjoy themselves, and then the dinner of good things served on a long table in the front yard attracted the attention of all who ate to their entire satisfaction. I must not forget to mention the little boys and girls who were as much delighted with the play as the elderly people were with their subjects of conversation. Take it all in all it was the most joyful meeting of the kind I had ever had the pleasure of attending. Kind words and good wishes by all and for all, the present times compared to the past, and another of these reunions, and when they end here on earth we may be prepared for the Great Reunion above.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste, It's Camels for you.

CREPE AND CROCHET

The only real rival of georgette in blouses is crepe de chine. In this elegant blouse it appears in a warm tan color, with collar, cuffs, peplum and buttons hand-crocheted of silk in the same shade. Nothing more refined or smart has been presented for fall.

A pony blimp, which is perhaps the newest thing in lighter-than-air craft was launched last week at Wingfoot Lake Air Station, Akron, Ohio. It was built for the United States army and was flown to McCook Field, Dayton.

A pony blimp is merely a small size dirigible, and is sustained by a 35,000 cu ft shaped balloon, one of the big dirigibles will have a bag of 180,000 cu ft.

Suspended from the gas bag is the ship, which in the case of the pony is built much like the tonneau of a chummy roadster and will seat three people. The motor in the ship drives the balloon ahead at a speed of 50 miles an hour. The lifting effect is given by the gas, though of course by means of the side rudders the ship can be pointed upward and urged forward at a diagonal by the force of the propellers attached to the engine. These small dirigibles cost about $25,000 and cost about as much to operate as a standard make of truck.

The new ship has a flying radius of 500 miles. This radius is determined by the amount of gasoline it can carry, the ship of this size can take along enough to last 10 hours continuously in the air.

Lewis Slayback Badly Carved by Knife In The Hands of Kenneth Kirkpatrick.

There came nearly being a murder committed in Burlington last Wednesday evening, and all that prevented it being accomplished, was from the fact that the knife used by Kenneth Kirkpatrick on Lewis Slayback, struck him on the shoulder ripping a gash across the upper part of the breast bone making a cut which laid the skin open for ten inches. Had the stroke of the knife been a couple of inches higher Slayback's head would have almost been severed from his body. Besides this cut there were several other gashes on his arm and body.

It seems that these two young men had had a quarrel about two weeks ago while at Erlanger and last Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock when they met at the corner of the streets at the Boone County Deposit Bank, the old feud was renewed and very few words had passed between them when they went at each other, Kirkpatrick using a black-jack until the strap on it broke and it fell on the pavement, he then resorted to the knife, with which he was making rapid work before the combatants were separated.

The only ones on the street at the time the encounter took place was Mont Slayback, Lewis' uncle, Billy Bryan and Alexander Yelton and they did not realize what had happened until they saw the blood flowing from the wound on Slayback's neck.

Quite a number of persons were on the opposite corner in front of Dr. R. Blythe's store and heard the talking and saw the scrambling, but did not know that any one had been hurt until the young man walked over to where they were, assisted by his uncle, when the gash wound could be seen by the electric light. Dr. Yelton happened to be in the crowd and rushed Slayback to Mrs. Walton's residence, a short distance below, where the flow of blood was stopped and the wounds sewed up. He was then taken to the home of his uncle, out on the Bellevue pike.

While the crowd was busy looking after the wounded young man, Kirkpatrick made his escape, going by the way of his home, where he secured a shot gun and left.

Sheriff Conner and Deputy Hume went immediately on the hunt of Kirkpatrick, and about midnight they had just stopped their auto on the top of the river hill near Constance, when Kirkpatrick was seen to cross the road, and he was called on to stop, but he leveled the shot gun in the face of the officers, who were in the machine, and told them if they moved he would kill both and he backed away from them into the woods, and while a diligent search has been made for him, he has not been found. Kirkpatrick got the drop on the officers before they could get out of their machine.

While the wounds inflicted on young Slayback are not dangerous, unless some complications set up, he will be able to be out in a week or so.

This is the worst tragedy that has occurred in Burlington in many years.

Tobacco Crop

Shows Improvement, But Will Be Materially Smaller Than Last Year.

According to the latest official Government statistics considerable improvement was made by the growing tobacco crop of the U. S. during the month of August. Compared with the ten-year average condition, the tobacco crop on September 1st shows a decrease of 8.3 per cent. The report says:

"The forecast yield of the United States for the season 1921, as based on the condition of the crop as of September 1, is placed at 948,324,000 pounds, or an increase of 59,058,000, or 6 per cent, compared with the estimate made one month previously.

"Contrasted with the crop of last year the 1921 tobacco yield will be short 559,740,000 pounds, or 37 per cent. The greatest reduction in yield this year will come in the two large tobacco-producing states, Kentucky with a crop of 152,762,000 pounds smaller than last year, and North Carolina with a shrinkage of 194,333,000 pounds. Although the tobacco crop of the current year will be one of the smallest in recent seasons, tobacco men generally are agreed that this fact will go far in the way of bringing about a stabilization of market conditions."

Farm Fires Cost.

Farm fires cost about $20,000,000 a year—$18,166,710 in 1918 of the fires that year 33 per cent from causes classed as preventable, 37 per cent from partly preventable causes, and 30 per cent unknown but believed to have been largely preventable. With inadequate fire-fighting equipment on farms, fires are hard to control. Prevention is the best way to deal with them.

Defective flues and chimneys took toll to the extent of $1,902,031; sparks on roofs, $1,181,711; carelessness of matches by smokers and others, $1,071,987; petroleum and its products, $732,069; and stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes, $647,968.

Gasoline has come to play such an important role in the modern rural life that it is not stored in inflammable buildings, and is never opened in the presence of uncovered flame.

31 Years Ago

He Shook the Dust of Boone From His Feet—Still Has a Feeling for the Old Home.

In recording his subscription to the Recorder Mr. R. J. Stephens, of Huntington, Mo., writes:

Mr. N. E. Riddell, Dear Friend.

Just happened to notice my subscription to the Recorder had expired several months ago but am glad you did not stop the paper, as it was just an oversight. Enclosed you will please find check for $3.00, had just as well pay you for another year while I have the money, for if these times keep up and farmers produce keeps going down, don't know whether I will have another year. We Missouri farmers are not broke but we are badly bent. I can't get along without the Recorder although I don't know a number of the people in Boone county any more, there has been so many new comers since I left old Boone.

It will be 31 years next month since I shook the dust of Boone-co., from my feet, but there is still a warm place in my heart for the people there. When I see a Kentuckian they seem like old friends of mine even if I had never heard of them before.

Give my regards to all the boys and tell them I expect to see them again some time, and don't forget the old girls.

How is Willie Cropper, Hubert Walton, Gaines boys and everybody? We have been having so much rain here cannot get the corn out, and it is damaging in the field, and too wet to sow wheat. I don't know how much of wheat that has been sown here and will be 8 or 10 days before we can sow if it does not rain any more. I see where the Boone county people cleaned up at the State Fair. Hurrah for old Boone. I spent one night with Rose Walton in Chicago about two weeks ago. Rose looks fine and is enjoying life as well as jolly as any Walton you ever saw. Will close for this time.

Yours Truly,
R. J. STEPHENS.

The Salesman's Personality.

Many people who have failed to attain their ambitions for business success, always lay the blame on general conditions, rather than on some fault in their own methods or personality. They lay their slow progress to hard times, when even in periods of dull business a great volume of goods is being sold and enterprising men are going ahead.

Mr. J. H. Norbridge, a successful brush manufacturer of Proport, Illinois, in an article in the American magazine, takes the position that the trouble with most people is bashfulness. "The great bogey man in the lives of most people is fear," he says, "on reluctance to approach strangers with a selling proposition."

He goes on to tell how when he first undertook to sell from door to door, he passed the first house six times before he had courage to go up and knock.

Many men fail to get the benefit of their own knowledge and experience as the result of this dislike for getting turned down. They have perhaps been dismissed curtly when they tried to interest some one in some good proposition, and the experience humiliated them and hurt their feelings.

The man who is to interest others in the thing he has to sell or offer the service, must be a tender, must not be too sensitive. He will not force his way on people's time by cheeky nerve. But he will learn to suggest the merits of his proposition in a very few words, so that people's attention is attracted and they are willing to listen.

The same principle applies in advertising. The man who will put in a few sentences the advantage of trading at his store, will get the people coming to him. They will read his message because it is so simple and direct and seems to go to the heart of things.

Dixie Highway

Is a Problem For Boone County Taxpayers to Consider.

In last week's issue of the Grant County News there appeared an appeal by the editor for the people of Grant county to do something to hold the Dixie Highway route for their county and thus obtain Federal and State aid for constructing their main road. The editor knows that the only way to keep the route and secure the aid is to fix the road up, and when he admits that the Grant county road fund amounts to only $20,000, he hints a bond issue as the only solution.

Virtually the same problem is facing Boone-co., people and the solution may be a bond issue. The logical and inevitable objection to a bond issue is that taxpayers are voluntarily increasing their taxes and this objection is sufficient to defeat the usual proposal of a bond issue. But sometimes a bond issue is a business proposition like borrowing money at interest rates for investment that promises a high return. Would it be a business proposition for Boone county right now to vote a bond issue sufficient to construct her part of the Dixie Highway?

That depends on the returns from our investment. The best return that Boone county would have for voluntarily increasing its taxes would be the direct benefit to be derived from the Highway's route through the county. But aside from this, there is the enormous saving it would mean to the county in road building. The proposed Federal Road Aid Bill would pay half of the cost of construction, and we have every reason to believe that an additional one-third of the cost would be paid by the State, the road thus costing the county only one-fourth of its entire cost of construction.

The permanent construction of the Dixie Highway through Boone county would release all the money that is usually spent on that road to be expended on other county roads. Thus we have every reason to believe that in a few years every mile of Boone county roads would be in excellent condition.

The proposition of road construction resolves itself into a business proposition. Whether we prefer to go in debt, paying interest on our borrowed capital, in order to get our main road permanently constructed at one-fourth its cost, thus insuring a speedy construction of all other roads, not to mention the incalculable advantages and actual wealth to be derived from the Dixie itself—to spend our little road fund here and there in an eternal process of patching, in addition to losing the Great Highway, is a problem for Boone county taxpayers to consider. Our solution of the problem will measure our business foresight and courage.

However there is now a proposition under consideration by the Fiscal Court that may result in the construction of the Dixie Highway through Boone county without increasing the tax rate or a bond issue.

Commodious

Auto Bus In Service on Mail Route Between Burlington and Erlanger.

L. R. McNeely has put in service on the mail route between Burlington and Erlanger a large and commodious auto. The bus is so arranged that it can be closed in a few minutes with windows that can be concealed in the sides of the body which will protect the passengers from wind and rain and make it a comfortable place in which to ride regardless of weather conditions. Mr. McNeely leaves Burlington at 6:15 a. m., and 4 p. m. and arrives in Erlanger at 8:15 a. m., and 5:45 p. m. Persons desiring to go to Cincinnati can make connection at Erlanger with trains on the Southern and auto bus to the end of Ft. Mitchell car line. Passengers leaving here at 6:15 arrive in Cincinnati about eight o'clock a. m. and leave Cincinnati at 3:40 via Ft. Mitchell or 4 p. m. via Southern and arrive in Burlington at 5:45 giving over 7 hours in Cincinnati.

CUT THE WEEDS

There must always be something to relieve the monotony of the every day routine of business cares and as a relaxation from your usual labor suppose you try your hand in cutting the weeds about your premises. Remember that decaying weeds are said to produce disease, and if that be true, you should not hesitate to rid yourself of the undesirable growths about your place. Do this before the weed seed scatter all over town.

Impossible to tell what some men's income is, except that it is at a very late hour at night.

The Unemployment Conference.

The country feels the keenest interest in the conference called at Washington to consider the matter of unemployment. These delegates represent sharp differences of opinion and they will not agree if they get to arguing over the labor question or the causes of present economic difficulties.

It will do no good to start debates that can only cause friction and lead nowhere. The work of this conference is to find some immediate practical measures that will set idle people to work before the cold weather comes. That can be done by a careful examination of the industrial resources of the country, to see that all municipalities, employers and individuals who have any work that needs doing, shall offer the chance at once to those who lack jobs.

Then the matter should be taken for intensive study and action of how industries that operate on a seasonal basis, can be handled so as to run more regularly. If these kinds of work could be stabilized a vast annual aggregate of unemployment could be prevented.

LONG LIFE ENDED.

Don't W. Gaines, Mother of...

County's Good Women Gone.

Elizabeth Winston Gaines died Sept. 27, 1921, at 6:30 p. m., after a lingering illness at the home of her daughter Mrs. L. W. Graddy, near Bullittsburg church in her eighty-third year. She was the wife of Geo. W. Gaines, who preceded her to the Great Beyond several years ago. She was the mother of three children, W. W. Gaines, of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. M. C. Crouch, of Union, and Mrs. B. C. Graddy, of Bullittsville. She was a sister of A. G. Winston, who practiced law at the Boone county bar for a number of years and whose services were conducted at the home of her daughter Mrs. B. C. Graddy, last Thursday afternoon, after which the remains were interred in the Bullittsburg cemetery beside those of her husband. Another of Boone county's oldest residents has crossed over the years and left a number of relatives and friends to mourn her death. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, conducted the funeral in a very efficient manner.

Rev. Tomlin, pastor of the Burlington Methodist church, of which she was a member, preached the funeral.

HOME LIFE.

The best of life should be and is for those people who have home life. Those persons who are unfortunate enough not to have experienced the truth of this fact have not known what is best in life. If a man looking back over the years finds that his greatest satisfaction and happiness has come from associations and experiences with his own family circle, it is a bleak and desolate career that he surveys, however successful it may seem to others. The talks and walks that a boy has with his father and a girl with her mother, the games that the family play together, the jokes that to an outsider perhaps would have little flavor, even the quarrels, ending as they do in reconciliations that make the affections more warm than they had been before—are there any better experiences and memories than these for anyone?

Some people fear that the value of home life is less appreciated now than it used to be. They think that the modern life with its automobiles and jazz and motion pictures and magazines action tend to make people restless, discontented with their quiet of home, discontented even with their homes. We think that there is not much reason to be apprehensive. The love of home and family is the most deep-seated instinct in the race. Amusements and excitements that prevent or diminish the manifestation of that instinct can have only a temporary fascination. As for the automobile, it is for most persons a convenience that helps to enrich the family life—though sometimes perhaps it impoverishes the family. The automobile and people are too sound at heart to become careless and callous toward the family tie.

It is on the home life that our civilization is built. If the home life decays, our civilization will crumble. In the home life of every family the members are responsible not only to one another but to the nation for the maintenance of a high standard. In spite of the prevalence of fiction that presents domestic unhappiness as its theme, we believe that by far the greater number of Americans meet the responsibilities and rejoice in the happiness of their home life.

HOW FEDERAL ROAD AID STANDS AT THE END OF FIVE YEARS

On June 30, 1921, the close of the fifth fiscal year since the passage of the Federal aid road act, which is administered by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, the States and Federal Government had completed 7,469 miles of road, and 17,977 miles were under construction. Including the work completed on projects still under construction, the States have completed work which entitles them to draw on the Federal Treasury for $118,015,515. There is also a balance allotted but not yet earned on projects now under construction amounting to $66,375,636. Of the two appropriations which have been made for Federal aid there is now only $18,793,544 remaining unobligated. Twelve of the states have obligated their entire allotment and several others have only a small amount to their credit.

During the last fiscal year the total of completed projects jumped from 1,677 to 7,469 miles, and the projects under construction increased from 14,940 to 17,977 miles. The money earned by completion of work has grown from $40,097,881 a year ago to $118,015,515 at the end of this fiscal year. The amount earned during the year was $78,817,634, or nearly twice as much as the amount earned during the four years preceding.

The new projects submitted during the year bring the total amount of Federal aid obligations to $247,456,456, as compared with $109,830,366, which was the amount obligated on June 30, 1920. At this rate it is expected that the small balance of $18,000,000 still unobligated will be taken up in a very short time.

The month of June was a record month in road building. The mileage of completed projects increased by more than 1,200 miles, more than twice the amount reported for the month of May. Funds allotted to work actually under construction increased by $13,670,925.

SEIKMAN-HEWITT.

Miss Clara Seikman and George Hewitt were married at the home of the bride about three miles out on the Bellevue pike last Saturday evening at 5 p. m. in the presence of a few relatives of the bride. A wedding supper was served, after which the bride and groom left for a short trip. They will make their home in Burlington, having rented the Boone Hotel. The Recording Editor joins a host of friends in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous journey through life.

About 7:30 Monday evening a large number of the friends of Mr. Hewitt and wife assembled in front of the Boone Hotel and gave them a genuine caravali. The crowd had guns, horns, bells and other noise making devices. Not long after the crowd began their noise making Mr. Hewitt appeared in the crowd and joined with the merry makers. The crowd not only brought with them noise making instruments but a large number of useful presents consisting of all kinds of granite and aluminum ware, towels, sugar, coffee, canned fruits, etc. Mr. Hewitt met the boys with cigars and high grade coffee and cake and cake to the crowd. All wished Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt a long, happy and prosperous life.

BOONE COUNTY BOYS GIVEN MORE HONORS

Lexington—Boone county, in addition to having the winning team in the junior livestock judging contest held Sept. 14 at the Kentucky State Fair under the direction of the College of Agriculture, also had the high-scoring team in beef cattle and sheep judging, according to an announcement made here today by M. L. Hall, assistant state leader of Junior Agricultural Club Work and superintendent of the contest. The team which defeated those from 25 other counties for these honors was composed of Robert Clare, Marvin Kendall and Franklin Huey, Robert Clare, who was second highest scoring boy in the contest, also was high-scoring boy in the judging of sheep.

LAWRENCEBURG INDIANA

Mrs. John Rich and son Henry, of Big Bone, Ky., were visiting her daughter Mrs. Floyd Records, of Manchester, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Welch and little son Paul, were visiting Mrs. Welch's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Records, from Friday until Sunday of last week.

Housing tobacco, cutting corn and filling silos is the order of the day.

At the sale of John Muntz last Saturday corn sold very cheap, estimated at 35 cents per bushel in the field, high brought about 7 1/2 cents per pound, pair good work mules sold for $105, cow for $65 to $70. The sale was attended by a fair sized crowd.

CELEBRATED HER 37TH BIRTHDAY.

The neighbors, relatives and friends of Mrs. Clements celebrated her 37th birthday Sunday, September 25th. A long table loaded with delicacy known to country was provided by the friends. Many thanks are due. Those present were:

Mrs. John Conley and Mrs. Ryle, of Gallatin, Mr. and Courtney Ryle and three children, Latonia, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Clements, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ryle, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith and children, Mr. and Mrs. James Hager and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. M. Neely and son, Mr. and Mrs. Aylor and children, Mr. and Stanley Ryle and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens and son, Mr. and Mrs. Waller Ryle, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williamson and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Phillips and children, Mr. and Mrs. Scott and son, Mr. and Mrs. James West and children, Mr. Sam Wilson and daughter and Mr. Bob Wilson.

BOONE FARMERS WILL TEST AND RAISE VALUE OF COWS

As a further step in increasing the value of their herds seven Boone county farmers who are owners of high producing animals have become members of the Campbell-Boone County Cooperative Cow Testing Association and will place their cows on official test for register-of-merit records, according to a report of E. M. Prewitt, dairy extension specialist of the College of Agriculture.

Boone county is recognized as one of the best dairy countries in Kentucky, dairy specialists say, but the dairymen realize that they cannot command the highest prices for their animals until they have an official test of them and know what their milk and butterfat records are. By becoming members of the local cow testing association they will be able to obtain these records. Boone county farmers won more than $700 in cash prizes on their dairy exhibits at the State Fair, according to Mr. Prewitt.

Morgan county farmers are giving special attention to poultry culling, according to a report of County Agt. R. B. Rankin. More than 35 of them were taught the method of distinguishing between the layers and losers in their flocks by attending demonstrations recently held in the county.

Culling was the means of 12 loofer hens from the R. H. Elder, Crittenden, according to a report of John R. Spencer, State culling the 12 hens he sold an egg.

W. P. G. the Federal, me people who never

A year or two ago, when the Amer ican people were sending large sums of money abroad to feed the suf plored this sending of money out of the country. Although there was then comparatively little destitution in the United States, yet many people could not feel the least interest in feeding a starving man who happen ed to live in some other country.

Now it appears that these relief enterprises are merely a dis play of generosity scarcely equalled in the history of the world, but they will pay in other ways. It is pointed out for instance, that 25 brands of condensed milk are now on sale in the grocery stores of Europe, to gether with a lot of other American food products. These brands might not have been known in Europe for many years, if our generous heart

CULTURE AND MONEY.

Formerly it used to be thought that people who had money were more apt to be cultivated and refin ed than others. Money is able to buy advantages in the way of edu cation and experience and polish, and people with those advantages ought to show the benefits thereof.
 During recent years, however, a large number of people have secur ed money without giving any im pression of culture or education. The big department stores of the large cities are a place where the manners of the wealthy can be observed. It is often remarked that great numbers of people who seem to have plenty of money appear to be lacking in refine ment.

Such people buy flamboyant cloth ing, seeming to think that lurid com binations of colors and elaborate display. Meanwhile at counters where less ornate goods are offered, you find quiet and refined people buying stuff that is substantial and artistic, without being nearly as expensive.
 The big jewelry dealers have said that the character of their patron age has changed of late years. For merly they were patronized by wealthy people who had had money long enough so they had learned to spend it with taste and good sense.
 But when the profiteering times came on, the newly rich crowded into their stores and bought lavishly without much taste. Also they sold a great deal to people who had sud denly acquired war time wages, but did not know how to use their pros perity wisely. Meanwhile their old patrons were prudently hanging on to their money.

It is a great art to spend wisely, so as to get substantial and attrac tive stuff that is not so elaborate as to look ridiculous. When you buy of your home stores you get good ad vice in such matters, as they counsel their patrons to buy quiet and taste ful goods, rather than showy stuff that may cost more but gives less evidence of refinement.

DRAINAGE WOULD RAISE KENTUCKY CROP YIELDS

With 573,299 acres of Kentucky farm land reported in the 1920 cen sus as needing drainage, indications are that the crop yields from certain areas of the State could be materi ally increased provided these were given the proper improvement, ac cording to farm engineering spec ialist at the College of Agriculture.
 The same census reports that of the 21,612,772 acres of farm land in the State only 13,975,746 acres have been improved. A special can vass of drainage enterprises in the State also shows that there are ap proximately 358,480 acres of land in operating drainage enterprises.
 Since drainage on farms of the state may be either inside or outside of an organized enterprise the figures for both are given to show the statu s of improvements on Ky. farms.
 More than 19,592 farms in the State reported the need of drainage in the 1920 census.

That the yields from the undrain ed areas of the State could be in creased is shown by results in ex periments conducted by various sta tions, the specialists say. Indiana re ports that in one test the average yields an acre were 34.6 bushels of corn and 1,923 pounds of stover on undrained land and 39.5 bushels of corn and 3,289 pounds of stover on drained land. Wheat averaged 4.3 bushels of grain and 345 pounds of straw an acre on undrained land and 10 bushels of grain and 800 lbs.
 Hay averaged 3,670 pounds an acre on undrained land and 4,10 pounds of straw on an acre of drained land.
 on the drained.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Jack Frost made his appearance in this part of the country Wednesday morning.

Born—On the 3rd inst., to J. E. Rogers and wife, of Bellevue, a fine boy.

Miss Mary Roberts, of Walton, spent the week-end with relatives in Burlington.

Jno. O. Richards, of Covington, was a business visitor to Burlington last Monday.

There aren't any tramps and hoboes any more. They are merely migratory workers.

Thomas Walton and wife have purchased a Victrola of the A. Adams Co., Covington.

This part of the county was visited by quite a rain and wind storm last Thursday night.

Mr. Geo. M. Penn was called to Cynthia, Monday, on account of the death of an aunt.

Most of the corn has been put in the shock in this county, and the crop generally is a good one.

Walter T. McGarvey and wife, of Mt. Auburn, Ohio, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall, last Sunday.

John Ealdon, who is employed by the Big Bone Oil Co., at Bowling Green, Ky., spent Monday in Burlington.

Mrs. Eugenia Blythe left last Saturday for Clearwater, Fla., where she will spend the winter with Mrs. S. P. Tilley.

Mrs. Fannie Cropper returned home Sunday from Cincinnati, where she had been visiting Dr. C. G. Crisler and wife.

J. H. Feely from out on R. D. 1, was a caller at this office last Friday. He had the date on his paper moved up another year.

A. B. Renaker and wife, Miss Mary Thompson and Miss Nell Martin, spent Sunday at Erlanger the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Corn.

The road crew has been doing some much needed work on the pikes in the county, in the way of grading the hills, the past few days.

Mrs. G. W. Tolland Miss Eugenia Riley are attending the National Convention of American Red Cross, at Columbus, Ohio, this week.

J. M. Eddins and wife entertained all of his children and families last Sunday, and when dinner was announced seventeen answered the call.

A French gunpowder plant blows the fumes from its gun cotton factories through a chimney lined with glass, which resists the chemical action perfectly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Eddins entertained their children and grandchildren last Sunday with one of those good old dinners that Mrs. Eddins is quite famous for.

Capt. Ed. Maurer, wife and little son, of Pittsburg, Pa., were visiting relatives in Bellevue and Burlington, the latter part of last week and the first of this week.

Mrs. C. C. Roberts and son Clifton, of Walton, spent several days last week visiting her daughter, Mrs. Menter Martin and other relatives and friends in Burlington.

L. P. Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, visited last Friday with his brother Edward and wife, in Burlington. Mr. Rice has been in poor health for some time but is gradually improving.

Mr. G. M. Riley, formerly a citizen of Boone county, now residing at Dayton, Ohio, was mingling with the crowd in attendance at court Monday, and meeting with many of his old friends. Mr. Riley is past 91 years of age and is looking well for one of his years.

A committee from Boone county will go to Frankfort to appear before the State Road Commission and urge them to take over the Lexington pike and reconstruct it with concrete. If the citizens along that route can raise by private subscription $15,000 the indications are that that road will be built during the year 1923. This improvement should be made and the citizens along that road should not hesitate to raise this amount.

WANDERER WENT TO GALLOWS

SEPTEMBER 30

'I'm Ready,' He Said As He Played Cards On Eve of His Execution.

Carl Wanderer, who was hanged at 7 o'clock September 30th for the murder of E. J. Ryan, the "poor boob" whom he hired for $5 to stage a false holdup and then killed with his wife and unborn child, spent his last night playing cards.

When told that Gov. Len Small had denied a plea for a reprieve Wanderer said:

"Well, what of it? I am ready to go."
Then, turning back to his guards, with whom he was playing, he remarked:

"That last trick's mine. I played the ace of spades."

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECESS

It has been remarked that the congressmen who quit work and went home for a vacation last month, on account of the warm weather at Washington, found things considerably hotter at home. They did not meet with the cordial reception they hoped. They found that the people were suffering from bad economic conditions and were looking to Washington for a remedy.

When these congressmen who after working for four months, had shown themselves unable to accomplish anything to relieve business conditions, had to take a recess and go home, it seemed mighty queer to their constituents. They could not understand, how these men, in this time when so much needs to be done, could have scuttled away from their work so lightly.

With millions of able bodied workers unemployed, it seems as if the congressmen might have enough devotion and patriotism to keep working and trying to find some way to get the idle men back on their jobs. When the Democratic congress was called together by President Wilson in 1913, it worked all summer regardless of the heat. The Republican congress is manifesting a very poor spirit not to show equal devotion.

The millions of unemployed, many of whom lack bread for their families, will not take it kindly that the congressmen are taking their ease and resting in comfortable and luxurious homes, while so little has been accomplished to restore normal times.

The trouble is that Congress lacks leadership, and that it has not been able to take on any line of policy. A party so torn by contending factions is not fit to have power. The people demand action but the Republicans in congress are like the firemen who should be called to put out a fire, but should argue about the best method of extinguishing the blaze while the house burns down.

The tobacco field in general is prepared and tilled as carefully as the garden, the specialists say, with the result that little grass or weeds have an opportunity of growing on them. In the fall of the year these fields are mellow and clean and as soon as the tobacco is removed are smooth surfaces where fall and winter rains start rivulets that later grow into gullies which remove the fertile surface. Losses of this kind are among the heaviest ones suffered by farmers of the State, according to the specialists.

FARMERS TO DETERMINE BEST WHEAT VARIETIES

In order to determine the best varies of wheat for different sec-of Kentucky 47 farmers in 18 theies of the State are starting van variety demonstrations this in cooperation with their county ents and the extension division of College of Agriculture. The demonstrations are scattered from iton to Boyd and from Carroll to Fulton, Ballard, Livingston, Crittenden, Todd, Muhlenburg, Hopkins, Webster, Henderson, Warren, Hart, Taylor, Marion, Hickman, Washington, Carroll, Campbell and Boyd counties. This is the first year that demonstrations of this kind have been conducted, according to crops specialists of the college.

The varieties used in the demonstrations will include Ashland, the new variety developed at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and the highest yielder there, Kanred, the famous hard wheat from Kansas, Fulcaster and Currell's Prolific. These will be grown and harvested with a portion of the crop from the variety grown in each section. It is expected that the best variety for each section of the State can be selected after from three to five years of this work.

Supply Exceeds Distribution.

"The supply of tobacco for 1920 as computed from the stocks held January 1, production, imports and shipments, exceeds the total distribution by 282,578,004 pounds. This is in striking contrast with the situation in 1919, when the distribution exceeded the supply by 27,740,364 pounds. Ordinarily the supply would exceed the distribution because of the loss in shrinkage and in stemming."

"Owing to the lack of cargo space, large quantities of tobacco were held at the ports on January 1, 1919.
 This tobacco, of course, had been shipped for export, and accordingly was no longer carried on the revenue books of the several tobacco concerns. Such tobacco was not included in the exports of 1918 and not included in the stocks for January 1, 1919. The unusual exports in 1919, the delayed marketing of the crop of 1918, and the advanced
 A. Smmarketing of crop of 1919 all tend-to make the distribution exceed the supply in 1919."

To The Burley Tobacco Growers and all Who do Business of any Kind with Them

MR. FARMER—Have you ever had anything to say about the price you have gotten for your tobacco in the past? You are the only man in the world in that position.

MR. TENANT FARMER—What chance on earth have you to own a home of your own with tobacco at present or recent

WILD ONION ERADICATION INVOLVES SPECIAL METHOD

Because of the strong foothold which it has gained in certain parts of Kentucky and the heavy losses which it causes the wild onion has come to be recognized as one of the worst, if not the worst, weed with which farmers of the State have to contend, authorities say. When present even in small quantities in pastures it renders them unfit for dairy cattle as a rank, garley flavor is imparted to the milk making it unfit for human consumption. It is equally as great a pest to the wheat grower as the small bulbets which are produced and crushed when the wheat is threshed. Since these bulbets are small it is also difficult to remove them from the grain when this is milled and as a consequence the resulting flour is strongly flavored with an unpleasant and penetrating odor. Growers of such wheat are heavily docked for this and as a result millions of dollars are lost each year in pecuniary over because of the weed. Care to prevent infestation of their fields by this pest and special means of eradication are necessary if farmers are to eliminate this loss, specialists at the College of Agriculture say.

Tests to eradicate the wild onion on a large scale have shown that one of the best ways of doing this is to plow the land late in the fall breaking the ground as deeply as possible so as to turn up as many of the bulbs as possible. This is the first step in the process, the ground being left in this condition through the winter. Early in the following spring, not later than April 10 if possible, the land is disked and harrowed at least twice and planted to some summer crop, preferably corn because it shades the ground and the wild onion must have sunlight to mature its drop of bulbets well. Few garley plants will make their appearance during the summer but many will start their growth again in the fall. The crop should then be removed in time to allow another breaking late in the season. This practice of breaking the land each fall and planting it in the spring to a summer crop if followed every season for four or five years will clean out the garley.

No attempt should be made while the cleaning is being carried on to raise such crops as small grains, grasses or clovers or any other crop that will prevent late fall or early spring plowing. This practice involves no extra expense, requires only one extra breaking of the ground in the fall, permits the raising of a normal crop each year and results, in crops where fall plowing will cause serious blowing or washing of the soil double cross disking and a crop of rye to hold the soil may be substituted. The rye is plowed under early in the spring.

FEET MOST ABUSED MEMBERS.

(London Daily News.)

The human foot is one of the most beautiful and useful instruments ever conceived, but unfortunately, it is not what a motorist calls "foolproof."

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about our feet. We treat them outrageously, as either custom or fashion may indicate. As a result about one third of the population is splay-footed, another third walks like a hen on hot cinders, and the remaining third may be said to walk fairly naturally.

The foot has a graceful arch running fore and aft. We take this longitudinal arch, turn the toes outward so that the heels meet at an angle of forty-five degrees, and then put all our pressure in a skew direction across the arch. No railway engineer would dream of building a straight arch bridge to carry loads neither across nor along the arch but irregularly over it.

We ought to walk with our great toe pointed straight in the direction of progress, as Indian runners do, and "spring from the great toe." Instead, most of us, "take off" in a lumbering sort of way from the ball of the great toe.

The arch of the foot is supported largely by the tendon which runs under the foot to the great toe itself, and this neglect of use renders this tendon weak and lax, and causes depression of the arch. The best cure for weak arch is the practice of raising one's self upon the great toe, that is, doing as a penalty exercise what you should have done all along naturally. If you will try when walking to keep the feet straight, and to end each stride with a little "spring" off each big toe alternately, you will be rewarded by finding that progress seems easier, quicker, and more buoyant.

and the tender ministry of the living must give place to the service of the undertaker, it is a real comfort to surviving friends, to feel sure that the preparation for burial will be conducted with dignity and proper respect for the lately departed one.

Then, too, Modern Science has found a way through the art of Embalming, not only for removing the peril of contagion, but also of restoring the natural flush of health, so that the latest picture in memory will be pleasant to recall.

This process is a part of our service which we will gladly explain to anyone interested.

LEGION NOTES

A former soldier, soldier and with a wife and five children to support, had 50 years of employment when his case became known to Kansas City officials. Sleeping on the floor because he had no bed, the service man was rescued by a rush of calls from the American Legion's employment bureau where he had registered only the day before.

111

Whether to wear brown debies or corn-stalk shirts is a question puzzling members of the Iowa delegation to the American Legion meeting at Kansas City this month. All are agreed that they should wear something distinctive. More than 1,000 Iowans will attend the convention.

111

One hundred aliens manning the Shipping Board's fleet at Camp Eustis, Va., have been discharged and their places filled with unemployed American seamen following representations of the American Legion of the state. The fleet now consists of 120 vessels a change of skeleton crews and 300 more ships will be added soon.

111

An aerial express for delegates and visitors to the national convention of the American Legion at Kansas City will be operated by members of the Minneapolis (Minn.) Aero Club. They will use their own planes for the trip.

111

Holding that his opportunity for service was greater in his new career, Clarence W. Seymour, Hartford, Conn., sent in his resignation as state senator immediately after he had been elected commander of the American Legion of Connecticut. The Legion forbids its officials to hold political elective office.

11

To assist the few surviving members of the Confederate Veterans' association in Tennessee to attend their annual reunion at Chattanooga, 20 men of Nashville post of the American Legion devoted a day each to raising a fund to defray their expenses.

111

Five thousand wireless stations forming a network from coast to coast are receiving nightly bulletins of information concerning the forthcoming national convention of the American Legion. A sending set with a range of 1,500 miles flashes the news from Kansas City at 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock each night and members of the Western Radio Co., most of them Legion men of army wireless experience, pick up the stories for their local newspapers.

111

From eight to ten cents a day for meals and a bed is the rate in a hotel just opened in Des Moines, Ia., by Sheriff W. E. Robb, who does it for jobless ex-service men in addition to his other duties. Only cards supplied by the American Legion and trades and labor assembly of the city will admit guests.

111

Gas on the battlefield and gas in the hold of an immigrant ship are of different quality, according to war veterans of both experiences. The American Legion employment bureau, New York, on receipt of a call from the immigration authorities of the port for "veterans of combat service" sent 12 overseas men to the docks. They were to don gas masks and fumigate ships, the work to last a month. Declaring they had faced death once the men gave up and started looking for another job. Five hundred ex-service men who played their old part as movie superstars at Mamaroneck, N. Y., however, liked it.

111

Harold Wells, Petersburg, Va., blinded while serving his country during the world war, was not receiving enough from the government to keep him. Members of his American Legion post raised $1,000 in a mass meeting over which the mayor presided. They set him up in business and with their Women's Auxiliary pledged to buy only of the veteran in his tobacco and hook shop. Now he has paid off the $1,000 debt and is making a comfortable living.

111

Ward A. Pensyl, navy veteran of the war, is hiking from Hampton, N. J., to Pittsburgh, Pa., 400 miles to get a job that is being held for him. He is drawing a two wheel cart containing tools and clothing. The local American Legion post sent his wife and five children on a train ahead of him. He had been out of work for months.

Keep the good work going on and let us win the victory over the team.

CUTTING VINES AFTER FROST SAVES ROTTING IN SWEET POTATO CROP

Leaving Vines On After Freezing Causes 88 Per Cent Loss—Wrapping Tubers No Preventive For Rot.

When sweet potato vines were cut immediately before or after a frost no losses resulted in the stored tubers while 88 per cent of them rotted when the vines were not cut following a frost, according to results of experiments conducted by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the best method of harvesting this crop. The experiments also showed that wrapping each potato separately resulted in more rotting than leaving them unwrapped. The rotting also was more severe in an open package than it was in a closed package. Sweet potatoes already are being harvested in many sections of the State and farmers will profit by removing the vines should frosts occur before the entire crop is dug, according to A. J. Olney, under whose direction the experiments were conducted.

The potatoes in the experiment were handled according to the general recommendations made for farm conditions. They were placed in a dry room having a temperature of about 70 degrees where they remained for two or three weeks to complete the curing process after which the temperature of the room was reduced to about 60 degrees. The experiments showed that it is preferable to keep the tubers in small containers rather than in large bins. The ones in the experiment were kept in crates. Artificial heat should be provided if necessary to maintain a temperature of 70 degrees in the curing process, specialists say.

From the time that they are dug until they are used the potatoes should be handled with care to prevent the bruising of any kind since this encourages rotting. The importance of separating the cut and bruised tubers from the sound ones cannot be too strongly emphasized, the specialists say. Under no conditions is it advisable to store injured or bruised potatoes since rot is nearly always first found in tubers of this kind. Sorting over the potatoes after they have been placed in storage encourages rotting, according to results obtained in the experiments.

The most ideal storage conditions for sweet potatoes are found in a dry cellar or well-insulated room where proper ventilation has been provided. A cellar in which there is a furnace is a good place to store the tubers, the specialists say.

The Beecher Club Edition of the Lawrenceburg, (Ind.) Press made its appearance at this office last week and it was a "humdinger." The Edition has thirty-two pages filled with interesting history and illustrations of many places, such as churches, homes and noted landmarks of Lawrenceburg, Aurora, and Dearborn county. The edition met with a liberal response in the way of advertising from the business men of the town and county.

When the kids chase the cat, it is of course not an exhibition of cruel and malicious feeling, but merely their solicitude desire, that Tabby should get the exercise needed for her health.

You'll enjoy the sport of rolling 'em with P. A.!

FIRST thing you do next—go get some makin's papers and some Prince Albert tobacco and puff away on a home made cigarette that will hit on all your smoke cylinders!

No use sitting-by and saying maybe you'll cash this hunch tomorrow. Do it while the going's good, for man-o-man, you can't figure out what you're passing by! Such flavor, such coolness, such more-ish-ness—well, the only way to get the words emphatic enough is to go to it and know yourself!

And, besides Prince Albert's delightful flavor, there's its freedom from bite and parch which is cut out by our exclusive patented process! Certainly—you smoke P. A. from sun up till you slip between the sheets without a comeback.

Prince Albert is the tobacco that revolutionized pipe smoking. If you never could smoke a pipe—forget it! You can—AND YOU WILL—if you use Prince Albert for packing! It's a smoke revelation in a jimmy pipe or a cigarette!

Prince Albert is sold in tatty red bags, tatty red tins, hand-some pound and half-pound tins, hum-drum glass hum-drum tins with sponge-moistener top.

TOBACCO MARKET

Reopens With Liberal Offerings and Spirited Bidding.

Transactions were resumed in the Cincinnati burley tobacco hoghead market last week, with a total offering of 133 hogheads, or approximately 133,000 pounds of tobacco. It was the first hoghead auction held in more than three years, and the sale at the Globe Warehouse was attended by unusual interest on the part of growers, shippers and buyers of tobacco. More than 150 persons attended the auction, many of the representative buyers for the large manufacturing interests following the break.

Bidding for the most part was spirited, and quotations generally were satisfactory to shippers, though the average for the day was not high, owing to the severe discrimination of buyers in regard to double old tobacco. The lowest bid was $2.80 per 100 pounds for nondescript samples, while the market was topped at $34 for select colory leaf.

The following is a summary of the sale—133 bids: 12 at $2.80 to $5.30, 37 at $4 to $5.95, 26 at $6 to $7.95, 14 at $8 to $9.95, 10 at $10 to $11.75, 5 at $12 to $14.75, 20 at $15 to $19.75, 1 at $20 to $25 to $25.50, 3 at $28 to $29.50, 3 at $31 to $34; average, $9.71 per 100 lbs.

Democrats Apparently Divided On German Peace Treaty.

That there will be no organized Democratic opposition to the ratification of a separate peace treaty seems likely at this writing. The prevailing impression is that Democrats Senators will use their individual judgment in voting for or against the treaty.

Those that vote for ratification, it is assumed, will do so on the theory that the country wants an official peace status, and they will be willing to let the administration continue to attempt the making of peace in its own way; also for the reason that ratification of a part of the Versailles Treaty is a step toward the acceptance of that treaty as a whole.

Those who will vote against it will do so for reasons epitomized in the brilliant and cutting epigram of Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, that it is "an ignominious and inglorious postscript to American war history."

The principal argument a-ide from Senator Williams' illuminating speech made against the ratification of the treaty so far has been by Senator Borah, to whom the Versailles Treaty is tantamount to a separate peace treaty, and that it was when linked with the League of Nations.

However, as a bitter-ender, Senator Borah now stands almost alone.

A CHANGE OF PLAN

When Congress assembled last April, it purposed to pass an old-fashioned tariff bill. Its elder statesmen were living in the past of the years before the war. They had been brought up in the idea that the only thing to do to bring about prosperity was to pass a tariff bill providing high protection.

So they came rolling down to Washington confident in the efficacy of their simple formula for prosperity. They went ahead with their hearings in the same spirit as of 20 years ago. But when they shaped their tariff bill, and got it into the house, a change began to come over their temper. It was soon apparent that the popular reception of the tariff was not so favorable.

Whereas previously the manufacturing interests had demanded high protection, now a large part of them were indifferent to it and many were strongly opposed. They could see that with prices raised on raw materials by a high tariff, they were going to be in an impossible position in their effort to secure export trade. The whole result of the process would be to make production more expensive. This would restrict our foreign business.

As the result of a nation wide protest against any such preposterous scheme, the Republican chieftains have drawn back, as well they may. The result has been to prolong the uncertainty of business, and to hold up commercial transactions that could be affected by a change of schedules.

Furthermore, the time of Congress has been taken from other matters where prompt action was called for. The session up to the date of the recess was practically wasted time, because it took Congress six months to learn what the rest of the country was able to see when it assembled.

DECISION CORRECT

The case of Samuel C. Hicks vs. D. B. Wallace that was tried in the Boone Circuit Court at the April term of court and which was decided in favor of Mr. Wallace, was taken to the court of appeals, where the decision of the Boone circuit court was found to be correct and the case affirmed.

POLITICS AND IGNORANCE

There is a real danger from too great modesty in politics as in other things. One hears many of the nobles and most intelligent women say, "Oh, why should I vote? How can I? I know nothing about government administration." How much do those excellent persons suppose the average man knows about government or statesman-ship? How much does anyone know about those complicated matters? We all have our houses to keep, our business to run. We cannot give our lives to the study of politics.

But, oh, how slight is the danger to the world from modesty in politics compared with the danger from its opposite! How many people there are who know just how a thing should be done, and when it should be done, and by whom it should be done! How many have heard only one side of an argument and have got it thoroughly into their heads and keep repeating it with parrot insistence, utterly regardless of facts that crowd in upon them to prove the contrary! And there are the people with nostrums, with panaceas, people who have become possessed by one idea, who believe that the application of that idea to practical life and political affairs would stabilize society and moralize the world. They urge their reform in season and out of season.

All the inevitable catastrophes and failures that beset the stultifying march of progress do not furnish them triumphant arguments showing that if their advice had been followed the millennium would have long since arrived.

Such an obsession is always buttressed by ignorance. The wise, the thoughtful, the patient do not proclaim quick and novel methods of pushing the old, slow, obstinate world into complete felicity. But those loud ascribers of sure remedies for ancient maladies are too busy teaching to pause and learn. They are manifestly and deplorably ignorant of the history of mankind, of the secrets of human nature, even of their own hearts.

Passive ignorance is evidently a misfortune; but the worst enemy we have to cope with today is active ignorance. The motto for both women and men in politics should be: Read, think, watch, listen, before you talk or act.

JACK FROST ISN'T QUITE SO BAD AS HE'S PAINTED

Jack Frost is an embarrassing visitor if he comes too early or stays too late, but in the main he's a beneficent old duffer, and not the enemy of plant life that he is supposed to be. A recent article in the Journal of Agricultural Research, written by F. V. Coville, a botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture. The article records a series of experiments with healthy blueberry plants, and shows the relation of freezing winter temperatures to plant growth in the spring. One fact stands clear in the result—the dormant condition of the plant in winter is not the result of cold and freezing; on the other hand, cold stimulates the revival of life in the plant when spring comes again, it is said.

Such an explanation of the effect of cold is new to the everyday reader, who is used to looking upon winter air as detrimental to plant life. Forcing the shrub into dormant state is merely better than death. But healthy, husky blueberry bushes which Mr. Coville sheltered in his greenhouse "went to sleep" just the same, despite the fact that the air was kept at a growing temperature. The shrubs, he admits, didn't go to bed so early as they did when Jack Frost used to hurry them off, but go to sleep they did. Their leaves dropped, the plants went into a dormant condition exactly like that of others outside in the cold and snow. Moreover, they were late in waking when spring came. Some, indeed, slept thru the whole year. The inference is that the plant's period of dormancy is a seasonal matter not induced by the cold, but that the early and luxuriant growth in the spring can not occur unless the plant has been thru a period of chill temperature.

In another experiment the investigator set a blueberry bush close to the greenhouse wall and passed a branch through into the warm interior. The warm branch and the cold ones became dormant as usual, but when spring days came the part of the plant that was under shelter failed to revive. The part that had been exposed to the weather emerged from its dormant state and made quick and healthy growth.

Mr. Coville believes that the cold weakens the plant cells and by destruction in part turns the sarch to sugar, thus assuring new growth. This event, he asserts, can not take place if the plant is protected from the frost and cellular injury. Whichever the cause, the results seem to be assured, and the horticulturist has a new and valuable aspect of the meaning of cold weather.

TEMPORARY LOCATION

Secured By The H. Eilerman &
Sons, Covington, Ky.

To Replace Store Recently Destroyed By Fire.

One of the largest conflagrations to visit Covington, Ky., recently wiped out the large clothing store of the H. Eilerman & Sons formerly at Pike and Madison Streets.

This store, widely known throughout Kentucky, and particularly to the readers of this paper, was one of the oldest and most reliable clothing stores in the middle west having been in business in Covington for thirty-five years.

No sooner had the last spark of this $100,000 conflagration died away than plans were made to re-establish the business in a temporary location, pending the erection of a modern store finer than ever before.

The spacious building, located at 515, 517 and 519 Scott St., in the Crigler building, between 5th and 6th Streets, will house one of the finest and most complete stocks of clothing for men and boys.

It is the desire of H. Eilerman & Sons that their hundreds of patrons in this vicinity be not inconvenienced and assurance is given that the same high quality merchandise, and honest dealing will prevail at the temporary location, just as it did at the old stand.

Preparations are now in progress for a great sale to follow immediately after the insurance companies have made their adjustments and news of this event will be announced in this paper.

The man who can't holler for his home town won't find anyone to holler for him.

ONE BRAND
ONE QUALITY-
One Size Package

All our skill, facilities, and lifelong knowledge of the finest tobaccos are concentrated on this one cigarette—CAMEL.

Into this ONE BRAND, we put the utmost quality. Nothing is too good for Camels. They are as good as it's possible to make a cigarette.

Camel QUALITY is always maintained at the same high, exclusive standard. You can always depend on the same mellow-mild refreshing smoothness—the taste and rich flavor of choicest tobaccos—and entire freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

And remember this! Camels come in one size package only—20 cigarettes—just the right size to make the greatest saving in production and packing. This saving goes straight into Camel Quality. That's one reason why you can get Camel Quality at so moderate a price.

Here's another. We put no useless frills on the Camel package. No "extra wrappers!" Nothing just for show!

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And their added cost must go onto the price or come out of the quality.

One thing, and only one, is responsible for Camels great and growing popularity—that is CAMEL QUALITY.

Visit The Health Exposition

"LIVE A LITTLE LONGER" IS HEALTH EXPO. SLOGAN

World Exposition of Health, Safety and Sanitation at Cincinnati Music Hall, October 15-22

Every boy and girl in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky is invited to be the personal guest of the Executive Committee of the Cincinnati Health Exposition when the enormous health show opens in Cincinnati Music Hall on Saturday, October 15. Arrangements have been made for the distribution of thousands of free tickets for the use of school children in these three States. These tickets will be good for admission at any time during the exposition, and the whole of the two hundred shows which comprise the program can be seen by every boy and girl absolutely free of charge.

Tickets can be obtained merely by writing for them and requests should be sent to the Health Exposition at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"Live a Little Longer"

This is the message conveyed by Cincinnati's great national Health Exposition at Music Hall October 15 to 22, 1921.

Its purpose is that those who are in health may remain so, and that those who are not may find some of the means whereby health may be regained.

Yet the Exposition is not a mere preachment on health. It is a visualization of twenty five years of health progress in the Ohio Valley, made national in scope through the participation of the United States Government and various national organizations and agencies engaged in the never ending fight for physically improved Americans.

The doors of the showcase of science have opened, and in an increasing stream its wonders are pouring into Cincinnati for exhibition to the public. Lending them all is that most precious substance—radiant.

Physical facts about the exposition include:

100,000 square feet of floor space.
$2,000,000 worth of exhibits.
$150,000 expended in operation.
Eight days of splendid entertainment.
Educational exhibits by one hundred organization.

Commercial exhibits by one hundred leading firms.

Two hundred shows in one.
The eyes of the nation are upon the exposition as a pioneer in its field and thousands of visitors from great distances will share Cincinnati's hospitality for the week.

Nearly a foot, the people of Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee are drawn to the city of the South where the health gods of the world meet for this occasion. The government and leading departments of these hundred cities are operating with Cincinnati that the best of the nation's health enterprises may be shared broadcast throughout the country.

It is significant that three-fourths of the exhibit space will be occupied by the equipment and the personnel of a hundred health, sanitation, recreation and safety organizations, each demonstrating what it is doing to further public health.

Besides the exceptional display of health activities, the first of its kind ever made in Cincinnati, the Cincinnati Health Exposition will present in the Auditorium of Music Hall each day a constructive program of addresses, pageants, moving pictures and health educational features, in which some of the greatest sanitary experts of the world will participate.

Men whose names are household words throughout the whole country have expressed their willingness to give Cincinnati the benefits of their years of training and research in health matters. The addresses to be delivered by these experts are only a few of the features on the program of interesting events scheduled for exposition week. Others include a series of tableaux showing how a community may reduce its ratio of dependent population by promoting health, a wonderful display of handicrafts of blind persons, a miniature model of the Krozer Hills camp where epileptic children are safeguarded against tuberculosis, payment to be made by the graduates of the school of nursing at the University of Cincinnati, doubling the inception and growth of nursing and many others which will be highly entertaining as well as instructive.

BUSINESS BASIS BETTER.

Liquidation Not Complete in Retail Prices, Labor, and Rail Rates

Stock, Bond and Grain Quotations.

FARMER SHOULD HOLD WHEAT

The success of the business man and farmer depends largely upon his ability to interpret market conditions. This department makes no pretensions of being able to foretell the short time fluctuations in the prices of commodities or securities. It is not to be used as a "tip sheet" for the trading in grains, cotton or securities.

We are trying to reach the producers and keep them informed as to the trend in general business conditions, the supplies of commodities on hand, and the values of securities.

In the past two years the country has been going through a period of readjustment. The change started slowly in 1919 and gradually increased in momentum until culminated in a period of severe depression in the latter part of 1920 and the first part of 1921. The farmer has seen the price of cash wheat drop from $3.50 a bushel in December of 1919 to about $1.10 at present. Corn has fluctuated from between $2.10 to $2.40 a bushel since 1920 cotton declined from $3.18 to 10¢ in the early part of 1921. Within the last few weeks it has advanced until December cotton now sells around 21¢ per pound.

In October of 1919 a selected list of twenty industries sold on an average of $114. In June of 1921 the same list averaged $64 a share. In October of 1920 the average price of twenty railroad stocks was about $83 per share. In June of 1921 these same stocks averaged $67 a share. In the December of 1919 Bradstreet's average of commodity prices registered nearly $21 while in the early part of June 1921 they had declined to about $10.50.

Business conditions are not at the moment. Signs of the improving times are evidenced in a number of ways:

The Federal Reserve ratio reserve to notes and deposits a year ago was about 34.6%. Today it is about 19%. A year ago the discount rate on prime commercial paper was 8%. Today it is less than 4%. Call money a year ago on the New York Cotton Exchange was between 3 1/2% and 4%. Today it is between 2% and 2 1/2%. These facts denote the easing of the credit strain and indicate that a period of constructive development is approaching.

The money and credit conditions in Germany and central Europe, our Mexican relations, and the far Eastern situation, are three unfavorable foreign factors that tend to retard our rapid and complete return to normalcy.

In our domestic relations, aside from some fields where liquidation has not been complete, we have still unsettled the questions of tariff and taxes.

The farmer, manufacturer, and wholesaler, have taken their losses. The farmer has seen the price of his commodities decline from the high war level until they are now, considering the purchasing power of money, selling even below the pre-war standards. The manufacturer and wholesaler have written off their inventory losses and have cut their operating expenses to the quick, and in many cases have for some time operated at a loss.

Skilled and semi-skilled labor have been slow to accept lower compensation. Transportation rates are still out of line with the general movement of retrenchment, but there are signs of lowering operating costs and rate reductions.

In the past few weeks bond prices have taken a sharp upward turn. Fourth 4 1/2% Liberty Loans a year ago were selling under 85. Today the closing quotation was over 92. Six months long term bonds of European countries like France, Belgium, Scandinavian countries like Sweden, and were selling in America on a 1 1/2% to 1 3/4% basis. Today those same bonds are quoted on a 1 1/2% to 1 3/4% basis.

Bonds usually decline in value at the beginning of a business depression and increase in price when a definite upward turning point has been reached. This point has now appeared. We believe from now on the tendency will be for well selected bonds, especially long term issues, and high grade, well seasoned, preferred stocks of established concerns to gradually increase in price.

The trend of market values is indicated by the prices of the representative stocks amongst the industrial and railroad groups. There are about twenty common stocks of the major industrial and fifteen railroads whose price fluctuations usually characterize the trend of the market. Each week we shall give the closing price of each of these stocks with the closing price of the preceding week and the high and low for the year. For those who are interested in the earning power of the securities as investments we give the annual return on the price of the last sale. This figure is shown to the left of the list under the heading "Percent on Last Sale".

LEGION NOTES

The Bayern, first German liner to enter New York harbor in 7 years, docked within 100 yards of the office of the American Legion's national commander there, but the Legion took no part in the official welcome which New York's mayor extended. It was reported that Herr Captain Oscar Schwamberger of the Bayern commanded a German U-boat during the war of 1914-18, but a Legion representative's effort to board the ship to confirm the report met with no success.

Marshal Foch will not come to America to be officially heard at the once in Washington, Paris dispatches are pointing out, although he will let his views on armament be known. The marshal's visit is a private one, it is being carefully explained, in response to the invitation of the American Legion to attend its convention. Premier Briand will head the French delegation to the conference, sailing Oct. 29th, a week after Marshal Foch.

In the Missouri state convention of the American Legion, it was announced that a resolution concerning Grover C. Bergdoll, draft deserter, was about to be introduced. As a member rose to read it, another shouted: "I move its adoption." A roar of approval came from the assembled delegates and it was unanimously adopted without having been read.

Several thousand longshoremen who struck and tied up shipping on the Hoboken, N. J., waterfront, returned to work long enough to unload the army transport Wheaton with 2,624 soldier dead on board, allowing American Legion posts to hold funeral services. The strikers, many of whom were ex-service men, declared they would take care of the bodies of their dead comrades despite the wage controversy and added: "We'd do it free if necessary."

The bodies of four unidentified soldiers, one from each of the four prominent American cemeteries in France, will be assembled at Chalons-sur-Marne and a non-commissioned officer of the American army in Germany will select one of them for return to the United States and interment in Arlington. An honor guard, General Allen of the army of occupation, and a delegation from the Paris post of the American Legion will accompany the body to Havre, at which port it will be placed on the battleship Olympia, which sails Oct. 25 for the United States.

With the entire nation paused at noon in two minutes of silent prayer, American Legion service men of the world war from each State and territory will do homage to the unknown American soldier at Arlington national cemetery on Armistice Day. Medal of honor men also have been designated by the government as official mourners. Honorary pallbearers will be eight generals of the army and four admirals of the navy, with non-commissioned and petty officers as body bearers. President Harding will deliver the funeral oration.

"The teacher will be hanged, the books burned. Hurrah for vacation." Wherein the sentiments of school kids the world over are spoken by a French urchin, Marcel Sevel, who writes to his several hundred foster fathers, members of the Evanston, Ill., post of the American Legion. The boy, constant friend of the doughboys during their stay in France, was adopted by them and now is supported by the Legion post.

FEEDING PLANS MADE NOW INSURE MORE WINTER EGGS

Despite the fact that winter is still some distance in the future it is not too early for poultrymen to begin preparations now for careful feeding of the flock in order to increase egg production during that season, poultry specialists say. The purchase of feeds and the planning and mixing of rations within the next few weeks will make it possible to give the hens a winter egg-producing ration early in November and thus give them an early start toward keeping the egg basket full during the cold months of the year. Approximately three-fourths of the Kentucky hens do not produce the maximum number of eggs largely because they are improperly fed during the winter, poultrymen at the College of Agriculture say.

Feeding suggestions made in Circular No. 66 issued by the extension division of the College call attention to the fact that a ration will fit all conditions found on the average farm. The cheapness and availability of the feeds should be considered, the publication states. Ready-mixed poultry mash is satisfactory and if readily available and not too high priced may be used with good results. If corn and corn meal are the only available feeds a dry mash of three parts of corn meal and two parts of meat scraps or tankage should be fed with the whole or cracked corn. In this case the birds should be made to consume twice as much grain by weight. Buttermilk or sour skim-milk if available may replace the mash entirely in the laying ration. One gallon of either of these is sufficient for 40 hens a day, the poultrymen say.

A grain ration which has given good results at the college farm is composed of 40 pounds or 24 quarts of cracked corn, 20 pounds or 12 quarts of oats and 40 pounds or 24 quarts of wheat. Another is made up of 70 pounds or 42 quarts of cracked corn and 30 pounds or 18 quarts of oats.

A mash composed of 200 pounds of shipstuf which is a mill run wheat feed, 100 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of ground oats and 100 pounds of ground wheat or tankage has been found to be a good one to feed with either of the grain rations suggested. Another is composed of 250 pounds of shipstuf, 150 pounds of corn meal and 100 pounds of meat scrap while a third may be made of 400 pounds of shipstuf and 100 lbs. of tankage or meat scrap. This last one is coarser than the first and is not eaten as readily by the birds.

SODA IN WATER KEEPS POTS AND PANS BRIGHT

Washing pots and pans after each time they are used in hot, soapy water containing a small amount of washing soda is perhaps the best means of keeping the kitchen utensils clean and slightly, home economics specialists at the College of Agriculture say. One pound of washing soda to four quarts of water makes a solution of the right strength to add to the wash water. Where it is necessary to scour the metal of the utensils it is said that with the least wear on the metal. The acids of such common foods as rhubarb, tomatoes, lemons or oranges will often remove discolorations. Rinsing the utensils with boiling water and drying them thoroughly before they are put away, also, is helpful in keeping them clean and bright, the specialists say.

Whiting moistened with any food acid such as those mentioned is good for aluminum. Washing soda should not be used on utensils made of this material since the alkali which it contains darkens the metal. A weak soda solution often will remove grease from brass while whiting and a dilute acid will remove tarnish. Brass may be polished with rotten stone and sweet oil and dried with soft cloth. Copper may be cleaned in the same way.

Kerosene will remove rust and grease from iron. Boiling utensils of this kind in a strong solution of washing soda also will remove rust. In some cases a strong abrasive such as emery may be necessary in order to remove all the rust. Too much scrubbing with harsh substances soon wears off nickel plate, the specialists say. Daily care with hot soap and water prevents tarnish while a polish may be obtained by using whiting moistened with ammonia.

Badly discolored tin may be freshened by boiling it a few minutes in a strong solution of soda and water. The tinware should be removed immediately after the boiling is completed and washed, rinsed and dried. Kerosene is the best cleanser agent for porcelain since abrasives used on this kind of material remove the glaze. Iron rust may be removed with dilute hydrochloric acid. Porcelain should be washed and rinsed thoroughly after the acid has been used. Better results can be obtained in making coffee and tea if the pots used for this purpose are thoroughly scalded, dried and aired before being put away, the specialists say.

There are a great many people who never consider themselves hard up as long as they can borrow money.

The encyclopedia says that ivory comes mostly from Africa, but the popular impression is that great quantities have always been found

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY OCTOBER 20, 1921

$1.50 Per Year

No. 3

Many people seem to feel that educational progress is a matter principally of equipment and text books and new methods and all that. Yet there are certain forces affecting school work very intimately, that are never touched by any mere change of methods and systems.

The success of a school depends primarily on the extent to which the children take hold and work and support the discipline. If the pupils are rebellious or careless or inattentive there is a dead weight of hostility and indifference against which the best teacher is almost helpless.

The attitude of the children is modified by the attitude which the homes maintain toward the school. Many children if they are corrected or reproved, will bring word to their parents that the teacher is "down on them."

Even if the teacher may be partly responsible for wrong conditions, the situation is made worse by permitting the children to lose respect for the authority over them.

Parents can help their children a great deal by urging them to obey the rules, to work hard to get their lessons, and to enter into the spirit of enthusiasm which each school room should manifest. When children are encouraged to take that attitude, they are apt to fall in with the desires of the teacher and a spirit of work and co-operation pervades the room that promotes good results. But if the parents encourage the children in an attitude of opposition or criticism, a feeling of sullen discontent gets root in a room. It spreads from one to another, and soon it proves almost impossible to arouse any spirit of work or emulation.

A real wintry touch was visible to early risers last Thursday and Friday mornings. A heavy frost coated the ground and rooftops, and gave out the appearance of snow, while the thermometer was down to below freezing point. The chilly breeze of the early hours was penetrating, almost biting cold, ice as thick as a window pane was visible Thursday morning. Garden truck was all killed, and now that frost is on the pumpkin vine, and fiddle is in the shock, the idea of business, the coal man has the block.

Col. Z. T. Pettit and granddaughter, Miss Lillian Kelton, of Morning View, spent from Sunday until Tuesday with the family of Archie Ammerman, near town. Col. Pettit paid our office a pleasant call and renewed his subscription for another year. He said that everything was running just right for him, and the only kick he had coming was that he was lonesome. You can guess at the rest.—Falmouth Outlook.

L. H. Sprague for many years a citizen of Taylorsport neighborhood, but now residing on a farm near Lawrenceburg, Ind., sends us $1.50 for another year's subscription so as to keep posted as to what his friends and neighbors are doing back in his old home county. Mr. Sprague is getting along nicely in the Hoosier State, but he still has a keen interest in the land that gave him birth.

Mr. G. J. Allen, one of our good friends of long standing of Point Pleasant neighborhood, was a pleasant caller at our office, last Friday. Mr. Allen has been a member of our reading circle many years, and we hope that he and his good wife may enjoy many more years of health and happiness.

"Tanlax made me feel younger." "It put me back on the payroll." "I can eat whatever I want now." "I no longer suffer from indigestion." "I gained weight rapidly." These and many more expressions are heard daily as people tell of their experience with Tanlax. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

There may be 3,000,000 men out of work in this country, but we venture the assertion that all of this vast army are not looking for work and half of them would refuse to accept a job if it was offered them.

After voting for smart talkers for public office, in preference to men who have made good in business, many people are unable to see why so many things have gone wrong in this country.

L. R. McNelly has purchased of Dr. Yelton the residence that he has just completed just east of town. We welcome Mr. McNelly and his good wife as permanent citizens of our town.

The heavy frosts of the latter part of last week have put a tint on the foliage of the trees, the like of which no artists brush could duplicate.

Columbus Day was observed by both of the local banks.

JOSEPH FOSTER REED

Well Known Citizen Has Answered The Summons and Gone to His Eternal Home.

The remains of Joseph Foster Reed, aged 75 years, 7 months and 10 days, a former resident of Burlington, who died at the home of Mr. Orville West, in Walton, where he made his home, last Saturday at 6:30 a. m., after an illness of about two weeks duration of bowel trouble, were brought to Burlington last Sunday afternoon and laid to rest in the family burying ground in Odd-Fellows cemetery, by the side of his parents and one sister, who preceded him to the grave many years ago.

Joseph Reed was a son of William T. and Charlotte Buchanan Reed, and was born in Burlington, in the house now owned and occupied by N. E. Riddell, March 5th, 1846, died October 15, 1921. He made his home in Walton for the past twenty years or more.

He was a bachelor, and being of a kind and friendly disposition made friends with all who knew him, which was attested to by the large crowd which attended the services at the residence of Mr. John Starnes, in Walton, at 1 p. m., Sunday, held by the Masonic Lodge of which he was a member.

A short funeral service was held at the grave, conducted by Rev. Bedinger, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, after which the remains were consigned to their last resting place on earth.

He leaves three sisters, Mrs. J. Q. Elstun and Mrs. Charlotte Davrainville, of San Antonio, Texas, and Mrs. F. A. Hall, of Burlington, and a number of nephews and nieces. Mesdames Elstun and Hall were at his bedside when he died.

The pall-bearers were composed of members of Walton Lodge, Undertaker C. Scott Chambers of Walton, had charge of the funeral.

Card of Thanks.—It is with sentiments of deep gratitude that we desire to express our sincere thanks to the good people of Walton for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our beloved brother, Joseph Reed.

Mrs. J. Q. Elstun,
Mrs. F. A. Hall.

The Trouble With Congress.

From all over the country come loud complaints of the inaction of Congress. Our legislators were summoned in extra session back in April to give the people relief from heavy taxation and to handle other difficult problems out of the war. But up to date they have not accomplished anything of importance.

The trouble is essentially that the congressmen are inclined to look at things from the standpoint of their own districts. Comparatively few of them are big enough to see the good of the country as a whole. Consequently the different factions and sections get to fighting each other and nothing is accomplished.

This condition is not new or confined to the present Congress. But the difference is that under strong leadership, all these representatives of small interests and local points of view, can be led by those with intelligent vision, to get together and act as a unit for the benefit of the country as a whole.

That is what happened when President Wilson was first elected. A strong and achieving group of men provided the leadership that Congress needed. They secured uniform and harmonious action, and passed the federal reserve act and many other useful laws. The success of an administration depends upon whether it can provide this strong and wise leadership that shall unite all interests and get useful things done.

That is what the present Congress has been lacking. It has wasted six months fooling over a tariff bill which the country emphatically did not want, and at a time when the country did demand relief from taxation. President Harding and his Cabinet were not in a position to interfere, because they had criticized President Wilson for such leadership or dictation as they chose to call it. Consequently Congress has drifted where it would have acted, and the country suffers from its delay.

Will Kill Handbook Betting.

If the law recently passed the House of Representatives in Washington prohibiting the transmission through the mails of newspapers carrying betting odds on horse races, prize-fights and other contests of speed or strength, is passed by the Senate it will have the effect of putting a majority of handbooks out of business. The handbook men, according to reports, get race results and track odds by telegraph, but they wait for certain publications that specialize in race track news, and which carry the official betting odds, to arrive before paying off bets. This law, it is said, will prevent the handbook men from getting such news and in this way many will be forced to suspend.

NOTICE

There will be meeting of the Milk Producers Association at Florence Saturday night October 22nd, 1921, and business of the greatest importance will come before this meeting.

A report from the meeting that is to be held in Turner Hall, Cincinnati, October 21st will be presented to this meeting. Do not fail to be present at this meeting. Make your business engagements so that you will be in Florence next Saturday night to attend this meeting.

CLEM KENDALL,
Secretary.

The problem of Getting Work

The man who is looking for a job frequently queers his own chances needlessly. It is a depressing experience for a man to be idle, and in the majority of cases why? and in the majority of cases it reflects itself in his personal appearance. A great many men however have gone through with this experience, have kept a stiff upper lip, and have gone on to success. The time when a man looking for work is the time when above all others he needs to look out for his personal appearance.

He should be careful to shave every day. His clothes may be seedy and threadbare. But if he brushes and sponges and presses them, they will look pretty well. Shoe blacking does not cost much. He has abundant time to spare on caring for himself. A good appearance suggests that he is able to meet difficulties and that he has ambition, which improves his chances of getting a job.

A man who looks down and out may command sympathy, but employers feel that he has lost his nerve and is not capable of doing efficient work. It takes some resolution, when a man is depressed by ill success to keep up his appearance, but a great many men have proved that it can be done.

The man who is out of work ought to take the opportunity to prepare himself better for his job. He can usually find some book or trade paper giving him better information about his trade or calling, so that when he does get a chance he can show more intelligence and initiative. Those who have developed superior ability will be kept on next time there is a lay-off.

ARMISTICE DAY

Will Be Celebrated at Florence Fair Grounds.

The third anniversary of the signing of the Armistice is fast approaching and we must prepare to make it the greatest day in American Legion work. This one day belongs to the service men of the World War and it is the plan of Boone Post No. 4, to hold the biggest celebration of the year at Florence Fair Grounds.

While the program has not been completed, the present plan includes the following: Brass band; address by a speaker of note; contests; best drilled squad; execution of the manual of arms, parade to be given the winners; prizes, to include veterans of former wars and all ex-service men.

All ex-service men are urged to attend these exercises and to appear in uniform. We especially invite all veterans of former wars to be with us on this occasion.

The public is cordially invited to attend these exercises and assist us in making Armistice Day a great day of celebration and dedication for the cause of Americanism.

R. T. McGLASSON,
Post Commander.

APPROVED OF THE PLAN

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Kentucky Farmers' Union, held at Lexington, last week, gave its unqualified approval to the proposed marketing plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, and agreed to put its twelve organizers into the field to aid in the work of signing up the 1921 tobacco crop in time to share in the provisions of the contract.

A Mammoth Sweet Potato.

The foundation for the new residence to be erected by Dr. Yelton, opposite the Boone Co. Hi School, in being put in. In excavating for the basement, after going down four feet, the doctor says, "the workmen never got thru the rich soil." And to further prove the fertility and richness of the soil, he is telling the following: "A man while plowing up this year's sweet potato patch had his team stalled, a tractor was being used to pull the plow, but this was unable to move the supposed stump. Sending to the house for picks and shovels, they dug down and found that it was a mammoth sweet potato that was causing all the trouble."

Many persons are not so much concerned about the sufferings of the Prussians from hunger, as of those of the Americans from thirst.

BENJAMIN WILSON

Another of the County's Good Citizens Gone to His Reward.

Benjamin Wilson, one of the oldest citizens residing in the Rabbit Hash neighborhood, died at his home Sunday morning, October 16, 1921. He was 77 years of age June 25th, last. He had been in poor health for some time and had a stroke of apoplexy Friday Oct. 7th.

He married Laura Manly March 21st, 1867, and to this union two children were born, Jerome and Alice, who is now the wife of Albert (Clare). He lived an honorable upright and industrious life which is an example for the younger generation to follow. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father and trying at all times to make life more enjoyable for those about him. He operated the Rabbit Hash and Rising Sun ferry for a number of years and retired on account of failing health. Since his retirement no one has been found to operate that ferry with the same satisfaction.

His traveling public as Mr. Wilson. He was a member of the K. of P. Lodge at Rabbit Hash and held the responsible position of Finance officer in that lodge for 20 years and then retired only when on account of failing eye sight, he could not perform the duties of that office. He was one of a family of thirteen children and has seven living brothers. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock by the members of Rabbit Hash K. of P. Lodge and his remains were laid to rest in the old family burying ground near Rabbit Hash. No one ever heard him speak an unkind word of any one, and he was respected by all who knew him. He is survived by his widow, children and brothers and numerous relatives and friends.

BOONE COUNTY GOES TO RISING SUN FAIR.

Boone countyans were on the job at the Rising Sun Fair Saturday the 15th, winning the ribbons in competition with Indianians. Compared with the number of entries made the Boone county exhibitors had a long lead in winning percentage. Hubert Ryle & Son won four firsts and 3rd on both sides.

Hubert Ryle and Co., won first on Jersey bull.

J. Colin Kelly and Son won 2 firsts and one second on Poland China hogs; one first, 2 seconds and two thirds on Shropshire sheep.

Harry Ada was a winner in the vegetable department.

Mrs. Ada Wilson won two firsts and two seconds on cakes and four firsts and two seconds on canned fruits.

Mrs. J. Colin Kelly won first on Anconas and first on Bronze turkeys.

Thos. E. Kennedy Dead.

Thos. E. Kennedy, aged 64 years, died at his home in Cincinnati, one day last week. He conducted a printer's supply house on Main St., for many years and was known to almost every country newspaper in the Ohio Valley. The Potter press from which the Recorder is printed was bought from and installed by Mr. Kennedy some twenty years ago. He was a gentleman of high business character.

To Help Unemployed.

As a step toward relieving the unemployment situation Representative John W. Lanchey, of Kentucky, chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, recommends that Congress shall proceed to enact the first omnibus bill since the spring of 1913. Such a bill as he has in mind would provide for the construction of new postoffice and Federal court buildings in Kentucky and the other States.

A False Alarm.

A few days ago a message was received by phone that the residence of Melvin Jones on the Burlington and Florence pike, was on fire, and in just a short time a number of neighbors were ready to start to Mr. Jones' when a message was received that the fire was not there. It had been put out. It was found to be a false alarm and from the smoke that issued in the upper rooms the family thought the fire was under the roof.

FARM BUREAU MEETING.

A Farmers Bureau Meeting was called at Grange Hall Friday night, October 21st. We all need to attend these meetings to get the most good out of the Farm Bureau. Bring along your order for feed.

L. R. BAILLAW,
Director.

EXCEPTION TO RULE.

Alice—You can't get something from nothing. Edith—Can't you? I got a proposal from Algy.

Will Quit the Farm.

J. E. Bradford has a public sale advertised in this issue for Saturday, Oct. 22nd, beginning at 12:30 o'clock p. m., on the Owen Blankenbucker farm, two and one-half miles west of Union. On account of failing health he will quit farming. Mr. Bradford has bought the L. H. Voshell property at Union and will run a hotel, and would be glad to have his friends and the traveling public call on him when in Union.

Will Take Life Easy.

The public sale of C. E. Tanner at his farm on the Price pike and Anderson Ferry Road, last Wednesday, was attended by a good sized crowd, and good prices prevailed—cows sold from $50 to $80; ewes brought $8.25 a head; shoats about 10 cents a pound and other things brought good prices. On account of failing health Mr. Tanner had to quit the farm and expects to locate in some town and take life easy.

Marriages.

STEPHENSON—BROWN

Miss Mary Helen Stephenson, daughter of J. T. Stephenson and wife, of near Limburg, and Mr. Clayton Brown, son of F. H. Brown and wife, of Bellevue, were married at the Baptist Church in Ky., Wednesday October 19th, 1921. They were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Kelly and Robert Youell. After the ceremony they returned to the home of the bride where an elegant wedding supper was served. These young people are graduates of Boone County High School and the courtship began while they were attending school which culminated in their wedding yesterday. The Recorder congratulates and wishes for them a life of happiness and pleasure.

RIE—HOOD

A marriage license was issued last Monday for the marriage of Miss Lizzie Lee Rie, daughter of E. C. and Kate Rie, of Waterloo neighborhood, to Mr. Luther C. Hood, son of Richard and Helen Hood. They were married by Rev. Baker. A long, happy and prosperous life is the wish of all their friends.

RUNYAN—FAIRBANKS

Miss Katie Runyan, of Erlanger, and Mr. Chas. Fairbanks, were married by the Rev. Jno. Herget, last Thursday, and left for a trip to California. Miss Runyan resided in Burlington until about five years ago when she moved to Erlanger. She has been employed by the Citizens Telephone Co. The Recorder wishes them a long and happy life.

TWO BADLY WRECKED AUTOS

Walter Huey and Mount Slayback Had Collision on Dixie Highway near Erlanger

Walter Huey had his automobile considerably damaged last Sunday night. He was on the Dixie Highway near Erlanger, when Mont Slayback driving a Ford ran broad-side into Huey's machine tearing off one fender and badly damaging the running board and body of the machine. Slayback's auto was damaged to a greater extent than Huey's. Huey had run his machine partly off of the concrete to avoid the collision. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured.

Base Ball.

Zimmers All-Stars defeated the Ryle-Gordon All-Stars at Hobson last Saturday afternoon. The score was 9 to 2 in favor of Zimmers' aggregation. Huey who was to have pitched the game for the Gordon-Ryle team was crippled and could not play and York was put in to pitch in his place. Black, the speed king of Boone county did the tricking for Zimmers' club—pitching the last two games for his team in this series and winning out in both. York pitched a splendid game but there were numerous errors made. York struck out 16 men.

Quite a number of Boone county citizens attended the ball game between North Bend and Adlyston, at North Bend, Sunday afternoon. The score was 1 to 0 in Innings in favor of North Bend. Cannon Ball York of Taylorsport, this county, pitched for Adlyston.

VOLUNTEER YOUR HELP.

NINE BLUE GRASS COUNTIES GO OVER TOP

With nine of the largest of the counties in the burley tobacco district over the top, having already signed 75 per cent or more of their tobacco crops, and 45 others within "striking distance" of the goal, some of them above seventy-five per cent, there is to be no let up in the campaign to obtain the signatures of tobacco growers to the marketing plan of the Burley Tobacco Cooperative Association.

Fleming county went over the top Friday, it was reported at headquarters in Lexington.

The counties which have signed 75 per cent or more of their crops are Fayette, Bourbon, Woodford, Lincoln, Montgomery, Bath, Carroll, Fleming and Nicholas. The counties near the 75 per cent quota include the big burley producing counties of Scott, Mercer, Boyle, Madison, Shelby, Clark, Jessamine, Grant, Garrard, Boone and others.

Burlington, Ky.

Oct. 17, 1921.

More than 30,000 farmers grow tobacco in five States of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee and West Virginia. The bulk of it being grown in Kentucky. Have you ever stopped to think of the stupendous task of seeing all these men in a short time? And then get them to sign their contracts to market their tobacco cooperatively. Yet this is the task that the progressive men in your precinct are asked to do. A great many growers must not only be seen once, but once, twice, three, and even four times. This should not be. It is strange that men must be begged to do that which offers them relief from an unsatisfactory condition, and knowing too, that the only way they can ever hope to get better returns for their labor, which will mean better homes, better financial conditions for their wives and children, is the improvement of marketing methods.

Do they know that the War Finance Corporation has $1,000,000,000 with which to help them, but cannot until they get into a strong organization. They have already financed no less than eight Co-operative Marketing Association in amounts from 4 to 40 millions and they are ready to finance yours as yet second best marketing product on their list, cotton to help them, but there are twenty-eight men in the work in Boone county. We need volunteers. There should be more in every precinct, men who are willing to lay their private affairs aside for a few days, and work for the good of their community. Charge these men with work, a permanent investment. It will pay the biggest dividends of any investment you ever made.

C. O. HEMPLEING, County Chairman.

SCARED AWAY

Were Robbers Who Attempted to Rob Store at Walton--Escape in Auto.

The report reached Burlington, last Sunday, that three robbers, caught in store at Walton, last Friday night, made their escape in an auto after a revolver battle with E. M. Johnson, night patrolman. It is said that a bullet fired from the robbers' guns passed through the policeman's clothing. He believes one of his bullets struck one of the robbers.

Johnson found a light in the store, and when he started in to investigate a man, seated in an auto outside, sounded the horn. At this signal two men ran from the store, rolled in the auto and drove away. They shot at the patrolman as they departed. Nothing was taken from the store. The machine with the robbers was driven toward Lexington. Mr. Johnson believing that one of his bullets struck one of the robbers and asked that watch be kept by Kentucky authorities for a wounded man.

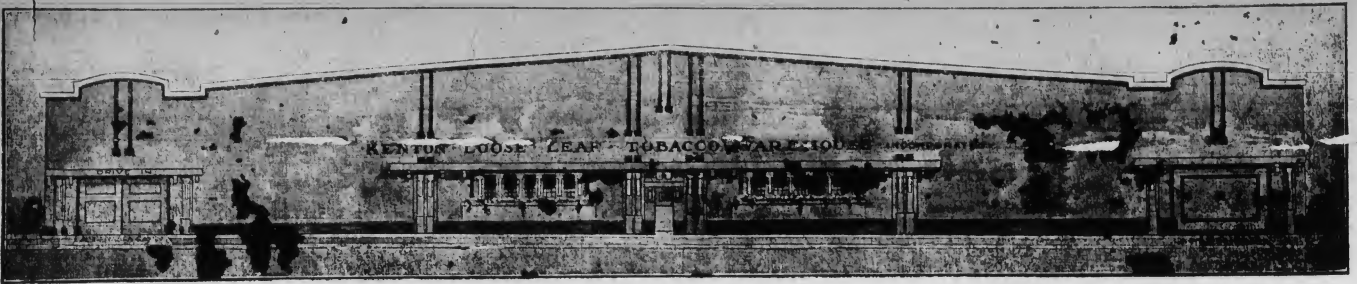

WILL BE VERY GOOD

While there will be no large tobacco crop in Boone county this year, the quality will be very good and the outlook is gratifying to the growers. The weather is favoring the growers and all the crop has practically been cut and housed, so there will be very little frost bitten leaf this year, if any. An estimate places this year's crop at about fifty per cent of last year's crop.

WILL HOLD MEETING.

Rev. Thomas Chapman, State Superintendent of Universalist churches, will preach at Burlington Universalist church at night, beginning Thursday, Oct. 27th and continuing until the following Sunday night. At Sunday morning.

President Harding has saved a third out of his travel fund, but need not feel it necessary to tap in the freight car caboose.

Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse

WILL BE OPEN TO RECEIVE TOBACCO, DECEMBER 8th, 1921

First Sale Will Be December 12th, 1921

We Have Assurance that all Large Manufacturers' Buyers will be Present.

Deliver your tobacco to the Warehouse on the sticks, and as near as possible with but one grade on a stick. Tobacco can be unloaded more rapidly delivered this way. Time saved saves money to the grower exactly as it will to the warehousemen, and insures uniform packing on baskets.

Please do not haul any tobacco showing Uncured or Fat Stems--Such Tobacco Cannot be Handled by Steam Dryers, consequently wet or fat stemmed tobacco must be neglected in the bidding.

STATE OFFICES STAY IN BUDGET

Burned Confederate Home Is Only Exception in First Year Under System.

$714,071 SURPLUS SHOWN

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 12.—For the first year under the budget system ending June 30, 1921, Kentucky's revenues totaled $16,222,062.22, and it expended $15,507,990.94, leaving a surplus of $714,071.28 to be applied to the floating debt. Every department excepting the Confederate Home, stayed within the budget and it was allowed to create a deficit to meet the emergency caused by the fire.

At the close of business June 30, 1921, the outstanding interest-bearing warrants amounted to $5,312,438.77, which was $1,117,982.58 more than the corresponding date in 1920, but the treasury balance was $2,291,062.06, or $1,822,816.01 more than June, 1921. The difference between the increase in the treasury balance and the increase in the floating debt, $674,833.43 plus $39,237.85 paid into the sinking fund to cover an existing deficit, amounted to $714,071.28. The State paid out during the year in interest on the floating debt for warrants, not called in for redemption by the treasurer, $172,170.01.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Fowler Lodge, I. O. O. F., Union, Ky.

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty in his infinite wisdom to remove from our midst our Brother, Friend and neighbor J. D. Woolery. Whereas, it is our custom and duty to publicly express our feelings as regards such occurrences.

Therefore, Be it resolved that this Lodge deeply regrets the passing of a true and faithful member, the community an honest, upright citizen and the citizenship a Christian friend.

Resolved, This resolution be published in the Boone County Recorder. It also be entered on the records of this Lodge and a copy be sent to his widow.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Hall of Burlington Lodge, No. 264, F. & A. M.

Burlington, Ky.
Oct. 15, 1921.

Whereas, It hath pleased the Grand Master of the Universe to call from labor to refreshments our brother, William L. Riddell, who departed this life on the 19th day of June, 1921.

Therefore Be It Resolved: That in the death of brother Riddell, Burlington Lodge No. 264 F. & A. M., has lost a most faithful and exemplary member who stood ever ready to assist and elevate the teachings of the order in every way possible; that his wife and family a most devoted husband and relative, and the community at large a most highly respected and useful citizen.

Be It Further Resolved, that this lodge extend to the wife and relatives of brother Riddell our sincerest sympathy in their sad bereavement; and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge, and a copy thereof be sent to the widow of brother Riddell.

NOTES OF CIVIC PROGRESS.

Here are some things that business men's organizations are doing in various cities:

Collecting photographs of the home town is a new sport, for civic advertising purposes. Amateurs and others who take pictures, are asked to bring in any local scenes that seem particularly interesting, and have artistic value that would illustrate the city and make it seem beautiful to strangers. Then a collection of the best of these glimpses of the city life is made, and used in advertising folders. Or a group of them is often made into a cut and used on the stationery of business houses.

The power of a chamber of commerce to arouse sentiment in behalf of a good educational cause has been shown at Nyack, N. Y. On three different occasions the board of education tried to get support for a plan for domestic science and manual training in the schools. But the taxpayers turned it down each time. Later the chamber of commerce was organized, and when they took hold and helped the school authorities, the proposition went thru with a whoop.

The Great Falls, Montana, Commercial Club makes a specialty of extending hospitality to visitors. One idea is to give a printed invitation to each hotel guest in the city offering him any information he may desire about the community.

The Ottawa, Iowa, Chamber of Commerce, is working to have its people realize all their home community is doing. It is running an advertising campaign, and it is holding this fall an Ottawa day, when factories will be open for inspection, the products of the town will be given prominent place in the stores, and the city's contributions to the state and nation will be emphasized. The people of most cities do not fully realize what a fine product is being turned out in their own community.

HENS FOR BREEDING.

BEST SELECTED NOW

With the culling season almost over and the looper hens removed from the flock the next important thing for poultry raisers of the state to do in order to increase the profits from their flocks is to select the hens that are to be kept for breeders, poultry specialists say. This is the logical time of the year to select the breeders, according to J. R. Smyth, field agent in poultry from the College of Agriculture, since it is possible to distinguish them now by following the culling method whereas in the spring all birds in the flock will look alike. The hens that are laying now are the ones to keep as breeders because experience has shown that they are the heavy layers, the specialists say.

It is important that the hens to be used as breeders have large capacity which is indicated by a broad back and deep body together with high vitality which is indicated by the conformation of the birds. The back of the desirable breeder should carry its width back to the tail while the depth of the body measured between the ends of the breast and pelvic bones should be at least the width of four fingers when the hen is in laying condition.

General indications of high vitality in hens are a broad, deep head; bright, prominent eye; long, deep body; strong, parallel legs; stylish carriage and an active disposition. These are the points to look for in picking out the birds that are to be kept for breeders, the specialists say. Details of the culling method which also may be used in picking out the breeding flock are contained in Circular No. 101 which may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Members of the Washington county Poultry Association are making plans for one of the most successful years they have ever had, a report from County Agent R. M. Heath states. They recently purchased 10 Barred Plymouth Rock chickens, including six cockerels and four pullets, for $125.

THE CHILL THAT PRETENSE CAUSES

(By Winifred Black.)

"There," said the hairdresser, "I'm worn to a frazzle. The Pretty Woman came in to have her hair marcelled and it won't marcel because she'd been taking saltwater baths, and she blamed me for it. And the woman with this hair came in to get me to make it look as if she were one of the Seven Sutherland Sisters. I tried my best to do it, but I don't think she was satisfied. And the woman who's been having her hair dyed with henna for two years came in to complain because its turning purple. I told her when she began to dye it that way that it would. She says I didn't but I did. I always do."

"I knew this was going to be hoodoo day. It's always unlucky when I have to dress the hair of a dead woman, and this time I had to dye it, too—yellow—yes, that was the color—yes, her hair was white. Sweet woman she was, too—lots of friends. They'll all be at the funeral. I suppose that's what her daughters were thinking of when they had it dyed, but—ugh—it gives me the creeps even yet."

I had been intending to have my hair shampooed, but somehow I changed my mind. I wanted to go home and think about the woman whose hair was dyed in her coffin. Who could she have been? What sort of a woman? Why did they want to do it?

I've heard of things that would make the dead. I thought vanity died with the human heart. But it doesn't, it seems.

I became interested in the subject and made inquiries, and I find that it is quite the usual thing for undertakers to paint the faces of women who will never paint their own again. Men, too—they paint. What for, I can't help wondering. What for?

When Make-Believe Goes.

The longer I live the longer I want to live. I don't it so with you? Life gets fuller and richer and more possible and delightful the more we learn "how to live it. Things that would have worried me to death five years ago I pass over with a smile today. I've learned how I wouldn't go back to foolish, wild-headed, desperate youth for anything in the world—no! If a fairy god-mother out of the sky said to me that I could ever wish to be suddenly appear and give me anything I wished for—even the age of 18. But one thing I have always thought, and that was, that death would somehow be a kind of relief in so many of the little things of life.

No more pretenses, no more make-believe, no more trillidies, no more stretching of the truth, no more downing and ruffling of the garments of fact. Oh, we all do it, one way or the other. We have to. It's part of the science of living—rest, quiet, reality, at last.

But now there's no reality—even in the coffin.

Did she really want to have her hair dyed, the poor thing who is gone? Was she a great beauty once, I wonder, and did she clutch desperately at the remnants of what had once made life charming to her?

Or was she some poor, plain, creature who had but one beauty in her youth, her golden hair, and was there some man she wanted to fool, even beyond the brink of the grave?

Will he come and lay a rose upon the green grass above her heart, because her hair was yellow when she was buried? Was that what she was hoping for—poor, foolish thing?

Every One Recognizes Pretense

Are they never natural, even when they are absolutely alone with death, these painted, dyed, bleached pretenses that we call women? Do they play the part so long that they believe in it themselves?

Bright eyes, a cheek of rose, soft hair and silken, white hands, a voice of silver—will they count with us when we have left this earth, I wonder?

Oh, if I could teach a child of mine but one word and one idea, word and that idea should be reality. Reality, reality, reality! I'd ring it in the heart and in the brain like a bell till every drop of blood in all the veins would chime in tune and time. Reality, reality, reality, reality! It's the only thing that counts anywhere, any time, any how.

The poor painted thing in the coffin—where was the real woman when those who knew her once stopped and looked their sneering and amused last upon her make-believe?

I know a woman who has pretended to be good so long that she thinks she is, and every one who knows her knows her for a mean-spirited, calculating, cold-hearted schemer.

I know a man who makes himself believe that he is not only just, but generous; not only shrewd, but wise; not only notorious, but famous. And his very office boy laughs at him when his back is turned, and not one of those who fawn upon him for what they hope to get out of him by some hook or crook but would betray him in an instant if they dared.

Dyed hair in the coffin, hypocrisy in age, pretence when all need for pretence is gone—what a chill they bring to the human heart.

Another step in the direction of disarmament has been accomplished by the widowers who have persuaded the women folk to wear their sharp features pointed directly up in the air.

POULTRY PESTS ARE MOST SERIOUS IN FALL SEASON

At this season of the year nothing retards the development of poultry more rapidly than lice and mites, according to poultry specialists at the College of Agriculture. The body lice found on poultry can be readily controlled by rubbing a piece of blue ointment the size of a navy bean on the skin of the fowl about an inch below the vent. The specialists say. Care should be taken to see that the rooster is not overlooked for one male bird which retains these pests can reinfest the entire flock in a few days.

Sodium fluoride also may be used to control the lice if a pinch is placed on the skin under each wing, on the neck, on the breast, on each thigh and in the fluff below the vent. The bird should be held upside down and the material placed next to the skin if it is to accomplish the desired results. Cleaning the poultry house and spraying it thoroughly with a five per cent solution of crude oil or stock dip will be helpful in killing the mites that hide in the crevices and cracks. Therosts should be painted with a full strength solution early in the morning so that they will be dry by roosting time.

Are the plants allotted for this winter's window box?

They have been showing the "most expensive bull in the world" at county fairs in Southern Ohio. It is a scrub.

Keep the lawn clean of leaves, but don't burn them. Pile them to make humus for next year's garden.

Uncle Ab says: "Sooner or later farmers will learn that they are all part of a large family, and that to hurt one part hurts all."

Farming will be a good business when the farmer gets his full share of the retail money.

Why do they call it a tea wagon when the biggest contribution can make to saving work is carting the used dishes from dining room to kitchen?

FIRST NOTICE

Forming Good Reading Habits.

If parents wish their children to form good reading habits they must first form such habits themselves. And there is no better way to do than to bring into the household a periodical that will be of interest to every member of it; that will supply the best reading for old and young. Among the periodicals of this description The Youth's Companion is unique. Not only does it aim to entertain and inform boys and girls in their teens, as its name suggests, but there is not a page in it that parents can pass over with indifference.

The 52 issues of 1922 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1922.
2. All the remaining issues of 1921.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1922.
4. All for $2.50.
5. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $3.00.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

Every community turns out each year from its public schools a considerable number of young people who have exceptional capacity for directing human activity. They were organizers in their school life in their sports and games and pastimes. They have the magnetic gift of persuasion and can influence other people.

Wherever these young folks go, they will be a power. Any industry they take hold of will grow. If they get interested in community work, any town to which they go will feel the stimulus of their push and enthusiasm.

The business men should watch very carefully the young people who come out of schools. When a young person shows power of leadership, it should be recognized that such a one will be a great asset for any business or community. All possible efforts should be made to find attractive openings for such young people in their home town. If you can give them a fair chance for advancement they will make themselves felt and create a force that in a few years will be potent in promoting the progress of business and the development of our community life.

Over one million pounds of tobacco has been contracted to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association. As the financing of the co-operative plan is assured there should be no question made about signing the contract. The tobacco grower can not injure his condition, but only make a better market for his produce. Sign the contract and give it to your precinct chairman without delay.

In this week's issue you will find that two—Benjamin Wilson, of Rabbit Hash, and Joseph Reed, of Walton, of Boone county's oldest citizens have answered the final summons during the past week. Hardly a week passes into history that the columns of the RECORDER do not record the death of some one of our citizens.

You have heard farmers say "I would not have taken $100 for that horse or cow." It is too late then. A bullet from some hunters gun has killed it. Post your farm in the RECORDER and save all this worry.

It is reported that Mr. R. H. Walker, who resides out on the Bellevue pike, has bought two lots in the new addition, just north of town, and will begin building thereon in a few days.

Have you posted your farm yet? It will not be many days before the hunting season opens. Send in your name with 50 cents to the RECORDER and we will post it for you.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By English Class.)

The basket ball teams journeyed to Petersburg Oct. 7th, accompanied by the faculty and a number of the students as rooters. In spite of a steady rain they played half of each game. The boys score was four to two in favor of B. H. S. The girls score was six to one in favor of Petersburg.

After some delay the arm chairs for the English and History class room came Monday. They are quite an improvement over the ones we have been using.

The Junior Class has lost four of its members because a teacher has been obtained for Hebron High School. They are greatly missed by the students.

The High School boys challenged the Alumni for a game of basket ball this week but the Alumni were afraid to play them.

Miss Jessie Jones, of Florence, joined our number last week. She was given a hearty welcome.

The school has been without drinking water for some time because the water in our cistern has been condemned and a sample of the water sent to Lexington to be analyzed. The report of the analysis has been delayed for some reason.

Julius Smith, of Bellevue, who is attending B. H. S. was out of school one day last week. He went to the city and purchased a new Ford.

John Birkle made a business trip to the city, Thursday.

The Union basket ball teams will play our teams on the B. H. S. court Friday, Oct. 21st. Everybody invited.

The basket ball teams of B. H. S. went to Independence. The boys score was 26 to 5 in favor of Independence. The girls score was 16 to 1 in favor of Independence.

GONE TO GET BIG GAME

Several members of the Boone County Chesterwhite Breeders Association are attending a circuit of Chesterwhite sales in Ohio this week. They are out after big game, and Boone county will soon boast the best Chesterwhites in either the North or the South. You want to watch the progress made by the Chesterwhite breeders when they come out on the show circuit next year.

ZIMMERS ALL-STARS

Manager Zimmer wishes to thank each player of his All-Stars club for their wonderful victory in defeating Gordon All-Star club and winning the championship of Boone Co. He requests the presence of his players to an informal supper at his home Thursday, Oct. 27th at 8 p. m., as reward for their decisive victory.

He also thanks the umpires for the honest and fair treatment and the Editors of our county paper for making this world series of our own a grand success.

BEN ZIMMER

OLD MERCHANT PASSES AWAY.

Alonso Graves Dies at His Home in Erlanger.

Alonso Graves, 83, retired merchant, died at his home in Erlanger, Ky., Sunday. He was for many years president of the board of trustees of the First Christian church in Covington. He had extensive property interests in Covington and was one of the pioneer residents of this country. The funeral was held at 11 a. m., Tuesday, from the residence. The services was in charge of the Rev. Henry Webb, pastor of the First Christian church in Covington.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. William Corry, one sister, Mrs. W. A. Price, and three brothers, Mr. Joseph Graves, of Erlanger, and Messrs. Warren and Ben Graves of Georgetown.

About four hundred impatient "fans" were on the grounds at Hebron Saturday when the managers of the picked teams notified the umpires that they were ready to play ball "Podge" Alloway who called balls and strikes assisted by Hubert Brady on base decisions walked on to the grounds and announced that Black and Frank Berkshire for the Zimmer and Berkshire team and York and Ryle for Gordon & Ryle were the batteries. The Zimmer and Berkshire team had Brady and Finn from Bellevue, Slayback of Burlington, Black of Big Bone, Hogan of Hebron, Mathews, Frank and Robt. Berkshire of Petersburg, Doc Goodridge of Taylorsport, and McKean of Walton, and the Gordon Ryle team was composed of K. Berkshire, Ryle, Clure and Wingate from Bellevue, M. Garnett and H. Walton, of Hebron, Keim and Claude and Milton McWethy of Petersburg, and York of Taylorsport.

The Zimmer and Berkshire club went out in one three order in the first half of the 1st inning, scored one run in the second on hits by Black and Hogan, and one in the 4th on a two batter by Slayback, and a single by Black and another in the 7th on a single by F. Berkshire and McKean, and a muffed ball at 1st and proceeded to cinch the game in the 9th when Hogan led off with a double followed by a single by P. Berkshire, a double by Goodridge and single by Finn which netted four runs. K. Berkshire of the Gordon and Ryle team scored in the 1st inning after reaching 1st on an error followed by a single by Keim and an error on Clure's pop fly. This ended the scoring of this team as Black never allowed more than one man to reach 1st in any one inning after that. The final score standing 7 to 1. Hits off Black 1; off York 12; Struck out by Black 14 by York 12; bases on balls by Black 1; 1st batsman by Black 1; Errors by Zimmer and Berkshire team 11 by Gordon-Ryle team 5.

LEGION NOTES

Marshall Fitch has been voted a member of George Washington Post, the American Legion, Washington, D. C., the first Legion post in the world to receive a charter. The post held that the marshal was eligible because he had commanded American troops in action. A motion to make the Generalism's dues 5,000 centimes was voted down, however.

Another local Chamber of Commerce which will not be in harmony with the national organization's fight against adjusted compensation for ex-service men is that of Auburn, a suburb of Toledo, Ohio. The Chamber of Commerce there has just been organized by members of an American Legion post. Formation of the commercial body was undertaken by the Legion men, they said, purely as "part of our duty to the community."

For the burial of one of their war dead, American Legion men of Marshfield and North Bend, Ore., posts were required to travel seven miles in an open boat and then hike two miles with the casket over a muddy road in a drenching rain. All roads were impassable for the stage which is the sole means of travel.

Use of one of the Shipping Board's wooden "war vessels" tied up at a wharf for more than a year as a home until permanent quarters can be constructed is being sought by Rainier—Noble post of the American Legion, Seattle, Washington.

To make former doughboys feel at home, unique plans were laid for the Nebraska state convention of the American Legion at Fremont. Military police were stationed about the city that the soldiers might have the pleasure of lightly disregarding the red arm bands of one time authority. Officers in Sam Brown belts and shiny puttees were conspicuous, but privates passed them by, cigarette in mouth, with a nod of recognition answering for the old snappy salute. Wooden shoes clattered over cobblestones to bring back memories of French villages and to strengthen the illusion, small boys in street corners pleaded: "Give me one cigarette, please." Signs on tumble-down buildings advertised "Vin Blanc" and "Vin Rouge" and other all but forgotten commodities of the French countryside.

C. B. Baines, general manager of the American Legion Weekly since February, 1920, has submitted his resignation, effective Nov. 12th, to become vice-president and business manager of the Army and Navy Journal.

Construction of two national hard surface highways, one from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the other from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, is urged upon the government in a plan originating in Denver, Colo. The national organization of the American Legion has been asked to endorse and support the proposition, the originators pointing out that it would give work to thousands of unemployed ex-service men.

A strong French heritage of the A. E. F. was responsible for a touching scene during the Oklahoma convention of the American Legion. Pinning a gold medal for service on B. B. Fell, retiring state commander, James A. Ingraham, Cleveland, heard shouts of "Kiss him, kiss him" from 1,100 delegates present. He did—on both cheeks.

Wounded in action and left permanently maimed, John Hansen was only able to do a house-cleaning job found for him by the American Legion employment bureau at St. Paul, Minn. But the buddy behind him in line had been out of work 5 weeks longer than he had, and Hansen surrendered the position to him.

FARMERS TO SHOW VALUE OF BALANCED HOG RATION

Demonstrations to show the value of a balanced ration throughout the year in the economical production of pork will be conducted during the year 1922 by a number of Western Kentucky farmers in cooperation with the extension division of the College of Agriculture and county agents, according to an announcement by Grady Sellards, swine field agent of the college under whose direction the trials will be made. A total of seven demonstrations have already been enrolled in Carlisle, Ballard, McCracken and Livingston counties.

Jan. 1, 1922 the farmers will start feeding a balanced ration composed of tankage and nine parts of corn in growing and fattening pigs. In cases where the animals are to be pushed for early market the ration will be fed in a self-feeder since experiments have shown that pigs fed by a self-feeder make approximately nine per cent faster gains than those which are hand fed. The demonstrations will be continued until the animals are placed on the market and will include the hogging down of corn and soybeans grown together.

H. Eilerman & Sons, Covington, Announce Greatest Sale in a Life-Time

The most Disastrous Conflagration Covington has had in years completely gutted our modern 4-story home at Pike and Madison Ave. on the night of October 5th. The picture shows our building as it is today—the interior completely demolished by fire!

This Sale Is Now In Progress

Entire Salvaged Stock of Men's and Boys' Clothing, Hats and Furnishings Now on Sale--Cost Price Cut No Figure---We Must Get Rid of All stocks--Perfect and Damaged Goods--ALL GO!

F.I.R.E!! That shrieking, piercing yell of FIRE broke the still night air only a few days ago, and in less than one hour our beautiful, modern, up-to-date Home located at Pike and Madison Ave., Covington, was a complete loss! It was a terrific blow! A staggering blow to a business which has prospered for twenty-five years. Yet while our store is, today, a mass of ruins, our SPIRIT and DETERMINATION marches on. TEMPORARY QUARTERS have been obtained. As much of the stocks as possible have been salvaged. Some damaged, some water-soaked, some only smoke hurt. Everything will be sold at 5c, 10c, 15c, on the dollar prices.

—And, in addition—Thousands of Dollars' worth of brand new Winter Overcoats and Suits—on railroad trains come to Covington at the time of the fire—have arrived. These stocks must be sacrificed—we haven't the SPACE nor the TIME to handle them properly. Profit is no object! We must SELL, SELL, SELL! Every penny's worth of Men's and Boys' Clothing, Suits, Overcoats, Mackinaws, Hats, Underwear, Shirts, Neckwear, Collars; in fact, everything whether damaged or not, is in the sale. In many instances a nicker buys a dollar's worth of value. So buy! For never in a lifetime will such an opportunity present itself to you. Come to Covington. Come as soon as you can. Don't delay. Come tomorrow. But COME! Look us up at our temporary location. We'll be glad to see you—and you'll be glad you braved the crowds and attended the sale.

Public Sale

Boone Co. River Bottom Farm

In order to settle the estate of Martha Collins, dec'd I will sell to the highest bidder on the following conditions the hereinafter described farm, viz: The purchaser to pay on date of sale 5 per cent of purchase price, within 30 days thereafter, the purchaser is to pay 28 1-3 more and give his notes for the balance, one of which is to be due in one year and the other in two years both bearing interest at 6 per cent, a lien will be retained to secure payment of unpaid purchase money. This property was inherited by nine heirs, the nephews and nieces of said Martha Collins according to will recorded at Burlington, Ky. I am selling this property by the authority of these heirs and will tender to the purchaser the Warranty Deed of said heirs.

The Farm is Described as Follows:

It contains 101 acres of land and is in Boone County, Ky., adjacent to the Aurora Ferry and is between the Aurora Ferry Road, the Petersburg and Bellevue Pike, the Horsley Ferry Road and the land of the Brady Brothers, and the Ohio River. It is the best located truck farm in the Petersburg bottoms—water melon and truck land, several acres of first overflow land and part of the second bottom overflows in high water, making that part of the farm very productive without other fertilizers. 10 ROOM HOUSE also 6 ROOM House, tenant house, barns, outbuildings, etc. This farm is opposite Aurora, Ind., the best truck market in this part of the world. Good ferry connection with two Railways and the Traction Line to Cincinnati. Good metal road to Covington 25 miles on Kentucky side.

OF Boone Co. River Bottom Farm

In order to settle the estate of Martha Collins, dec'd I will sell to the highest bidder on the following conditions the hereinafter described farm, viz: The purchaser to pay on date of sale 5 per cent of purchase price, within 30 days thereafter, the purchaser is to pay 28 1-3 more and give his notes for the balance, one of which is to be due in one year and the other in two years both bearing interest at 6 per cent, a lien will be retained to secure payment of unpaid purchase money. This property was inherited by nine heirs, the nephews and nieces of said Martha Collins according to will recorded at Burlington, Ky. I am selling this property by the authority of these heirs and will tender to the purchaser the Warranty Deed of said heirs.

The Farm is Described as Follows:

It contains 101 acres of land and is in Boone County, Ky., adjacent to the Aurora Ferry and is between the Aurora Ferry Road, the Petersburg and Bellevue Pike, the Horsley Ferry Road and the land of the Brady Brothers, and the Ohio River. It is the best located truck farm in the Petersburg bottoms—water melon and truck land, several acres of first overflow land and part of the second bottom overflows in high water, making that part of the farm very productive without other fertilizers. 10 ROOM HOUSE also 6 ROOM House, tenant house, barns, outbuildings, etc. This farm is opposite Aurora, Ind., the best truck market in this part of the world. Good ferry connection with two Railways and the Traction Line to Cincinnati. Good metal road to Covington 25 miles on Kentucky side.

SHEEP OF ALL THE FARM STOCK IS MOST DIFFICULT TO JUDGE

Can you judge sheep? If you can, you are somewhat above the ordinary run of stock raisers, because of all farm animals, in the estimate of the United States Department of Agriculture, the sheep is the most difficult to appraise accurately.

With horses, cattle, swine, or poultry the eye will tell much as to the quality for any purpose desired, and by seeing the animals constantly the breeder or handler learns to estimate their worth, point by point. But a sheep with full fleece, is like certain members of the human race, artfully dressed—its clothing may conceal defects that make it also utterly undesirable, or at least detract from its worth.

Nevertheless, sheep judging is possible to anyone who will give it study and practice and the eye is an important agent, although it must be assisted by a careful inspection with the hand.

Any sheep raiser who desires to improve his flock can profit by attending the next county or state fair and following the judges as they go through the sheep pens. If the judges given to a neck short thick and smoothly joined to the shoulder.

Ten points are assigned to the forequarters, the hindquarters, the given to the shoulders. They should be compact on top, smoothly joined with neck and body, and well covered with flesh. One point goes to a full, well-rounded, and well-extended brisket, and one to straight, short legs, set well apart.

The body may count 18 points—2 for deep, wide, chest; 4 for ribs well sprung, close, and thickly covered; 6 for straight, broad back, thickly and evenly covered with flesh; 6 for wide, thick loin, well covered.

Seventeen points are given to perfect hind quarters. Level, smooth hips, wide apart, count 1; long, level, wide rump, thick at dock, 4; fair, deep, wide thighs, 4; deep, firm, plump twist joined well down on leg, 5; straight short legs, wide apart 1.

The udder in ewes or the scrotum in rams counts 2 if well formed.

Nine points are given to wool—3 for quantity, 3 for quality, and 3 for condition.

After practicing in score-card judging—comparing the exhibited animal with an ideal, for it takes a good animal to score 75 and a choice animal to be marked 90—one is ready to judge by comparing animals one with another. Keep in mind the standard they should approach.

OLD FASHIONED STATESMANSHIP

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota recently issued a statement to the effect that while he was a candidate for re-election, he had no taste for political intrigue and wire pulling, and that his public duties would not permit him to leave Washington to carry on a personal campaign. An instance so unusual as this, more along the line of old time politics must attract notice.

It is no discredit to a man to carry on an active campaign for election to office. People have to take an aggressive attitude in order to succeed in business. It is not likely that politics would be different.

Nevertheless, there are some men who by broad intelligence and devotion to their duties, gain so strong a hold on popular sentiment that they can hold their office year after year without much effort in election campaigns. Their silent example of devotion and service is more effective, than a thousand speeches from gifted orators who can sling words freely but have little record of achievement.

Those who are ambitious for political careers in Kentucky have their choice of two lines of policy. They can depend in hand shaking, and genial ways and deals with other political aspirants and office seekers. They can win some elections in this way, but they do not build up any permanent reputation.

Or they can give their time and thought generously to study of the economic and business questions with which they have to deal, so that they shall acquire a reputation as competent authorities and can exercise leadership toward all ends of progress. Every year that they follow along this line, they become more independent of political deals. This is what might be called old fashioned statesmanship, and it is a good ideal to keep in mind and cherish.

HOARDING

Postmaster General Hays tells us that a very large amount of money is being hoarded in this country, and he urges all patriotic Americans to put their money in savings banks, or national banks, or trust companies, provided they do not care to themselves make investments in stocks. The advice is good, but if there is hoarding in this country, it is due, we firmly believe, to the pessimistic utterances of the bigger men in business. More than 50 per cent of the business depression that set in last fall, and is now disappearing, was due to timidity. And if the big men in business and finance are panic-stricken, why should anyone be surprised that some smaller people hoard their savings?

The trend, however, is all in the right direction. We believe that the hoarded money is coming out.

SOUND VEGETABLES ARE BEST FOR HOME STORAGE

Good results in the home storage of vegetables depends upon ventilation, regulation of temperature, sufficient moisture and the quality of vegetables stored, specialists at the College of Agriculture say. In a house heated by a furnace vegetables can be stored successfully in the cellar in a room partitioned off in the corner farthest from the heating plant. Outdoor storage pits also may be used successfully for keeping vegetables through the winter. Only sound unbruised vegetables can be kept for any length of time, the specialists say.

At least two sides of the cellar storage room should be outside walls one of which should contain at least one window for regulating the temperature and admitting fresh air. A stove pipe or wooden flue fitted in to the lower part of the window and reaching almost to the bottom of the floor can be used to admit cold air, the amount of which can be regulated by a damper in the pipe. The warm air in the room can be removed and circulation created by making an opening in the upper part of the window. Both openings should be covered with wire netting to prevent the entrance of rats and mice and in cold weather should be covered entirely and opened only as the occasion demands.

A dirt floor has been found best for the storage room, the specialists say. A concrete floor should be covered with about two inches of sand and sprinkled time to time in order to supply enough moisture to keep the plants from wilting. Proper circulation of air in and around the boxes and crates containing vegetables may be obtained by raising these a few inches off the floor and keeping them about the same distance away from the wall.

For outdoor storage the mound-shaped pit has been found best, the specialists say. In making this pit a mound or conical pile of vegetables is placed on a layer of straw or leaves and covered with another layer of straw or leaves several inches thick. Three or four inches of soil are placed on top of this. As the weather grows colder more layers of straw and dirt are added, a covering of manure often being placed over the outside layer. To furnish ventilation, a triangular flue made by nailing three boards together and boring several holes in the bottom portion is inserted into the center of the vegetable mound while it is being made. The top of this flue should extend above the top layer of dirt. An inverted V-shaped cap should be placed over the top of the flue to keep out the rain. In cold weather the flue openings should be closed. Surplus water may be carried away by digging a trench around the base of the mound. After the pit is opened surplus vegetables should be removed to a cellar since it is difficult to preserve them in the pit.

MANY FARMERS PLAN FOR WINTER READING

Many Kentucky farmers are making plans to follow helpful reading courses during the coming winter months if the interest shown by thousands who have had their names placed on the newly revised mailing lists being prepared by the College of Agriculture at Lexington is taken as an indication. During the past few months more than 5,000 farmers of the State have expressed their desire to receive free circulars and bulletins on timely agricultural problems from the institution which as many as 250 farmers have written to the college in one day to have their names entered. During a period of three weeks an average of 200 names were received each day. Poultry and livestock feeding and poultry housing are the most popular subjects with the farmers, who already have had their names placed on the lists.

THE TURKEY AND THE CROW

An old story relates how once upon a time a white man and an Indian went hunting together. After a long and tiresome tramp, they returned with one turkey and one crow. Then the question arose how they should divide the spoils of the chase.

"You take the crow and I'll take the turkey" said the white man, "Or, if you don't like that, I'll take the turkey and you can have the crow."

The treaty which the Republican administration has fixed up with the German government seems like the dealings of the white man with the Indian. We strictly reserve the rights that were reserved to us in the Versailles treaty. But having failed to ratify that treaty, we are bound by none of its obligations.

No one can go through life expecting to get all the benefits that are coming, but taking none of the obligations that go with the benefits. Anyone that works on that principle gets thoroughly disliked. As the result of this selfish and aloof attitude, the United States, which in 1918 was the most popular nation on the face of the globe, is today about the most disliked.

It is well known that the administration really wanted to ratify the Versailles treaty excluding those sections that referred to the League of Nations. But the small group of Republicans who are opposed to cooperating with Europe, and who have no objection to the Versailles treaty, succeeded in bluffing the heads of the government. By threatening a split in the party, this minority were able to have their own way. It is a singular showing of the weakness of the Republican party that it can be driven by a minority of its own members into such a weak and unfair attitude and one that so prejudices this country in the eyes of the world.

500,000 automobiles scrapped each year, a considerable part of them as the result of mistaking on their right of way at street intersections.

GROWERS ABLE TO OBTAIN ON BURLEY TOBACCO

Persons interested in the proposed co-operative marketing association of the Burley growers apparently are much interested in these announcements by the Agriculture and Live Stock Loan Agency of the War Finance Corporation thru its office at Louisville that financial aid is assured for the enterprise.

The condition under which this aid will be given were laid down in a statement issued at Louisville last Sunday night and a ruling made that tobacco will be accepted as security for advances to finance the marketing of the Kentucky tobacco.

Large number of people believe in protesting American industries particularly home brew.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Moore entertained Mr. and Mrs. Warner Senour and daughter Shelley, Andrew Holzworth wife and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Senour's and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Blankenbaker and daughter Alma, and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Fresser Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Wilson and family spent Sunday with Waite Cross and wife.

LITTLE SHOWER

Developed into a Downpour For Baptist Minister at Petersburg.

Petersburg, Ky., Oct. 17, 1921.

On last Friday night the good citizens of Petersburg were seen wending their way to the Baptist church with arms filled with bundles. After depositing them in the rear aisle of the church and filling the chairs in the auditorium, they discovered that "whereas" their purpose was to give the new pastor of the Baptist church a shower, and extend a substantial welcome to the citizenship of our town, the shower had developed into a downpour.

Never in the history of our town had such a spontaneous and universal greeting been extended to any one casting his lot among the good citizens of Petersburg. It was not the mere greeting of the members of the Baptist church but the members from all the churches of the town.

Rev. Trainer, pastor of the Methodist church was the master of ceremonies. Two Elders of the Christian church occupied the front seats and greeted the new pastor with cordial smiles of welcome. The spirit of true religion seemed to fill the hearts of every one present. After the many substantial presents were stored in the rear aisle and every one happily seated, a committee was appointed to go to the parsonage to invite and escort the pastor to the church. They discreetly informed him that some of his friends wished to see him at the church.

When he entered the church and saw the storage of bundles and the welcome smiles from every seat in the house—realizing that they were there for him, he lived the power of speech and passed down the aisle to the pulpit shaking hands to the right and left till he reached Brother Trainer, who gave him a seat and told him the purpose of the meeting. He told him he appreciated his embarrassment as he had undergone the same ordeal when he became the pastor of the Methodist church. He told him when he had lived as long in Petersburg as he had he would love the town as well as he does.

He then invited Bro. Jeffries to give expression to the gratitude that he knew he felt.

Bro. Jeffries said when he entered the church and saw the abundance of good things in store for him, and the smiles from so many welcome and happy faces he felt like an old negro who lived in his town, and on one occasion was found in a drunken stupor. A doctor in passing opened his mouth and emptied a vile of quinine in it. The bitterness of the dose soon aroused him and he asked some one to go for a doctor, that he was dying. The same doctor came and asked him what was the matter. He said he felt like his gall was busted. Like the old negro, when he entered the church he was so surprised that I felt like something about me had busted. After a very appropriate song and prayer the meeting closed.

Brother Trainer, the master of ceremonies asked the ladies to remain in their seats while the gentlemen transported the various donations to the parsonage.

About three weeks ago an evangelist conducted a three week's revival in the Methodist church. He proved to be a second Billy Sunday. He started in the beginning that his mission here was not for the sole purpose of adding members to the Methodist church but he came to drive the Devil out of Petersburg and add souls to the Kingdom of Christ. The effect of his revival is still manifest in all the churches in this town, and a very striking manifestation in the shower I have just described. Every one present seemed to be in accord in the hearty welcome to our new pastor.

Our religious schedule is so arranged now that we can have union services three Sundays in each month. The Christian church has the first and third, the Baptist the second and fourth of the month. The first I would like to see, the members of all the churches have a union service on the fifth Sundays at the Methodist church, and the three pastors take turns in conducting services.

MRS. EMMA FRANCES TANNER, 1849-1921.

Mrs. Tanner was a pioneer member of the Methodist church of Erlanger, Kentucky, and ever devoted to its interests. In a financial stress of the church in its early history Mrs. Tanner and her husband mortgaged their home to save it to our communion. The first Ladies Aid of Erlanger was organized by her, members of all denominations belonging to it. Later, when the Missionary Society and a Ladies Aid were organized in the Methodist church Mrs. Tanner was one of its earliest members, and through the years that followed until her failing health prevented, was a faithful and earnest member; one whose contacts were wise and whose executive ability made her preeminent as treasurer, an office she held for years.

Resolved, That in the passing of Mrs. Tanner every department of our church work suffers a great loss, and that her faithfulness will be an inspiration to us that have been for so long co-laborers with her in work for the Master.

Resolved, That a copy of this tribute to the memory of our departed sister be embodied in the minutes of our Missionary Society; also a copy be sent to The Central Methodist and to the Boone County Recorder.

Limit On Hunting Licenses Advocated to Conserve Game

During the hunting season this fall more than 5,000,000 persons, according to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, will go out with a gun into the woods and fields of America. Their going emphasizes the growing need of more adequate and uniform laws to conserve and protect the country's dwindling game supply.

"It has been the practice in many States," the department says, "to issue hunting licenses for the open season to the applicants, with too little regard to the wildlife game supply in any particular area. The hunters may far outnumber the animals hunted within a given section, and under such conditions the extinction of big game especially is inevitable."

"The Department of Agriculture advocates a limited license plan for big game based on annual estimates of game conditions in each district. This means that the number of big game licenses issued for a given area in one season would depend upon the number of game animals which it has been determined in advance can be spared. Proper administration of this sort should conserve game in the greatest number, consistent with the reasonable demands for local hunting and other interests and obviate the necessity for establishing perennial closed seasons, except on areas being re-stocked."

A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

On Sunday, October 16, 1921, a large number of relatives and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mitchell (it being their birthday) by gathering at their home on the Union road about three miles south of Burlington, with well filled baskets and at the noon hour (being a pretty noon day) dinner was spread on large tables in the hall, where everybody enjoyed the dinner, tea and hot coffee. All left late in the afternoon wishing Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell many more happy birthdays. The following is a list of those who enjoyed the day:

Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Kindred and Dick Utz, of Erlanger; A. M. Underhill of Bethel, Ohio; Russell Mitchell, of Florence; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stanger, of Stephens, of Petersburg; Hubert McMullen, of Petersburg; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rouse, of Owensboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hughes wife and two sons, Clarence Mitchell wife and two daughters, Albert Robbins wife, daughter and son, Steve Robbins and daughter, John Butcher and wife, Vernon Pope and wife, Frank Robbins, Ed Poppham, James Byrne wife and son, Lawrence, Frank Mullins and son, Jonathan McMullen wife and two daughters Ada and Annie, Emma McMullen and daughter Mamie, Lattie McMullen wife and son, Harriet Stanger and son, Kenneth Stanger and wife, Robert Gulley wife and baby, Sam Pettit wife and son James and two daughters Lena and Rosa, Lester Gulley and wife, Albert Pettit wife and two daughters, Emma Whitcomb and daughter, Mrs. Chas. Crisler, Ed Beemon wife and daughter Addie and Walter York.

Bushmyer, Bros., well known citizens and farmers of Petersburg neighborhood, sends us $1.50 to retain their seats in our large circle of readers. These good citizens have been supporters of the Recorder for many years; they believe in helping along home industry.

SEEING THINGS

Back In Old Kentucky After Twenty-One Years In The Hoosier State.

Union, Ky.

Editor Recorder:

Here we are in Old Kentucky again—some folks leave Indiana to come to Kentucky because they have to do so. We come because we want to and enjoy coming. See! Not many days ago we boarded a big Haynes automobile at Anderson, Indiana, at 7:30 a. m., and 3 o'clock p. m., was in Cincinnati. The car carried the owner, two carpenters and your humble servant. Also three kegs of nails, hardware for 2 houses and hauled a trailer with four squares of roofing—some lead and some copper. The car went on to the coal fields of Eastern Ky. and we came to Erlanger. At Erlanger we found James A. Huey doing a neighborly act by cutting some other man's weeds with his mower, (Jimmy is given to such kindly deeds by the way) Jno. Denady and wife were boarding the "Long John" for the city—we say "Long John" because Sol is short of nothing, he's long on courtesy, popularity and honest dealing. Robert Rice was selling roofing and wearing a smile that don't come off very easily. Dr. Slater was very enthusiastic over the new concrete road and believed it a good investment at $45,000 a mile. The Dr. seems a "real live wire" and believe me he's some enthusiastic. Later on at Florence we listened to Messrs. Marksberry-Goodridge and Cahill discuss the Dixie Highway improvement from Florence to Walton, nine and one-half miles. They finally agreed that it would be built and should be, all manner of by-standers suggested that if his neighbors would help, they would be put in a condition that would permit a big cattle truck to pass over it with some safety, and the discussion ended. Having some curiosity to see just how good or bad the pike the Union was, we ventured down it. Col. Butty Louie said he had never seen it worse but could not recall the exact date. Billy Bailey said it was good in front of his house (it was) and he could not be held responsible for the rest. Spenser Smith was anxious to see 1,900 yards of rock put on the road and Richard Smith was willing to give several days work (free of charge) in spreading the rock already brought in (if his neighbors would help) which shows he has public spirit and wants 'em spread. At Union our friend Prof. Voshell had sold the Eagle Hotel and was selling all his household goods, five or six hundred people were present and the auctioneers, Burkett and Bradford, were two busy men, we are here to tell you. The Eagle Hotel had gained fame and favor from the Atlantic to the Pacific (this is no joke) under the direction of the Prof. and his most estimable wife for 28 years. The history of this notable hostelry dates back to 1851—Major Hlatt built it. Col. Bruce Sanders put up a "Big Eagle" and conducted it for years, then came one Mr. Seno, then Mr. Thos. Bradford, the new owner, expects to sustain its reputation in the years to come, and we hope he does. Twenty-one years ago the writer moved to Indiana and became a citizen of Alexandria, and returned to Old Kentucky 25 times to work and play some too by the way—a kind welcome always awaited me at the Eagle Hotel. For 45 years (to my knowledge) noble and good women have lived in Boone county, and in the death of Mrs. L. H. Voshell the county lost one of them. Think of 15 or 20 children standing in front of the Hotel crying and sobbing as they heard "Aunt Lill" was dead. No higher tribute was ever offered to a good woman. At the Union Blade Club resolutions were offered to this effect. Union could not get along without Dr. Senour—Lynn Wilson and Leander Moore have no right to live when at 6 o'clock p. m., by lantern light that Calvin Cresswell improve his home by the addition he is building—that the revival services at Presbyterian church may be of interest to everybody and well attended.

PHILIP.

In renewing his subscription to the Recorder T. H. Cloud of Pleasant Hill, Mo., writes:

Mr. N. E. Riddell, Burlington, Ky.
Dear Sir: I enclose check on subscription. I have been taking the Recorder for a good many years, and by the means have kept pretty well informed as to matters pertaining to the people of Boone county. Especially those whom I knew when I left there fifty-three years ago, this month. Most of whom have since died away. Often I see them mention of various Boone county men who now live in other States. And frequently see the name of some comrade of Captain H. Vaughn's company of Boone men of the Confederate army.

FALLING LEAVES.

People of imaginative temper always find melancholy reflection in the falling of the leaves in autumn. It carries to them a suggestion of decay and death, and seems to incite one to sobering thoughts of the end of earthly life.

Yet the philosopher can rely that the falling of the leaf is as painless and natural as the sinking of the body into slumber. Every bit of the substance of each leaf still exists just the same. After mingling with the earth, it again rises and enters into the composition of some useful plant, and lives its life over again in some other form.

People who are less sensitive to impressions, do not find the falling of the leaves melancholy. They see that the tree is stripping itself for the conflict with winter winds, and cold, a period during which it will lay in reserves of strength, and get ready for the growth of another year. It is the rest stage that always precedes another period of advance.

PRESS COMMENTS ON RAILROAD STRIKE.

Keep Them Running

(New York Herald.)

Senator Cummins, who probably knows more than any other man in the Government about the railroads, the law behind the railroads and the imperatively necessary functions of the railroads in our national organization, says that the trains must be kept moving. This is the stand for responsible legislative authority to take. It is the stand for the whole United States Government and the American people back of it to take.

To Paralyze Nation.

(Toledo Blade.)

Let's make no mistake about it. A general railroad strike would be a disaster to the country. It would not only check the slow, painful march back to productive, prosperous industry, but, for a time at least, cause a retrograde movement. It would undo a thousand endeavors of recent years to keep peace permanently between millions of working people out of employment. It would pile misery upon capital and labor. It would throw misery for those who already are in enforced idleness.

Reason For Revenge.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Newspapers, eager for co-operation between labor and capital and alert to safeguard the public from the blighting effects certain to ensue from strife between them, are promptly piloried as "organs" either for "the best interests" or for "socialists." This is the penalty of fearless criticism, however wise or disinterested the criticism may be.

Such penalties have no terrors for The Courier-Journal. A newspaper that lacks courage to resist class or public opinion when it is strong may not be trusted to reflect or to defend public or class opinion when it is right.

For reasons that need not here be stated, the high standards of living provided by the war has got to come down.

Business is no longer unlimited. It is severely reduced. "Surplus of labor" has succeeded "shortage of labor."

LABOR DEFY.

(Boston Herald.)

The action of the railroad brotherhoods in calling for a nation-wide strike adds to work and play everywhere. It is a challenge to the agricultural and business interests of the country; it is an issue of defiance to the National Government as well.

That the members of these organizations should have voted by overwhelming majorities for a walk-out at this time is not surprising. They have been taught the lesson of defiance by the threat and the Washington authorities capitulated. By passing the Adamson law Congress not only gave the brotherhoods all they asked for, but threatened upon the railroad employees an exaggerated compensation of their own power. The Adamson law did not settle anything permanently; it merely postponed a crisis which the country must face, sooner or later, and which might just as well be tackled now.

Must Have the Gravy.

Mr. O. H. Pate, dealer in livestock, near Aurora, Indiana, in renewing his subscription, writes:

Editor Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.
Dear Sir: I enclose check to move ahead a little I recently bought one in a little in your county, the thought of an add I saw in your paper. Reading the other papers I have, without yours to my wife, she is the fingers to her best wishes to you.

The landlord can't lower rents because it costs so much to repair buildings, and the building requires can't charge any less, because rents are so high.

STEPHENSON-BROWN

A most enjoyable evening was had by all who attended the wedding supper Wednesday evening the 19th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stephenson. The supper was given in honor of the marriage of their daughter, Helen to Clayton Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Brown, of Bellevue, Ky.

The couple were married at 5 p. m., by Rev. DeMoisey at the Walton Baptist church. They were accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Kelly and Robert Youell. They returned to the bride's home about six o'clock p. m., where about sixty friends and relatives welcomed them.

A delightful supper enjoyed by every one was served at 7:30.

The entertainment consisted of Victrola music and readings given by Miss Mattie Kreylich.

Mrs. and Mrs. Brown will make their home in Walton, Ky., for the number of years. They have the best wishes of their many friends. Below is a list of presents received by the bride and groom:

ERLANGER CITIZENS PAY TRIBUTE TO RALPH S. SANDERS, SOLDIER HERO.

The remains of Private Ralph S. Sanders reached the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Sanders, Saturday, Oct. 15th. Young Sanders was a member of Co. M, 128th Infantry, and was killed in action near Brandeville, France, Nov. 8th, 1918. Sunday afternoon a large number of Erlanger citizens went in a body to his home to pay him tribute by silently filing past his casket.

Very impressive services were held Monday morning at the Baptist church, Rev. Henson, ex-army Chaplain in uniform conducting the service. The Carman-Wright-Sanders Post of the American Legion in uniform to form the Military escort and render full military honors at the grave with the firing squad and taps.

Jane Northcutt Kees, aged 59 years, passed away at her home near Erlanger Wednesday evening. Funeral services were held at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wilson Ellis, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock after which the remains were taken to Independence cemetery by undertaker Philip Taliaferro. Mrs. Kees is survived by two daughters Mrs. Wilson Ellis, of Erlanger, and Mrs. Ferris, of Covington.

Erlanger High School diamed and attended in a body. Scores of heads were bared in silent tribute as the funeral procession passed through town enroute to Highland cemetery.

Undertaker Philip Taliaferro in uniform and charge of the funeral arrangements. He also registered Private Sanders grave on the battle field in France.

HALLOWEEN

On Saturday night before Halloween you are cordially invited to a Halloween entertainment and party at Limaburg school house. Girls bring either a half pound box of their home-made or bought candy and have tucked out your quarters, the price of the candy. Eat up the girl of your choice. Every day keep sweet!

LYCEUM POSTPONED

The Lyceum that was to be held in the court house Friday evening by the Collectors has been canceled on account of the scarlet fever quarantine.

Last Sunday was a beautiful autumn day.

SOCIAL EVENT.

One of the pleasant social events of the season was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. John Vernez, Jr., in honor of their beautiful and accomplished daughter Gladys, who was united in marriage on the 18th of October to Mr. Richard E. Eubanks, a highly estimable young man of Crescent Springs, Ky.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns and a delightful evening was enjoyed with music and dancing. Delicious refreshments were served to about 200 guests.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

The miscellaneous shower given by Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Markesberry of Crescent Springs, October 15, in compliment of Miss Gladys Vernez the bride-elect of Mr. Richard E. Eubanks, was a decided success. The bride to be received many pretty and useful presents. Many very pretty and useful articles were received. (On account of lack of space the list of articles were omitted.)

HUNDRED MILLION POUNDS

Reports to the big tobacco meeting at Lexington Friday showed that 100,926,323 pounds of tobacco had been signed in the pool of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association and that five additional counties—Mason, Clark, Jessamine, Nelson and Oldham had been added to the ten that previously had reached their quota.

Mason county has signed 4,226,846 pounds, according to the report of Secretary J. N. Kehoe, about 77 per cent of the county's production. Work is to be continued in Mason which is one of the largest of the burley producing counties.

Montgomery county reported 97 1/2 per cent signed, 3,775,000 pounds out of a total of 3,958,000 grown in 1920.

Bourbon county has signed more than 90 per cent of its 1920 production, 7,515,093 pounds having been signed.

Bath county has signed 97 per cent of its acreage.

County chairmen are to receive their new goals the coming week from headquarters at Lexington, showing just how much tobacco it is necessary to sign to put each county in the district over.

Judge Robert W. Bingham, backer and financier of the movement, said he was confident the organization would win by November 15.

CARD OF THANKS—We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for all their kindness and sympathy shown us in the last sickness and death of our husband and father, Ben Wilson.

We had many offers of assistance that were not needed, and to all who made such offers we are very grateful. We desire to especially thank the members of the K. of P. Lodge for their attention to their brother, Rev. Robert McNeely for his appropriate sermon, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Ethan Anderson and Miss Ellen Stewart for the music and singing, R. A. Steele for the efficient manner in which the funeral was conducted, and Hubert Ryle and Walter Ryle for furnishing their cars to convey the family to the cemetery. We assure everyone that this card is not included as a matter of form but is an appreciation from the bottom of our hearts.

THE FAMILY.

The farmers living out on the East Bend road, showed the right spirit, last week and the week before, when they turned out and assisted the contractor in putting that part of the new pike, which has been finished as far out as C. E. White's, in first-class condition. They went ahead of the steam roller and filled up the low places with rock and dirt, thus helping to secure a splendid piece of road over which to travel this winter. If there is a people in the county that needs a good road, it is those living between Burlington and Waterloo.

Allie M. Graves, aged 70, many years ago a citizen of Burlington, died at his home in Philadelphia, Pa., on Tuesday of last week. His remains were brought to Highland cemetery on the Dixie Highway, last Thursday and interred. He was a son of Robert H. Graves, and for a number of years was in the wholesale grocery business on Vine St., Cincinnati, under the firm name of Kelly, Graves & Co. His many friends in Boone county were sorry to hear of his death.

Commonwealth Attorney John J. Howe of Carrollton, is being nominated as a possible candidate of the Democratic party for Governor in the State election in 1923. Another report says that he may be a candidate for Attorney General. Mr. Howe has made himself very popular with the people of his district during his incumbency as Commonwealth Attorney and would prove a strong factor in the event that he should conclude to make the race for either office.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

It is said a dollar and a penny once had a conversation. The dollar said to the penny, "You are a puny little cuss, you don't amount to anything." The penny replied, "Perhaps so, but I go to church and Sunday School and you don't. This reminds us that a prominent member of one of the churches in town who is in the habit of putting a penny in the contribution basket made a mistake the other Sunday, and dropped in a brass check on a dry goods firm in town for 5c. It was about the same color, and this lost the member 4 cents.—Ex.

J. J. Stephens, formerly of East Bend neighborhood, but now residing with his daughter in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday. He called at the office and gave us $1.50 to keep the news from their old Ky. coming across the Co. Mr. Stephens looks hale and hearty and seems to be enjoying good health in his "adopted home."

C. L. Helm and daughter, Mrs. Yancy Clore, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, were transacting business in Burlington, last Friday. While in town they made the Recorder a pleasant call. Mr. Helm is one of the few remaining old ex-Confederate soldiers of the county, of which there are only six or eight now living.

L. E. Love and wife, of the Union neighborhood, were in Burlington, last Friday morning, enroute to visit Ralph Cason and wife down on Middle creek. While in town Mr. Love called at this office and replenished our exchequer for past and future Recorders. We are glad to have these good people as members of our rating circle.

Many people will strike off to some far distant city or section to find their fortunes, when there are plenty of opportunities lying undeveloped at home. The man who is most apt to make a success, is the one who studies some condition with which he is intimately familiar in his own locality, and as a result of this thorough knowledge of the situation, is able to supply the public with superior service.

Cities and towns are going ahead nowadays by studying their own possibilities and developing them to the limit. They reach out long distances to draw people to their stores. They study the possibilities of their outlying country for agriculture and lend money to young farmers and give instruction in scientific methods, and frequently double or triple the food production. They are not so anxious to get in some entirely new manufacturing industry, as to promote the development of those already started, and to encourage the young men to start new enterprises in their home towns.

Over a quarter of a million well-known men and women from different parts of the country have signed written endorsements for Tanager. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

A good many towns have been unable to advance as the result of their own initiative, are convinced that they can boom things by getting government buildings or a federal road.

In these times when the automobiles are trying to push the railroad trains off the tracks, perhaps the baby carriages might also try to but into motor trucks.

These holdup men that rob automobile people are reminded that a large number of motorists nowadays carry something more business like than a monkey wrench.

Much complaint about reckless motor truck drivers, but there is at least the consolation that they are pretty sure to smash themselves up in time.

It is noticed that President Harding made no attempt to attend the armament conference, until after the world series ball games were well out of the way.

Many of the people who are suffering from high rents, will go out hunting this fall, and start fires that burn up great quantities of building materials.

An automobile is irritating at times, but anyway it does not attempt to climb a tree merely because a piece of newspaper is blowing along the road.

Claimed that women should have a hat for every month in the year. Not many of the milliners have as yet filed any objection to the idea.

The whiskey smugglers may be exercising their ingenious brains a little later in getting the comforts of life smuggled into the jail cells.

The treasury department says every man, woman and child has $250 saved up. This will just buy everyone a second hand flivver.

Also the civic progress associations will show splendid spirit, provided they have the right brand of doughnuts and coffee.

Nether sign of national unrest is the willingness of the kid crowd to sit down in the living room and read instructive books.

A good many owners would be willing to take part in booze raids if it should be their duty to decide what the stuff was.

Candy day is to be regularly observed from now on. Probably Dyspepsia Day will follow as a logical conclusion.

Twenty million people have taken Tanager with the most gratifying results. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Anyway the neighbors who live near families of active boys are not complaining about neglected fruit trees.

It is getting so you can hardly tell an October wedding from the fresh-nosed sophomore rushes at the colleges.

There are some of the unemployed who should never take a farm job, as they have no park benches out there.

While John Barleycorn has not been seen around these parts lately, a good many people have snatched him.

Edward and Porcia Brady, of Petaluma neighborhood, were business visitors to the Hub, last Saturday.

The Peoples Deposit Bank has made quite an improvement in the interior of the bank building.

LIFE STATISTICS

If you are a woman you will live longer than the average man. It is an old saying, but very true today, in spite of the stress of the modern woman's life and the physical conditions to which she is subjected. Statistics prove it to be so.

Nine hundred and five spinsters out of every thousand who have reached the age of 25 live to be 45; 652 out of every 1,000 reach 65; 119 reach 85 and eight attain the age of 95.

On the other hand only 789 males out of 1,000 who are 25 years old reach 45; 559 65; 64, 85, and but 3 95.

In regard to mortality among children, Providence and the law of averages seem to strike a fairly even balance. While 20 per cent more male children die of tuberculosis than females, 25 per cent more girls than boys die of cancer. Nearly 40 per cent more girls die of whooping cough than do boys, but asthma is more fatal among male children.

A number of poultrymen who attended the poultry raising demonstrations held in Boone county during the past summer are planning to feed their hens a balanced ration as a result of the thing, they were shown at the demonstration, according to a report of B. B. McInteer, county agent.

Electric lights have been installed in the Boone county Deposit Bank

THE PASSING OF JAZZ

The impression seems to prevail that jazz music has seen its last popular days. It had a certain quality of rhythm and humor that pleased the people for a time. But the love for music is something more than the desire to hear eccentric noises. The instinct that makes people like strongly marked and original rhythm, can be satisfied by standard music, even better than by the wailing of saxophones or beating on tin pans.

Some people carried their antipathy to jazz so far as to regard it as positively immoral, tending to excite the dancing crowd so that they would behave in an indecorous manner. People who are sensitive to musical rhythm will always be stimulated by music with strongly marked accents. But the dancers who are incited by pronounced rhythms to do pigeon wings, are not usually the saucy crowd who are hogging their partners. The objection to jazz was not its wickedness, but its crudeness. The purest jazz is found in the African jungles, where the natives are beating their tom-toms.

W. G. Kite, of Waterloo, breeder of fine Jersey cattle, and a raiser of the Jersey sweet potatoes, has an exhibition at the Farm Bureau Headquarters in Burlington seven potatoes which he dug from one hill, the seven weighing thirteen pounds.

HIGH TIME FOR ACTION.

(Harrison County Log Cabin)

It is now time for action by all the Boone county farmers who want relief from the outrageous conditions existing in the tobacco industry today. These conditions are well known.

When thousands of tobacco growers do not get enough for their crops to pay for the cost of stripping, then it is high time for the growers to wake up, show some of that independence that we hear so much about, and demand their rights.

Ample financial aid is already assured to make the grower a liberal advance on the very day he delivers the crop of tobacco. Many well posted tobacco men believe this first advance will be equal to the entire amount the grower would receive if the required 75 per cent should not be pooled, and that the total price will be at least double what was received for last year's crop.

In the whole history of the tobacco industry the farmer never had such an opportunity to make himself independent, and if he neglects this opportunity there will be little hope for another such chance within the life of the present generation.

The success of the movement means that the grower will have that independence which he has talked about but has asserted and exhibited only once during the last twenty-five years.

It means at least doubling the price of tobacco and turning big losses into big profits.

It means just reward for hard labor in the tobacco field.

It means that a tenant may hope to provide properly for his family and hope to own a farm of his own.

It means that the women and children can be kept out of the tobacco fields and be found in the homes or in the schools where they belong.

In short the success of the co-operative plan means PROSPERITY and HAPPINESS where there is now LOSS and DEBT and GLOM.

Surely the vast majority of the tobacco farmers have too much intelligence and business sense to neglect this golden opportunity.

AT THE CINCINNATI THEATRES

GIFTS THEATRE.

The William Fox Film Corporation, which recently leased the Gifts Theatre to show its big specialties in Cincinnati, is inaugurating its regime the week of Sunday, October 23, with "Over The Hill," which had a long and prosperous run in New York. The play is described as one of heart-tugging interest, with numerous comedy situations to relieve its tenderness. Mary Carr will be seen in the principal role of "Ma Benson." The picture is based on one of the stories in Will Carleton's "Farm Rallies." A special orchestra now provides the music for the Gifts.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Goldwyn's latest release of the humorous Will Rogers is the central feature of the program at the Capitol Theatre for the week of Sunday, October 23. The picture is entitled "Laughing for Money," and gives Rogers exceptional opportunities to be funny. Clara Kimball Young, noted screen star, will appear in person at every performance during the week. This feature is in accord with the Ascher policy of giving the patrons of the Capitol special attractions from time to time. There also will be an elaborate musical program at each performance.

BIG BONE.

In loving memory of John J. Miller, born August 19th, 1903, died October 26, 1920, aged 17 years, 2 months and 7 days.

Green be the turf above thee, Friend of our better days, None knew thee but to love thee, Nor named thee but to praise.

Thus one year ago did pass away in the spring time of young manhood, one whose presence brought so much happiness to those who knew him.

May the hope of meeting again where there are no more partings comfort those who so sadly missed him in the year just past.

PIKE VOTE FRAUD ASTOUNDS COURT.

One G. O. P. Nominee Raised $20,000, Another Spent $4,000 Judges Find.

Frankfort, Ky.—Evidences of a huge corruption fund, which shocked the court, were described by the Court of Appeals in the Pike county Republican primary contest cases, affirming the Pike Circuit Court and awarding the nomination for County Judge to W. E. Flannery and for Sheriff to J. M. Johnson.

A fund of $20,000 raised in the Sheriff's race, pools among candidates for different offices, and the purchase of votes at the polls were testified to, and the court pictured the scene in a bedroom, opening into the Commonwealth's Attorney's office, where a candidate for County Clerk was stuffing envelopes with $1 and $2 bills in the presence of a candidate for County Judge, whose manager, the County Attorney, distributed the envelopes to workers.

Irvin Kuo and wife entertained a number of their relatives, last Sunday.

Public SaleBoone Co. River Bottom Farm

In order to settle the estate of Martha Collins, dec'd I will sell to the highest bidder on the following conditions the hereinafter described farm, viz: The purchaser to pay on date of sale 5 per cent of purchase price, within 30 days thereafter, the purchaser is to pay 28 1/3 more and give his notes for the balance, one of which is to be due in one year and the other in two years both bearing interest at 6 per cent, a lien will be retained to secure payment of unpaid purchase money. This property was inherited by nine heirs, the nephews and nieces of said Martha Collins according to will recorded at Burlington, Ky. I am selling this property by the authority of these heirs and will tender to the purchaser the Warranty Deed of said heirs.

The Farm is Described as Follows:

It contains 101 acres of land and is in Boone County, Ky., adjacent to the Aurora Ferry and is between the Aurora Ferry Road, the Petersburg and Bellevue Pike, the Horsley Ferry Road and the land of the Brady Brothers, and the Ohio River. It is the best located truck farm in the Petersburg bottoms—water melon and truck land, several acres of first overflow land and part of the second bottom overflows in high water, making that part of the farm very productive without other fertilizers. 10 ROOM HOUSE also 6 ROOM House, tenant house, barns, outbuildings, etc. This farm is opposite Aurora, Ind., the best truck market in this part of the world. Good ferry connection with two Railways and the Traction Line to Cincinnati. Good metal road to Covington 25 miles on Kentucky side.

AN APPEAL FOR HELP

For Little Homeless and Friendless Children.

Upon the mothers and school children of Kentucky, rests the fate of thousands of little homeless and friendless children throughout the State, as only through completion of the cottage village at Lyden, Ky., can these little waifs be rescued from squalor and crime by the Kentucky Children's Home Society. The funds for the cottage village now under construction are exhausted and plans for removal of the Kentucky Children's Home Society by December 1st from the present quarters on Baxter Avenue to the rural home will be halted unless the appeal for money is answered by the mothers of Kentucky.

The call of the country has echoed throughout the crowded city Home for the 160 children that fill the old row of former residences which have been converted for many years into the quarters of the institution.

Two of the buildings of the cottage village are nearly completed, but the workmen must lay down their tools, the children must be sent to the orphanage, for the appeal for money has been longed for by the appeal fails. Geo. L. Schon, Superintendent of the Society is asking the mothers and school children for sufficient funds to complete the village, in order that the future Home may be dedicated to the school children of today.

More than 3800 children have been taken in by the Society since its organization twenty-five years ago and today in every community of the State are men and women among the representative citizens, who owe their success in life to the Society which saved them from the evil environments of the county poor houses.

More thousands of little ones, destitute and friendless, await longingly for the doors of the Kentucky Children's Home Society to open to them and now with pitiful appeal they knock at the hearts of humanity for a chance. It is divulged by statistics compiled by the United States census that 90 per cent of the inmates of the prisons are individuals who had training for work whatever. Illiterates compose practically the entire army of our tramps, a tremendously expensive group. One out of forty of the entire host of fallen women in the U. S. has had no training in the matter of trade or profession. But we could go on with figures indefinitely.

All of these conditions which add to the burden of public tax and menace public health are corrected in part by the Kentucky Children's Home Society, which takes in the little waifs, trains them, schools them and places them in households where they generally are adopted into the family.

The Society accepts only those children committed to its care by the County Judges of the State, thus relieving the various counties of their care and putting the little ones in surroundings that work for better citizenship.

FALL CLEAN-UPS.

Most of the Clean-Up days and Clean-Up weeks come in the spring. Some people have a tremendous spasm of improvement about that time, and then the desire for betterment seems to die down. Gradually the rubbish has been accumulating since spring, until now many places have an appearance of disorder and decay.

Old flowers and vegetable stalks and trimmings from trees and shrubs have accumulated in many gardens. In spring, when the householder looks forward to beautifying his place, it is a pleasure to clean up all his stuff, but in fall when nothing more is doing in the garden line for six months, it takes a little more energy to give the grounds a once over.

CANNOT DO WITHOUT THE RECORDER.

Oakley, Ohio, October 28, 1921.

Mr. N. E. Riddell, Dear Sir: I find enclosed three dollars for which please move our subscription up for two years. My father, (C. D. Seothorn) having read the Recorder for a number of years, I felt I could not do without my home paper when we moved to Oakley, Ohio, about two years ago. I do enjoy reading the news from old Boone county, so please move our subscription up for two years.

Mrs. R. W. Baker, Oakley, Ohio.

Arthur (Pudge) Alloway, of Waterloo neighborhood, was in Burlington, last Thursday, and made the printers a pleasant call. "Pudge" said "I pay to advertise," as he said four Beagle hounds the day before thru the little advertisement he had in the Recorder the week before.

One Reason For Unemployment

One of the most notable achievements of the recent Democratic administration, was the creation of the federal employment service. This agency developed a splendid system, with branches all over the country, for finding jobs for unemployed men and workers to fill vacancies. It was tremendously useful in providing work for the service men that came out of the army. It did a great deal to produce the prosperity of the year immediately following the armistice.

As the result of the failure of the Republican Congress to provide the funds to continue this splendid work, its activities were greatly reduced and the service was cut down to a skeleton of its former extent.

Here was a fatal mistake made. If this service had been kept in operation, the unemployment now existing might never have occurred. In any event the service would have done a lot to keep men at work. All the men for whom it had been found would have been able to keep buying as usual, and thus keep the demand for commodities up to normal.

The motive for cutting down this service must have been a penny wise and pound foolish economy. It was objected that the service was going to cost a large amount, probably $10,000,000 or more.

If it had been continued, its expense could have been reduced. But even if it did cost a large sum, any such amount is a mere trifle compared with the loss caused by nonemployment. For every dollar that the employment service cost, unemployment would throw away a hundred dollars as the result of idleness and non-production. The men who want to work but can find nothing to do, are a disruptive force of terrible power. They became aggrieved against the government, and are ready to listen to the talk of the revolutionists.

DO A LITTLE THINKING.

When a tobacco buyer tells a grower to stay out of the Co-operative Association and he will get a good price for his tobacco it would be well for the grower to do a little thinking. It might be well to ask why the grower was paid only 1 to 3 cents for his low grades last year and why the speculators were paid 10 to 20 cents for these same low grades within a few months. It does seem that any farmer who has brains enough to grow tobacco also has sense enough to know that promises of good prices for the year are made to keep the grower out of the organization and that any advance in price this year will be deducted from the price next year. The tobacco growers now have an opportunity to put their business on a prosperous basis for years to come and it is worse than foolishness to sell a permanent birthright for the promise of a temporary mess of pottage.—Falmouth Outlook.

HOME COMING AND ROLL-CALL.

The Christian church at Florence, Ky., held a roll call and home-coming at the close of their revival service held by Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia, Ky., who has been their pastor for two years. This revival resulted in 19 additions to the church, 12 by membership, and 7 by confession. A supper was served by the ladies and was heartily enjoyed by all. Mr. Thornton treated the guests to some fine coffee which was enjoyed by all.

This church, it will be recalled, is the oldest church in Boone county, a brick of the old make, situated on the Dixie Highway, there was Alexander Campbell, the Great Reformer, had stood and preached from that pulpit, as well as Franklin Smith and other preachers of renown. At the close of the morning of dedication services were held, a beautiful and impressive service. A meeting to be long remembered by all and especially by the writer.

REDMON GOSSETT.

JUDGE FINN ON THE JOB.

The International Livestock Exposition will be held in Chicago November 26th to Dec. 3. The best live stock of all kinds will be on exhibition. Wm. G. Finn, who resides about six miles northwest of Burlington, will judge part of the exhibition as a representative of Kentucky University in the Students Judging Contest.

Mrs. E. L. Stephens, of Rabbit Hash, who was visiting her daughter Mrs. Kenneth W. Ryle, brought to this office some sweet potatoes that were dug in September, 1920. The potatoes had kept in perfect condition. Each potato had been wrapped separately in paper. It is very seldom that sweet potatoes can be kept as long as Mrs. Stephens succeeded in keeping these.

Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, is fast completing arrangements for the Third Anniversary of Armistice Day at the Florence Fair Grounds, next Friday.

THE ELECTION

Two Amendments to Be Voted On Next Tuesday.

Tuesday morning next go to the polls and cast your vote for the Democratic ticket and also for members of the school board and on the Constitutional amendments. The names, L. T. Clow, W. H. Eggleston and Hubert Conner are on the school board and as there are two to be elected each voter will cast his vote for two of those men.

The Constitutional Amendment No. 1 seeks to change the manner in which the State Superintendent is selected. That office is now filled by the votes of the people as are other State offices, and if the Constitutional Amendment No. 1 is adopted the Legislature will provide for the appointment of the State Superintendent of Schools. Some of the people who are interested in the welfare of schools in the state favor the adoption of the Amendment, while others oppose its adoption. Every one wants schools in this State brought up to the highest standard, and the Recorder doubts if the schools would be benefited by the adoption of Amendment No. 1.

Constitutional Amendment No. 2, if adopted, will permit the Legislature to change the manner in which the state school fund is distributed among the various counties, which would reduce the amount received by Boone county, and increase the amount now received by other counties. No real objection can be made to the manner in which the school fund is now distributed, and Amendment No. 2 should be defeated.

Amendment No. 1 takes the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction out of politics. Vote "No" and choose your own official, instead of having him appointed by a partisan politician. If you have not judgment sufficient to select your officers, you had better quit voting and be governed by those who have special privileges of appointing those who are to govern you and run your offices.

ARMISTICE DAY WILL BE OBSERVED AT FLORENCE FAIR GROUNDS

Everybody in the County Should Turn Out and Help The Boys Celebrate This Day.

Good Speakers will be in Attendance And a Good Brass Band Has Been Secured To Make Music.

Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, will have a big day at Florence Fair Grounds to observe Armistice Day. Several good speakers will be in attendance. The program has not been completed but there will be a parade headed by a brass band and "Gold Star" mothers, and also all the veterans of former wars together with members of the Post. No admission will be charged by the Post. The exercises will start promptly at 1 p. m. Everybody should spend an afternoon with the Legion boys.

KEEPING CAPITAL AT HOME.

A great deal of money is saved during an ordinarily prosperous year in a county like Boone, but the greater part of it goes to build up other communities. Investments at a distance look a lot better than those near at hand. If you lived nearer the places where you send your money, you would probably find there were hazards attached to your securities that you know nothing about now.

The towns that have gone ahead and have had a large number of people who had faith in their home town enterprises, and would rather put money into local institutions and home business projects where they know the people and can watch the progress of such propositions.

To realize a city's possibilities, a considerable amount of capital must be invested annually to help hopeful business proposition to acquire their natural growth. If the home folks won't support their own banks and factories and the farms of their outlying country and help them develop, there is not much hope that outsiders will do so.

OCTOBER A FINE MONTH.

Fine weather prevailed during the month of October and most of the farmers in the county caught up with their farm work. During the month killing frosts occurred but were not of any damage of consequence. Tobacco had been safely housed before the frost, but there was some damage to the blades of the latest corn. The cutting of corn is now practically completed, the frosts making it necessary to hasten this work with the late portion of the crop. Corn in the shock dried out much better than expected. Pastures are still furnishing ample grazing.

The world has forgotten all about the fourteen points, but it is still deeply interested in the nine things.

Cost of Retail Distribution.

The cost of distribution is one of the big items in the high prices. It has been claimed for instance, that it costs about 35 per cent of the retail price of shoes to sell them in a retail store. This seems a high charge, yet if it includes freight and trucking, it would not be easy to get it down under present conditions. Where shoes are sold through a wholesaler, freight and trucking charges must be paid from the factory to the jobber's warehouse. Then freight and trucking must be paid at both ends from the wholesaler house to the retail store. These charges eat up a considerable percentage of the cost of the shoes, before the retailer has added a cent for his costs. And buying of a wholesaler is not necessarily more costly. It may help a retailer run on a small stock, replenishing as needed, so that he may save interest charges.

The cost of shoes and many other articles is inflated by the incessant changes in styles. A more expensive to manufacture goods, where the fashions change constantly. If the public demands new styles frequently, the retailer must slash many of his prices about 25 per cent, probably twice a year, in order to work off a lot of his old stock. Hence he must place a price on new and up-to-date goods that will make up for his sacrifice.

While distribution systems may be needlessly expensive, a large part of the loss of goods originates from popular habits of buying. The best way to reduce the cost of retail distribution is for the public to watch the prices of goods offered at advertised stores. These stores do such a large volume of business, that the result of their publicity, that their expense of distribution per article is very low.

GET YOUR PERMIT.

Only a few days until the hunting season opens, and the fields will be alive with hunters when the cotton tails and Bob Whites will be kept on the move. So far no permits have been applied at the County Clerk's office for a hunting license, but from now on it is expected that the clerks will be kept busy issuing the proper credentials to hunt. It is reported that rabbits and quail are plentiful.

FACING A CRISIS.

Kentucky is facing a crisis. In the past Kentucky has never been found wanting. Even in the pioneer days Kentuckians won for the nation all the vast territory of the mountains. They composed the backbone of the army of George Rogers Clarke.

During the Civil War Kentucky contributed its quota to both the Union and Confederate armies. Kentucky never failed the flag when the world seethed with war and men shouldered arms to crush the menace of the domination of Force, called militarism.

To-day the happiness, the prosperity, the financial soundness of all the Blue Grass is imperiled because of an old-time, and outworn system of selling tobacco.

Merced county is facing the greatest money catastrophe of a generation; men are going bankrupt, they are giving up their homes, they are unable to pay their bills. Their children are kept in the fields instead of in schools. The banks are trembling in the balance, because they cannot collect the money they have loaned.

A remedy is at hand. The Co-operative Farm Marketing Association will be formed and the tobacco of Kentucky will be scientifically sold at a good price, if—

If what? If the Kentucky farmers have the good business sense to sign the contract; to pledge 75 per cent of the crop; to place the tobacco situation where it will be a paying business.

Every man who remains out is hurting himself, his neighbor, the prosperity of the community, the well being of the State.

Men of Merced (Boone) what are you going to do?

Join and join all together!

CLEEK'S BIG HOG SALE.

The big Poland China hog sale of J. F. Cleek, which took place at his farm near Kinsington, last Saturday, was attended by a large crowd of hog raisers not only from Boone, but from distant counties. The 50 head sold brought $2,292.50, an average of $44.45. This is an enthusiastic Poland China hog raiser and has since had a long stock of that breed in the United States. All who attended the sale were well taken care of, as a luncheon was served free. The sale was in charge of W. B. Johnson, the silver-tongued auctioneer, of Walton.

When a careful and devoted businessman, the customers way for his sales to show respect to his memory is to adorn and hold up the word that their deceased brother was trying so hard to put along.

ANOTHER OCTOGENARIAN

Answers The Final Summons—John L. Sandford, Passes To His Reward.

John L. Sandford, many years ago a citizen of Burlington, died at his home in Covington, at 10 o'clock last Sunday morning, after an illness of two days of pneumonia.

He was a son of Benjamin and Elizabeth Sandford, who for many years ran a hotel—known as the Sandford House—now owned by the K. of P. Lodge, the upper story of which is occupied as a lodge room, the lower story being occupied by Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick and family.

John Sandford was born on Lick creek in Rabbit Hash neighborhood in April, 1840, and died Oct. 30th, 1921, being 81 years and 6 months old at the time of his death. He served thru the Civil War under the command of Col. Weeden O'Neal and was a member of "bloody Fifth" division.

He was twice married, his first wife was a daughter of E. A. and Nancy (Crisler) Hughes, and to this union two children were born—Geo. W. Sandford, of Glendale, Arizona, and E. A. Sandford, of California.

His second wife was Miss Anna Rush, who with two children, a son and daughter, survive him, viz: Thomas, of Chicago, and Mrs. Blanche Tanner, of Covington. Besides his wife and children he leaves three brothers, Leonard, of Petersburg, Timothy, of Burlington and Robert H., of Covington, and one sister, Mrs. Lucy Parsons, of Milan, Indiana, and a host of friends in Boone county who will be grieved to hear of his passing away.

He remains were buried in Highland cemetery Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

William Afterkirk, 26 years old, of Union neighborhood, was badly Crippled by Shotgun.

William Afterkirk, Jr., 26 years old, of Union neighborhood, was taken to Speers Hospital in Covington, Sunday to receive treatment for a gunshot wound in his leg. It is claimed that the accident occurred when the young man was shooting chicken hawks near his home. The gun which he had placed on a bench, dropped to the ground and one barrel was discharged.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION FRIDAY NOVEMBER 11th AT FLORENCE FAIR GROUNDS.

An excellent program has been arranged for the third anniversary of Armistice Day, which will be fittingly observed by all World War Veterans, veterans of former wars, Gold Star Mothers and Woman's Auxiliary of this county on Friday November 11th at 1 p. m., at Florence Fair Grounds.

The parade, composed of ex-servicemen in uniform Veterans of former wars Gold Star Mothers and Woman's Auxiliary will assemble near the residence of Dr. E. L. Sayre in the town of Florence, and headed by a brass band will march to the Fair Grounds, where the following program will be rendered:

Tank exhibition by Covington Tank Corps; Review of Parade; Community Song and Band Concert; Competitive Drill by ex-servicemen; Speaking by a noted orator; Community song and Band Concert; Prayer by Post Chaplain Rev. Garber, Retreat.

All veterans who desire to take part in the Competitive Drill, will please send their names to R. T. McGlasson, Burlington, R. F. D. 3, on or before November 9th.

RECIPE FOR TRAGEDY

The Lawton News prints the following recipe for a first-class tragedy: Take one reckless, natural-born fool; two or three drinks of bad liquor; a fast, high-powered car; soak the fool well in the liquor, place in the car and let him go. After due time, remove from the wreckage, place in black, satin-lined box and garnish with flowers.

NOTICE.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boone County Farm Bureau will be held in the office in Burlington, Monday Nov. 7 at 10:30 o'clock.

J. COLIN KELLY, Secy.

Very little coming and going in Burlington the past few weeks. The farmers have had very little time to spare as harvesting their crops takes care of their time, and it is impossible to secure farm labor in this county.

If you want to buy pure bred Jersey cattle, attend the sale of H. H. Cleek at Florence fair grounds on Nov. 11th, 1921. No better Jerseys can be found than will be offered at this sale. Your attention is called to his advertisement in this issue.

Making Teaching Attractive.

School authorities frequently remark that so many of the cleverest girls go into business, that it is hard to get competent teachers.

The teaching of the younger generation is the most vital concern that the community has. Everything possible should be done to secure the interest of the most competent young women in this form of work. If the people can make teaching seem so worth while that this calling will take the cream of our educated talent, it will make a tremendous difference in the kind of work the schools accomplish.

Better pay of the teachers is the way to do that. But most places have advanced the salaries of teachers, and do not feel they can afford to increase them further.

Another way to make teaching attractive is to see that teachers are specially honored in the community, and that the life of the towns where they work is made attractive to them. The majority of them are away from their own homes, and they often find it hard to make friends. Many towns are very indifferent to the girls who come to them to do this most essential work, and never make the least effort to welcome them or make the community life pleasant for them. Some supercilious people, who know infinitely less than these young women, actually look down on them.

In many communities however, a special effort is made by the townspeople to make these young women feel at home and to throw wide open the doors of social pleasures to them. They are looked at as a specially cultivated class of people, who are conferring great benefits on the community, and who are interesting folks to know and make friends with. Teachers who work in a town like that value the social relations that they form, and are little inclined to quit a calling that is so esteemed or a city that is so pleasant for them to work in.

SOME OF THE FAITHFUL.

Mr. John Herbstreit, of Constance, while in town last Saturday, transacting business called at our office and handed us $1.50 to retain his seat in our reading circle.

Mr. John Taylor, one of the good citizens of Union neighborhood, sends us $1.50 to have his name added to our list of readers. We are glad to have Mr. Taylor and his good family as readers of the Recorder.

Robert Aylor, of Hebron, was transacting business at the court house, last Friday, and while in town called on the Recorder, and had the date on his subscription moved up another year. He has been a friend and reader of the paper for many years, and never fails to make us a call when on his annual visit to the county seat.

F. M. Aylor, one of the hustling and clever citizens of Hebron neighborhood, was in town last Friday on business. He dropped in to see the Recorder force and gave us $1.50 for a year's ride on our joy wagon. Mr. Aylor has moved into the house recently vacated by Lewis Harding and wife, who have gone to Florida to spend the winter. We are glad to have Mr. Aylor and his wife as members of our reading circle.

Stanley Conrad, one of the county's young and progressive farmers from over on rural route three, was a business visitor to town last Friday. He called at this office and paid for past and future subscription to the Recorder. Stanley, before he was called to the service of his country, during the World War, was the business partner between Burlington and Erlanger. He reports that he has all of his farm work up in good shape.

Thos. Rouse, formerly a citizen of Boone, but now residing at Pleasant Ridge, Ohio, was in Burlington last Saturday meeting old friends and viewing the scenes of days gone by. He made the Recorder office a very pleasant call and paid for another year's subscription in order to keep posted on what his old friends are doing in the Dark and Bloody Ground. He also renewed the subscription of his son, Ira, who is living at San Antonio, Texas.

The Warsaw Independent, after a suspension of several months, on account of the illness and death of the editor, W. S. Griffin, made its appearance on our table again last week, under the management of the Independent Publishing Co. The first number under the new management consists of ten pages of six columns each full of good local news devoted to the interest of Gallatin county, with a Sparta and Glencoe section of one page each. We are glad to have the Independent among our exchanges again.

BOYD FARMER MAKES

POOR LAND PRODUCE

That land which is too poor to grow clover may be built up so that it will produce high yields of crops is shown by results obtained by Wade Bryant, a Boyd county farmer, who cooperated with County Agent L. M. Amburgey and the extension division of the College of Agriculture in conducting a demonstration involving the use of limestone and acid phosphate on nine and one-half acres on his farm.

In spite of the fact that the soil had previously been too poor to grow a clover crop, Mr. Bryant obtained a yield of 22 bushels of wheat in 1920 which was considered good for the season and this year had a good stand of clover from which a heavy crop of hay was taken. The clover was turned under this fall after it had grown to be about two feet high and preparations made to sow another crop of wheat.

The system used by Mr. Bryant in building up his soil involves methods which can be used by any farmer, according to soil specialists. In the fall of 1919 he applied limestone and then later seeded wheat using an application of 200 pounds of acid phosphate an acre. In the spring of 1920 he seeded red clover in the wheat. In seeding his wheat this fall the clover was turned under. Mr. Bryant used 175 pounds of acid phosphate an acre and next spring will seed clover again. He has been highly pleased with the results obtained in rebuilding the soil.

BEES NEED PROTECTION

DURING WINTER MONTHS

Neglecting to give bees protection during the winter is responsible for the death of many hives and causes a weakened condition of many more before spring arrives, according to H. H. Jewett, bee specialist at the College of Agriculture. Bee keepers who wish to avoid losses should begin now to prepare their colonies for winter, Mr. Jewett said. All supers should be removed after the first killing frost and food provided for the bees in case there is a lack of stores. A strong ten-framed colony should weigh from 40 to 60 pounds.

The colonies may be packed in boxes singly, in pairs or in groups of four the main object being to provide plenty of air currents and the entrances away from the prevailing cold winds. The hives should be completely surrounded by from 4 to 10 inches of insulating material. Dry leaves may be used provided they are packed tightly. The packing should not be delayed until winter weather comes since harmful consequences result when the bees are disturbed during the winter. The entrances should be about three-eighths of an inch wide.

FARMERS TO HAVE HELP IN FIGHT ON BLIGHT OF SPUDS

In order to help farmers of the State combat the late blight of potatoes which this year resulted in heavy losses plans are already being made by the extension division of the College of Agriculture for winter and spring meetings and summer spraying demonstrations to show farmers of the State the importance of this method of controlling the disease, according to an announcement by J. S. Gardner, field agent in horticulture under whose direction the work is being carried on. Dates for meetings are being arranged on request in counties where farmers were troubled with the disease and other plans being made to assist as many growers as possible in reducing the loss which blight causes to their crops.

A number of farmers this year controlled the blight in their fields by spraying with Bordeaux mixture as many as three times during the season. Fields which were sprayed three times have been practically free of the pest while heavy losses occurred in those which were not sprayed, according to Mr. Gardner.

CLEAN STRAW IS IMPORTANT IN MULCHING STRAWBERRIES

Strawberry growers who wish to keep their plant beds clean and free from weeds will do well to avoid the use of unclean straw in mulching the beds this fall, specialists on the crop say. Wheat straw is best provided it is free of grain kernels since these will sprout in the spring and cause extra labor in cleaning out the bed. The straw should be placed from four to six inches deep on the plants, according to N. R. Elliott, of the College of Agriculture. Mulching should not be done until after the first freeze in order that insects may be prevented from hiding in the straw and infesting the plants the following spring and summer.

In case broom sage and crab grass is used to mulch the beds less material should be used than in the case of wheat straw since broom sage and crab grass settle closely and may smother the plants. Mulching of the beds is practiced to conserve moisture, keep down weeds and keep dirt off of the berries during the following season. Best results can be obtained only when the practice is carefully followed, the specialists say.

James Whitcomb Riley wrote about the frost being on the pumpkin, which is good for poetry but not good for the pumpkin.

Limestone is receiving special attention from Owen county farmers, a report from County Agent David P. Morris states. More than 600 tons of this material have been crushed in the county as a result of a lime campaign while six farmers will cooperate in conducting demonstration to show its value in increasing crop yields.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Fall pastures are good.

Tuesday is Election Day.

Next Monday is county court.

J. M. Barlow's new residence is nearing completion.

Fishing for Jack salmon in the Ohio river is said to be great sport now.

W. R. Feldhaus, of Big Bone, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Saturday.

If you do not favor the Amendments to the Constitution, do not fail to Vote "No."

October furnished quite a number of pretty days. Here is hoping that November does likewise.

What is it that occurs once in a minute, twice in a week, once in a year and twice in a life time?

Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly spent Sunday with Chas. Kelly and family, in Locust Grove neighborhood.

Harold Criger, of Hebron neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington Monday morning.

Grover Snyder and wife, of Madison, Indiana, visited relatives and friends in Burlington, last week.

Mrs. Geo. Kreylich attended the Grand Lodge meeting of the Eastern Star at Owensboro, Ky., last week.

Rome Respass, of the Dixie Highway, above Florence, was transacting business in Burlington, last Thursday.

Lloyd Weaver and Herbert Kirkpatrick spent last Saturday fishing in the Ohio river near Bellevue, for jack salmon.

The falling leaves are giving the ladies of Burlington considerable extra work. There is a very heavy crop of them.

Earl and Russell Smith had one of their larger farm mares to die, last Sunday, from lock jaw, caused by a barbed wire cut.

Formerly people got ready for winter by laying in food and fuel supplies, but now they stock up with the latest fall styles.

Mrs. Louise White after a two months visit with relatives in Loveland, Ohio, and Newport, returned home last Sunday.

Klinghoffer Bros., of Aurora, Indiana, are doing the brick work on Dr. Yelton's new house. They are experts at the work.

For the common everyday ills of mankind there is nothing to equal Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

Dr. H. H. Hayes, of Cleves, Ohio, was in Burlington, last Thursday meeting old friends and looking over the scenes of days gone-by.

The Busy "B" Society was entertained by Mrs. F. H. Rouse, last Thursday evening. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. N. W. Carpenter's.

The law on rabbits will be out the 15th day of November. Post your farm Mr. Farmer. Send us 50 cents and we will post it for you the entire season.

Tanlac is purely vegetable and is made from the most beneficial roots, herbs and barks known to science. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

Banish that awful insomnia that worries you every night. Let your sleep be restful and refreshing. Tanlac does it. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington, Ky.

There are two million more males than females in this country, and the way the minority of women run things, is an illustration of the superiority of mind over matter.

Formerly Mother used to worry for fear the children would get hurt by explosions in the chemistry class, but now she is more concerned about Father's home brew blowing up.

Some of our local hunters are getting very anxious for the hunting season to open and are getting their guns in shape for the 15th day of this month, when everybody and his dog will be afield.

Jesse Kirkpatrick brought to town last Sunday, several blackberry blooms, he found while roaming thru the fields. They were as perfect as when the blackberry bushes first bloom in the spring.

Tuesday Nov. 16th, Mr. Cam Kennedy will sell a lot of personal property, also two farms. The sale will take place at his residence near Fopel church. Read his advertisement in another column.

WE WANT SALESMEN

If you have ability as a salesman, and $500 to put into merchandise, here is your opportunity. Our line is not new. It has been on the market for years but has never been introduced in your territory.

Many of our distributors make several hundred dollars a month. Our unique sales plan and our special assistance, together with our quality goods, make it easy for you to start in business.

We are a widely known concern, located in South Bend, Ind. We have a special plan for placing our line in your territory, and want a man to represent us NOW.

Some man in your territory is going to accept our proposition and get started in a splendid paying and mighty fine business.

ARE YOU THE MAN?

If you are, we have a real, clean cut, honest proposition we should like to present to you.

Are you interested in getting ahead, in making more money by introducing a widely known line of proven merit right into your own vicinity where you are well acquainted? Your territory is open.

Without in any way obligating yourself, send at once for full particulars about the unusually profitable opportunity we now have for you.

No previous experience required, and only $500 necessary.

The sale of the personal property of C. E. White, at his farm out on the Burlington and Waterloo pike, last Saturday afternoon was attended by a fair sized crowd, and property sold at right good prices. Mr. White has leased his farm and a tenant on his place. This explains why they were so large and so many in a hill.

Read all the advertisements in this issue of the Recorder.

W. G. Kite, of Waterloo neighborhood, while in town, last Saturday evening, informed us that the sweet potatoes for which he was given credit for raising, in last week's paper, were raised by Leomer Louder, a tenant on his place. This explains why they were so large and so many in a hill.

Burlington has been on the boom in the way of building this summer.

Me-o-my, how you'll take to a pipe—and P. A.!

Before you're a day older you want to let the idea slip under your hat that this is the open season to start something with a joy'us jimmy pipe—and some Prince Albert!

Because, a pipe packed with Prince Albert satisfies a man as he was never satisfied before—and keeps him satisfied! And, you can prove it! Why—P. A.'s flavor and fragrance and coolness and its freedom from bite and parch (cut out by our exclusive patented process) are a revelation to the man who never could get acquainted with a pipe! P. A. has made a pipe a thing of joy to four men where one was smoked before!

Ever roll up a cigarette with Prince Albert? Man, man—but you've got a party coming your way! Talk about a cigarette smoke; we tell you it's a peach!

Prince Albert is sold in tippy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tins, humidor and in the ground crystal glass humidor with sponge maintenance top.

IMPROVED HANDLING CAUSES HEAVY LOSS OF FERTILIZER

Kentucky's heavy loss of fertilizer annually is estimated at $20,000,000. This is due to the fact that the fertilizer is lost through improper handling and is contained in suggestions on the care and handling of this material which have just been issued by the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture to farmers of the State. A portion of the many tons produced is deposited on pastures where the returns from it are not as great as on cultivated fields but in spite of this fact the proper conservation of this animal industry by-products is an important phase of profitable farming, according to the suggestions. Kentucky has sufficient livestock to produce 10,000,000 tons of this fertilizer annually which has a value of $10,000,000 based on the results obtained on experimental fields of the State.

Figures showing that more than 50 per cent of the fertility contained in the thousands of tons of farm manure produced annually in Kentucky is lost through improper handling are contained in suggestions on the care and handling of this material which have just been issued by the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture to farmers of the State. A portion of the many tons produced is deposited on pastures where the returns from it are not as great as on cultivated fields but in spite of this fact the proper conservation of this animal industry by-products is an important phase of profitable farming, according to the suggestions. Kentucky has sufficient livestock to produce 10,000,000 tons of this fertilizer annually which has a value of $10,000,000 based on the results obtained on experimental fields of the State.

Leaving the material stacked in the barnyard where it is exposed to the elements is the one factor responsible for the largest losses of fertility, according to the suggestions. Loose floors in stables and the use of an insufficient amount of bedding to absorb liquid materials are other factors which contribute to a waste of the plant food contained in the farm product.

By use of a few ordinary practices such of the loss which is now taking place may be prevented, the suggestions point out. Small expense is required to make floors tight and to absorb the liquid portions which represent one-half the total value of the material, agronomy specialists of the college say. Hauling and spreading the manure rather than placing it in piles as soon as it is removed from the stables represents another means which farmers in take to prevent losses. When read on and land or a growing crop such as wheat there will be less in the field than anywhere else. Spreading the manure on corn and bacco land is the most profitable use to which the material can be put. One of these crops need the nitrogen and organic matter which the material contains. Best results are obtained when the manure is spread only to cover as many acres as possible. Manure supplemented with phosphate is the best fertilizer for poor soils, the suggestions point out.

Notice.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Mr. Emma Brown, who has been postmaster at Burlington for the past one and one-half years, sent her resignation to the Postoffice Department some time ago to take effect December 1, 1921.

Mr. Brown has faithfully performed the duties of the office during these years and the patrons of the office regret that a change is necessary. The rural friends presented Brown as a token of friendship good will with a tortoise shell and brush.

Mr. Courtney K. Kelly will succeed Mr. Brown as he has been elected by all members of the Republican county committee for the position. Mr. Kelly was born and has lived near Burlington all of his life. He is a graduate of Boone County School and the patrons of the school office can be assured he will conduct the duties of the office in a manner that will be appreciated by all with whom he transacts business.

Recent poultry culling demonstration lectures in Barren county resulted in more than 40 far-reaching tankage to their hens in order to increase egg production, according to a report of County Agent Horning who cooperated with extension division of the College of Agriculture in giving the demonstration. The tankage will be used to increase the ration already being

GIFTS THEATRE.

"Over the Hill," the William Fox special film feature which has been drawing record crowds to the Gifts Theatre, Cincinnati. Its opening and three acts to remain indelible, is certainly deserving of all the applause the New York press has said about it, and unanimously endorsed by the Cincinnati critics and public. The picture is delightful at all times, and forces one of the most finely balanced examples of sentiment and comedy combined that has been seen on the screen.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

Tellie Baker, headliner on the bill of B. F. Keith's Theatre this week, is classified as "the incomparable," her particular line of entertainment being marked by the highest degree of versatility, as well as originality. One of the "girls" of many languages, "a girl" in importance on the bill, with such other well-known vaudeville stars as Ben Barker in the first, "Provocation," Harry Johnson, brother of Al, in comedy duets; William Sully and Genevieve Hamilton, in "Golf Love," Russell and Devitt, "acrobatics," to gether with the living pictures, "Shadowland," rounding out the program.

LYRIC THEATRE.

Even Tanguay, the dynamic, is the headliner at the Lyric Theatre this week, where her singing of "Hello Eva," "I'll Get Famous Yet," "I Don't Care," "Sambo," and others, are proving as irresistible as ever. She also has a new line of patter quite as amusing as anything she has ever offered. Gladys Crank and dancers in tropical costumes; Lydia McMillan and Bert Snow in the comedy, "Contrary," Cloud and Hutchinson, pianists and comedians; "Harmoniland," a quartette number, and the Wylie Brothers, acrobats, are others on the vaudeville bill. "The Forgotten Woman," starring Pauline Stark, is the photoplay feature.

FLORENCE.

Lewis Houston spent last Sunday with relatives in Crescent Springs.

Anyone wanting a Presbyterian cook book can get them at Mrs. Lucy Tanner's.

Mrs. J. O. Carpenter spent Wednesday with Mrs. Cliff Norman, in Covington.

Mr. Tom Penn of Georgetown, spent several days last week with G. T. Renaker.

Mrs. J. G. Renaker entertained G. T. Renaker and family and Mr. Tom Penn, of Georgetown.

Mrs. Charles Nead returned to her home in Louisville after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nead.

Miss Christine Renaker has returned home after a visit with relatives and friends at Cincinnati.

Clarence Carpenter and John P. Crouch leave this week for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Miss Alma McMurrer and Richard Thompson of Newport, spent last Thursday evening with Miss Jennie Lail.

Mrs. Virginia Popham and Mrs. Martha Souther of Ft. Pleasant, were the guests of Mrs. Robt. Brown last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hollinsworth, Misses Carrie Clark and Elizabeth Lawrence, of Covington, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seelya and Miss Lillian Coggage, of Erlanger, were the guests of John Swimm and wife, Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Dell Goodridge who is attending school at Vitis Madonna, was the weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Goodridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Popham entertained the following at dinner last Sunday: Mrs. Amanda Tanner, Mrs. Martha Souther, Mrs. Jennie Popham Will Waters wife and son, Clem Kendall and wife, Robert Brown and wife, Harvey Tanner and wife, Monzo Benson and wife, Clifford Tanner and wife, Clyde Anderson and wife, August Dell, Lawrenceburg and wife, Chester Brown, Raymond and Harold Beeman, Berkham Herington, Lillian Backler, Marvin Kendall, Gordon Lail wife and daughter, James Tanner, Elmer Tanner, Earl Tanner, Wilford Tanner, Edie and Irene Brown, Ida and Alma Tanner.

Mrs. Jake Lachline and daughter Stella entertained the following on Friday evening, those present were as follows: Misses Helen Schumm, Alice Jetter, Edna Jetter, Florence Walker, Helen Smith, Gladys Myers, Southern, Kathleen Lail, Emma Lail, Lucille Scott, Mrs. Mike Paul, Mrs. J. G. Rendell, Mrs. Thos. Scott, and Mrs. G. E. Schumm.

Messrs. Earl Souther, Jimmie Harrison, Chas. Corbin, Paul Renaker, Winfield Myers, John P. Crouch and Edwin Carpenter. The house was beautifully decorated to suit the occasion, and games music and dancing were enjoyed until a late hour, after which a delightful lunch was served. All left thanking Mrs. Stella for the way in which she entertained.

Public Sale OF Boone Co. River Bottom Farm

The Constitutional Amendments.

That the people of Kentucky, of whatever political faith, can and do disregard differences of political opinion and work together on any vital issue that promotes the general welfare of the entire state, is evidenced by an advertisement which appears on another page in this issue, drawing the attention of all voters to the great need of amending the constitution at the coming election to permit of removing the administration of our educational system from the smothering influence of partisan politics.

The advertisement referred to is being released in more than on hundred papers throughout the state, and in the list of citizens contributing toward the cost of this publicity are men and women of both political parties representing every section of the state.

MONEY AND MARKETS

The last thirty days have been characterized by slowly improving sentiment and by some expansion of production. The most marked gains have naturally been in those lines where recovery has been the longest delayed. Bituminous coal production is increasing, and while partially seasonal, this to some extent is due to enlarged operations in the iron and steel industry, which is now running at about 40 per cent, of capacity. There has been less change in the rate of production of other leading industries, but gains made since midsummer have so far held. Activity in the building trades is well maintained.

Autumn buying is reflected in an improved retail dry-goods trade. It is noteworthy that this betterment is more marked in rural districts than in industrial centers. This is clearly the result of the marketing of cotton and grain crops at fairly satisfactory prices, and affords grounds for confidence that the extreme depression in the agricultural industry of the United States has definitely passed.

Wholesale prices of a number of raw materials have advanced since September 15, while the markets in several lines have been somewhat more active.

BABIES IN BUNCHES

The prediction is made by Prof. Charles Kirschhoff, a foreign savant, that during the next six years twins, triplets and even quadruplets will be commonly experienced. He says that the birth of a single will be a rarity. He sees all this in the position of some planets.

The Business Girl's Dress.

Many people feel that young women spend too much on their clothes, and the one who uses her entire income for personal adornment comes in for unfavorable comment. Her course is defended by many girls who feel that only in that way can a young woman get attention. If she is dowdy and dull and drab, she does not succeed either socially or in business. Also most girls feel that the only way to compel the attention of men and make a good marriage, is to dress stylishly.

There is something in both points of view and the bright girl will choose the golden mean. The unattractive woman is handicapped. There is something in good clothes that does win respect and create interest. But many girls carry style so far that their employers consider them extravagant, and hence think them unfit for business responsibility. They are apt to obtain the attention of flashy suitors than to win the regard of substantial men.

Many girls seem to feel not merely that they must have stylish clothes but they must have a large variety of the same. Free spending by the young women entered largely into the carnival of extravagance that nearly ruined the country last year. Many business girls nowadays look forward to enterprises of their own, and they need a foundation of savings to start with. A few attractive clothes would be a better asset than such a variety as suggests extravagance.

In these times many girls make their own dresses, so that frequently they do not spend so much as people think. The girl who has learned to make pretty and stylish clothes for herself is entitled to the benefit of her skill, and she does not commonly spend unreasonably.

Team Play in the Government.

To get anything done in the way of government, the different elements in a political party must have some unity of feeling. They must recognize that the public calls on them for action, and that there never can be action unless the various factions unite and decide on some specific lines of policy and have them put through.

This was one distinguishing characteristic of the Wilson administration. It was marvelous how for a period of six years and until the Republicans carried Congress, all elements yielded to the leadership of Mr. Wilson and got things done.

They have made some mistakes, but at least they did not dawdle around and accomplish nothing the way the present Congress is doing. There was a willingness to submit factional and sectional feeling to the judgment of the wisest leaders of the party.

Under that regime there was enacted the federal reserve act, the greatest financial measure ever constructed by our government and one that carried the country safely thru the most terrible financial cataclysm in history. Income tax legislation was put on the statute books that for the first time placed just principles of assessment in our laws and secured their bulk of the war costs from people of large wealth who could not afford to pay it. Many other laws were put through under this forceful leadership.

The Republican party in Congress is showing none of this team play. Its various factions and sectional elements can not get together and are fighting each other instead of solving the problems that so insistently demand remedy. Such a policy of nonachievement is worse than negative mistakes. The people will forgive men who go ahead and try to do something, but when they simply drift helplessly and accomplish nothing, the country is sick and tired of their incompetence.

Our Town Citizens Interested

It is the hope of every citizen of our little town, that our country brethren raise bumper crops each year and get good prices. This fact is shown by the way our fellow townsmen get blue when we have a drouth or a series of low prices.

It is the hope not only of the citizens of our little town, but of our cities, that the tobacco movement is a success and that our farmers get good prices for their tobacco for the next five years.

It stands to reason that we are very anxious to see our farmers grow big crops and get good prices, and those who think for a moment that the citizens of Burlington are not very anxious to see our farmers succeed, are wrong.

Commissioner of Agriculture Hanna, of Frankfort, was in Boone last week in the interest of the Co-operative plan of Marketing tobacco. Commissioner Hanna together with Farm Agent Sutton, were urging the tobacco growers to sign up their tobacco, as it is the only thing for the grower to do in order to get a fair price for the tobacco he cultivates. No one should hesitate to sign the contract. Do not let Boone be one of the slacker counties, put her over the top, not 75 per cent, but 100 per cent.

TRIBUTE TO MOTHER LOVE

By Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri.

The following beautiful tribute to mother love is in part a speech made in Congress, recently, by Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, addressing himself to the maternity bill. It is destined to become a classic, and should be read and preserved by every school pupil in the country:

"Mother love! The golden cord that stretches from the throne of God, uniting all animate creation to divinity. Its light gleams down the pathway from barbarian ages, when savage mothers held their babes to almost famished breasts and died that they might live. Its holy flame glows as brightly in hovels where poverty breaks its message out to the palaces where wealth holds Lucullan feasts. It is the one great universal passion of sacrifice incomparable in its sublimity.

"The wild beasts hear its voice and answer to its call. A tigress, finding her cubs slaughtered, pauses to lick their wounds, and then with raging heart seeks out their murderers. A she-wolf, standing at the mouth of her den, with gleaming fangs and blood-red tongue, dies in defense of her whelps.

"I once saw a timorous mother quail with marvelous intelligence, and still more marvelous courage, protect her brood by exposing herself to the hunter's deadly aim. I then realized that nothing could take the place of mother love.

"It is the divine fire so warm and thrills the breast of beast and bird; with what intensity does it consume the bosom, with what ecstasy inspire the soul of woman for the child of her body. Although she knows she must risk her life in bringing forth new life, she does not draw back. Her live-lit eyes behold only visions of happiness, of glory, and of power to be realized by her unborn child.

With smiling lips and eager heart, she enters the vale of shadows. The first cry of the newborn wails on her ear, and here is the music of paradise. Her trembling hands caress the tender skin; her soul cries out the anxious question: 'Will my baby live?' The torturing days of convalescence fly swiftly upon wings of hope. She nestles the tiny, helpless thing to her bosom, sustains it with the milk of her body, every drop drawn from a fountain of infinite love.

"With undivided solitude she watches o'er her offspring. Even when her body slumbers her soul vigil and hands, in unison with her spirit, will stretch forth to soothe the baby back to sleep. With glowing pride she watches the growing child, shields it from harm, guides it along the path of rectitude, inspires its soul with lofty sentiments of honor and faith in the Eternal God.

"When time has piled the snow upon her head and turned her brow or raven locks to white, her love still abides, riper and sweeter, with the passing years. Though she may live until her children themselves have grown old and gray, she yet will see the silken locks of youth; their roughened hands yet have the caressing touch of baby fingers; voices bear to her the tender and melodious notes of infancy. And when at last she approaches the portals of death, there is no solace so sweet as the presence of those she bore to people and replenish the earth."

For mother love there is no substitute. If there be truth in religion, then this holy sentiment was planted in woman's heart by the hand of God. It has made life possible. It is in truth the very sauce of life itself. When all other passions are dead it survives. It will pass through the fiery furnace of disgrace and yet live. It will endure the scorching breath of contumely with unwavering fidelity.

"A mother will enter prisons of shame and kiss a felon hand thrust through the bars. She will sit beside the accused in courts of law, when the mob jeers and the heartless machinery of justice grinds its grist of agony, and with unwavering faith maintain her child is innocent. She will stand at the foot of the scaffold and when the trap has fallen, cover the condemned body with kisses and flowers. It is still to her the innocent suckling she once hugged to her breast.

"But if the path of love has led her sons to fields of honor, her heart will glow with pride, ineffable, unspeakable. If he is called to war, she will bid him good-bye with dry eyes, although her body is filled with tears. She will maintain a firm and heroic faith that he may gain sublime courage from the military example. When he sleeps upon the tented field, her spirit will keep watch. Whilst he is slumbering she will pray. In the agony of waiting she will die a thousand deaths, but she will choke back her sobs and hide her torture. She will search for him amongst the slain, and try with kisses to warm the dead and unresponsive lips to life. She will coffin her heart with the beloved body and her soul will keep the eternal vigil of a deathless love.

"Mother love! It has produced, founded, reared, inspired and glorified all the shadowy hosts who have passed across the 'bank of time' since man first raised his eyes toward the heavens. It is, I say again, the golden cord that binds the earth to God."

fed all the shadowy hosts who have passed across the "bank of time" since man first raised his eyes toward the heavens. It is, I say again, the golden cord that binds the earth to God."

HE'S NOT ALONE

IN HIS PLAIN

Going the rounds in business circles in this country is the copy of a letter received by a London bank from one of its customers. Practically everyone who reads it says, "Me too." It follows:

"Dear Sir: For the following reasons I regret being unable to reduce my overdraft. I have been held up, set down, sandbagged, walked on, sat upon, flattened out and squeezed by our income tax, the super tax, the excess profits tax, war loans, war bonds war savings certificates, the automobile tax, and by every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can invent to extract what I may or may not have in my possession.

"By the Red Cross, Blue Cross, St. Dunstan's, the Children's Home, the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Belgian Relief, the Austrian Relief, the Black Cross, the Double Cross, and every hospital in the town or country.

"The Government has governed my business so that I do not know who owns it. I am inspected, suspected, examined and re-examined, informed, required and commanded, so that I don't know who I am or why I am here at all. All that I know is that I am supposed to be an inexhaustible supply of money for every human need, desire or hope of the human race, and because I will not sell all I have and go out and beg, borrow or steal money to give away, I am cursed, discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied about, and held up, hung up, robbed and damned near killed, and the only reason I see I am hanging on to life now is to see what will happen next."

SUPPORTING EDUCATION

Money for public schools comes hard in many places. Sometimes it would be easier if it didn't come so hard, to state a paradox. There were towns that refused to build needed school houses during the period before the war, that now have put them up at two or three times the cost that would have been adequate in 1910. Mighty little economy there.

The school appropriation is commonly the largest single form of municipal expenditure. But as the future of the community depends on its schools more than on any other one thing, this is only natural and it should be so.

Many economists oppose making a reasonable appropriation for schools on the ground that the sum spent is already large. But they fail to ask whether it is as much as other progressive communities of the same size or wealth are expending. A town must have schools comparing favorably with its competitors, if it is to continue to grow and flourish. A town that has a reputation for good schools will draw new comers much faster than one that has not this distinction. Good schools pay for themselves, by turning out a superior class of young people who are able to do better work for the advancement of business and civic progress. Also they pay for themselves by attracting residents who desire the best facilities for their young folks.

It is not enough simply to make liberal appropriations for education. The people must see that the money is well expended. The utmost care should be given to the selection of school boards. The brainiest and business-like in the community should feel it a sacred duty to accept of office in this position when called upon. Self-seekers and politicians who attempt to use the schools for personal or political purposes be shown where they belong.

WANT ADS FOR HUSBANDS

The shortage of men in Vienna has reached a crucial stage and there are from three to five columns of advertisements in the newspapers every day, placed there by girls who want husbands. It is estimated there are ten girls to every man in Vienna and specific inducements are offered prospective husbands in the ads, which all wind up with the words, "Object matrimony."

MRS. MARY GRAVES, DEAD.

Mrs. Mary Rolf Graves, widow of Allie M. Graves, whose death was published in the RECORDER three weeks ago, died at her home in Dresden, Pa., on the 1st inst., two weeks after the death of her husband. This, together with a nervous breakdown was the cause of her death. Her remains were brought to Highland cemetery on the 2nd and buried by the side of her husband.

Miss Alma Edwards, of Edgerton, Kansas, sends us $1.50 for a year's subscription to the Recorder. We will do our level best to entertain this young lady with the news from old Boone county.

DIPHThERIA PREVALENT

IN KENTUCKY

Hundreds of unnecessary cases of diphtheria are occurring all over Kentucky. Dozens of schools are being closed for weeks with the resulting money and time loss, to say nothing of the unnecessary suffering and death. This Board has instructed me to appeal to the newspapers of the State to make this condition plain to the public so that we may reduce this unnecessarily high sick and death rate. It is of especial importance that it be made clear that there would be no deaths from diphtheria if antitoxin were administered in large enough doses early enough, and every case kept in close quarantine by the family until there is no danger of its spread. It is rarely necessary to close a school, and would never be necessary if there were in any county where they have an All-Time Health Department enough nurses to be able to get to and examine all the children in the school district where the disease exists.

Thanking you for your continued cooperation in our work, without which it would be impossible for us to have accomplished anything for your people, I am,

Very Truly Yours,
A. T. McCORMACK
State Health Officer

Louisville, Ky.
Whereas, diphtheria, a highly infectious disease, especially dangerous to children, is reported as prevalent in almost every section of the State; and

Whereas, the prompt administration of antitoxin early enough in each case gives prompt and practically certain relief;
NOW, THEREFORE, the State Board of Health, acting within authority conferred upon it by law, hereby requests parents and others having charge of children to promptly isolate in a well ventilated room any child having a sore throat, especially if there are white patches in the throat, and immediately secure the services of a physician. It is urged that not less than 10,000 units of antitoxin be given as soon as diphtheria is suspected, and repeated in larger doses when necessary.

The attention of the parents is called to the provision of law that no children can be released from quarantine for diphtheria until two negative reports have been received from specimens sent in to the State Laboratory. As soon as the people comply with this law, there will be no sickness or death from diphtheria.

The attention of the less progressive counties of the State is called to the ease with which such epidemics are managed, and the efficiency with which they are controlled in the counties having All-Time Health Departments with enough public health nurses, and the county officials and the people from the other counties are urged to study the methods used in Fulton, Muhlenberg, Davies, Jefferson, Scott, Madison, Boyd and Hanover counties, and the city of Lexington, to see how the health and lives of their children may be preserved at far less expense than this and other epidemics are constantly costing. It is urged that school boards and others in authority arrange to have children under their control tested for susceptibility to diphtheria, and immunized where this is necessary.

Given under our hands and the Seal of the Board at Louisville, this November 1, 1921.

John G. South President, A. T. McCORMACK, Secretary.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR.

The bobwhite is plentiful this year. Two successive mild winters and three good breeding seasons have resulted in a very large crop of quail. According to reports to the Biological Survey, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Illinois, and Indiana there has not been such an abundance of quail in many years. The department is now sending out a report that the bobwhite is abundant in their localities, notably in Ohio, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa.

CAN WE BELIEVE IN "SIGNS"?

If the "signs" are to be relied upon, the winter will be an open winter. The old superstition holds that a scare of the birds in autumn is a sign of a bad winter. The walnut and hickory crop is said to be the best for many years.

SAVED BY MILK BATH

A baby of Middletown, N. Y., was quick-witted enough to place a blooded nail of his in a butter milk bath, when the animal kicked over a bedstead and was stung by the angry bee. The hot cream took the poison out of the miserable wounds and the child is well again.

Dried figs are, weight for weight, more nourishing than bread.

Who Made the First Scissors?

When you pick up the family scissors, after you have found them, for they have an astounding ability to hide, and saw or hack irritably thru the thing you want to cut, is you ever wonder who made the first pair?

From the state that the usual house-shears are in you may think that you own the original bifurcated knife. The origin of the first pair of scissors is lost, as is the pair itself, in the dust of ages. Some have been found in the relics of ancient Greece and Rome, they have been known in China as far back as it is possible to go and they have been found made of bronze and practically every other metal that man has used. They have been of the roughest in construction and use and they have been made of silver and gold heavily jeweled for the fair women of each age, but never, until now have they been improved and made more useful.

It was left for an American, working with an American company under American patents, in the new world, to make perfect one of the most ancient instruments of man. Eventually there will be put on the market, in sizes and shapes for every purpose, scissors that have a touch of the miraculous about them, for they never need to be sharpened.

These new shears are made so that, when the edge wears you give a simple twist of the wrist and insert this new blades of tempered razor-like steel into the notches occupied by the old blades you have removed, and the scissors regenerated. The day has past, after many thousand years, when you have to buy new scissors to get a new, clean cutting edge. From the barber and the surgeon to the mother with her sewing and the kiddie in kindergarten, every one will find life smoother when it is possible to discard the primitive and have shears that will cut.

I AM THE FARMER.

Waverly, (Minn., Tribune).
I am the provider for all mankind. Upon me every human being constantly depends.

A world itself is built upon my toil, my products, my honesty. Because of my industry, America, my country, leads the world. Her prosperity is maintained by me; her great commerce is the work of my good hands; her "balance of trade" springs from the furrows of my farm.

My reaper brings food for today; my plow holds promise for tomorrow.

In war I am absolute; in peace I am indispensable—my country's surest defense and constant reliance.

I am the very soul of America, the hope of my race, the balance wheel of civilization.

When I prosper, men are happy; when I fail all the world suffers. I live with nature, walk in the green fields under the golden sunlight, out in the great alone where brain and brawn and toil supply mankind's primary need. And I try to do my humble part to carry out the great plan of God.

Even the birds are my companions they greet me with a symphony at the new day's dawn and chum with me till the evening's prayer is said.

If it were not for me the treasures of the earth would remain securely locked; the granaries would be useless frames; man himself would be doomed speedily to extinction and decay.

Through me is produced the energy that maintains the spark of life. I rise with the early dawn and retire when the "chores" of the world are done.

I am your true friend.
I am the farmer.

MARTHA COLLINS FARM SOLD.

The 101 acre farm belonging to the Martha Collins estate below Petersburg, adjacent to the Aurora Ferry, was sold at public auction last Saturday, for $13,625, Mr. Frank Klapp being the purchaser. The farm is opposite Aurora, Indiana, and it is said to be one of the best located truck farms in the Petersburg bottoms.

POOLED WOOL SOLD.

The Boone county pooled wool was sold last Monday to S. S. & Son, of Louisville, at a satisfactory price. Will receive wool at Walton Monday Nov. 14; Burlington, Tuesday Nov. 15; Bullittsville Wednesday Nov. 16, in the morning; Petersburg in the afternoon.

J. H. STEVENS.

HE IS A HUSTLER

Ed. Burris, from out on R. D. 3, who has been hustling in Burlington last Saturday afternoon, Ed. is one of the county's hustling farmers. He reported that he had sold 2500 worth of potatoes this season, and has 110 bushels left, besides he has on hand a good crop of tobacco.

OYSTER SUPPER

Oyster Supper at the Fall Festival given by St. Paul's church, at St. Paul's Hall, Florence, Ky., Saturday evening, Nov. 19th, 1921. Tickets 50 cents. Everybody invited.

JERRY UNDERHILL DEAD

Jerry Underhill died last Sunday morning, Nov. 6th, 1921, at his home near Hannersville, Ohio. Mr. Underhill had been suffering from cancer of the liver and also a liver trouble. He was the youngest child of the late Elder John Underhill, a prominent preacher of the old days for the Primitive Baptist church. Mr. Underhill was in his 67th year and had resided at the old home place about two miles southeast of Burlington the greater part of his life. Several years ago he moved to Ohio, but moved back to the home place where he resided until he moved to his present home in Ohio. He was a bachelor and lived a quiet life, honored and respected by all who knew and had business transactions with him. He is survived by a number of nieces and nephews, to name his sons, as well as a number of friends in Ohio and Kentucky. The funeral services were held in Highland cemetery Wednesday morning, after which the remains were laid to rest in that beautiful city of the dead.

JAMES SMITH DEAD.

James Smith, one of the oldest citizens in Bellevue, has pulled his last card, he passed to the Great Beyond Tuesday morning in his 82nd year. Mr. Smith carried the mail to Bellevue across the Ohio river for a number of years, and during all of that time he was punctual and would cross the river in order to make his trips when the waves were rolling so high it was thought impossible that his skill could weather the storm, but with but few exceptions he made his trips. He had the reputation of being one of the best fishermen on the river and was found at this business summer and winter. He is survived by his widow and five children. His remains were interred in the Bellevue cemetery Wednesday afternoon.

ENTERTAINED WITH AN OYSTER SUPPER.

Mr. Herbert Snyder of Flickertown, entertained with an oyster supper last Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Snyder. The evening was spent with music and games and every one present enjoyed themselves until a late hour, when they departed for their homes wishing Herbert many happy returns of the evening. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Grant.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Voshell.
Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White.
Mr. and Mrs. John Burns.
Mr. and Mrs. William Terrill.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maxwell.
Mr. and Mrs. Leland Snyder.
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Finn.
Mr. Otto Rector.

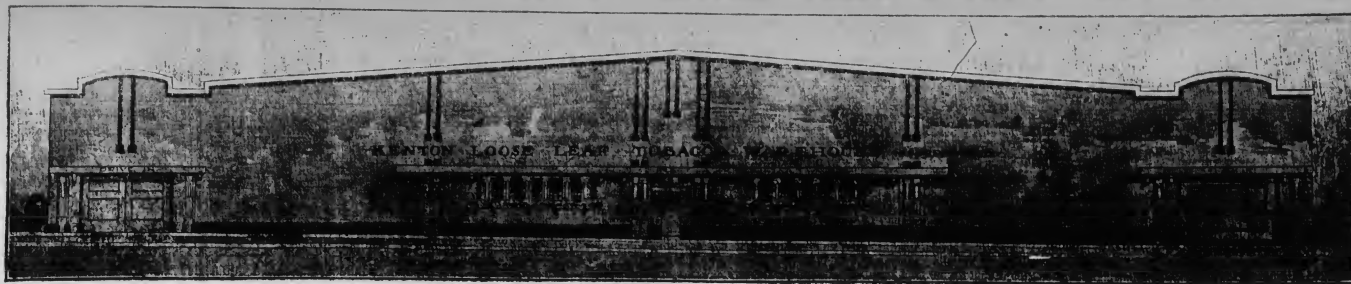

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith.
Mr. and Mrs. George Schick.
Miss Maud and Leola Deek.
Mary Rector, Francis Virginia Berkshire, Mildred Shinkle, Sarah Lucile Smith, Alice White, Laura Francis Finn, Sarah Maxwell, Herbert Snyder, Allie Grant, William Burns, Walter Gaines, John Finn, Richard Hensley, Edgar Snyder, Galen Shinkle, Leroy and Leslie Voshell, Herbert, Russell and Harold Deek, Stanley Rue Smith, Floyd Snyder, James Maxwell, Aubrey Finn, Louise Hensley, Wendell Keim and Wm. Cox of Petersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Grant entertained a few of their friends with an excellent dinner Sunday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Snyder and son Edgar, Mrs. Fannie Gaines and son Walter, Herbert, Floyd, Wilbur and Carroll Snyder.

ARMISTICE DAY.

To-morrow (Friday) afternoon, the third Anniversary of Armistice Day will be celebrated at the Florence Fair Grounds, which reminds us of the circumstances surrounding the First Armistice Day, not so long since, when the greatest armed conflict in which the world has ever been engaged, was brought to a close. And in commemoration of this the paramount victory of right over wrong, it is earnestly hoped that all citizens of Boone county will give Boone Post No. 4, The American Legion, their whole hearted support in the program arranged for the observance of Armistice Day. These celebrations are praiseworthy and should be encouraged by all of our citizens, both old and young.

Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, has arranged for Captain Crockett of the Covington Tank Co. to be present to-morrow with his entire company and Tanks, and give an exhibit of drilling and tank warfare. The Tank Company will put down a smoke barrage showing how tanks are protected while approaching the enemy. The drill and exhibit by the Tank Company should attract a large crowd as it is not often that tanks in action can be seen. Boone Post has made all the necessary arrangements for an afternoon exercises, and a large crowd is expected. Let everybody attend these exercises and join with the Legion boys in properly observing Armistice Day.

Covington, Kentucky, Loose Leaf Market

Opens to receive tobacco December 8th, 1921

FIRST SALE--DECEMBER 12th, 1921

Cincinnati Market shows much improvement for Old Tobacco. All grades higher. Prices firm.

As heretofore advertised, the KENTON LOOSE LEAF TOBACCO WAREHOUSE will open its doors to receive tobacco from growers on December 8th. Will have its first sale on December 12th.

We confidently expect a good sized offering.

Are assured that all large manufacturers, as well as others will have buyers present.

The crop of 1921 is about 6 per cent of a normal or average crop. For this and other obvious reasons we are expecting satisfactory and remunerative prices will be paid for all sound and useful tobacco.

Judging from samples, growers are bringing in, the crop is a very good average one, but is going to be short on bright and thin trashes.

Lugs and leaf are very good. Tips or short red excellent.

There will be some green, but this will not be above normal. There has been during the last part of October sufficient warm and damp weather to check and remove the tendency to cure green or an objectionable green tinge.

We are opening earlier this season to give growers more time for marketing their crops without at any time crowding the market.

Bring in your best cured tobacco first. There will be ample time for all growers to sell and receive a good price for his tobacco.

The crop is the smallest grown for years.

We predict a good price for all grades useful in domestic manufactures. At this writing export grades in old tobacco are appreciably higher and are being absorbed as offered. The medium and better grades are quotably higher, bringing much better prices than were obtained for same sorts two months ago.

DON'T SHOOT.

Don't hunt off your own land without license.

Don't shoot without this year's hunting license.

Don't shoot doves before September 1st nor after December 15th.

Don't kill more than fifteen doves in one day.

Don't shoot quail before November 15th nor after January 1st.

Don't kill more than 12 quail in one day.

Don't shoot squirrel before July 1st nor after January 1st.

Don't kill more than six woodcock in one day.

Don't kill wild turkey, imported pheasants or Hungarian partridges before November 15th, 1921.

Don't shoot, buy or sell rabbits before November 15th nor after January 1st.

Don't snare rabbits at any time.

Don't kill any wild duck, wild geese or jacksnipe before September 1st.

Don't set steel traps before November 15th nor after January 1st.

Don't have fur-bearing animals in your possession before October 1st, nor after February 15th.

Don't kill any wood duck, cedar duck or swan at any time.

Don't trap nor have in your possession at any time any song or insectivorous birds.

Don't wait until November 15th to buy your hunter's license.

Don't kill all the quail in a covey—leave some for seed.

Don't forget to feed the birds during the winter.

Don't fail to notify your Local Warden or this Department of those who violate the law.

A fellow who hunts without a license is a cheater—see that he obeys the law.

THE HOME TOWN

We live in this town because we believe in it. We believe in it because it is a good town, regardless of its few defects and its people are the peers of those to be found anywhere.

This town may not have the wealth of some favored communities, but it has character, and character is a possession which can not be purchased with gold.

If you believe in your home town you will like it, and if you like it no effort toward its improvement will be too great for you.

Again we ask you to have faith in your own powers; to also have faith in your own town.

When you feel like criticizing it, check the thought before it is spoken. You can always find something good to say instead, and even then the half of the truth will never be told.

It is a good town now, but faith, loyalty and united action will make it a better one.

Our faith in this town, brother, is simply faith in you, because the town is a collection of yours.

Surely your faith is not less than ours.

Let us unite—let us act—for a more cohesive community.

It is your home—and ours.—The Scottish Chief.

75 HENS LAY 2,500 MORE EGGS WITH PROPER CARE

Hens which are properly housed and fed usually will produce more eggs than those which are given a small amount of attention, according to Mrs. Robert Huffman, a Fayette county poultry raiser, who increased the egg production of her 75 Barred Plymouth Rock hens 2,500 eggs in 10 months by changing her method of management. In her report to County Agent W. R. Gahbert, Mrs. Huffman stated that while she had done nothing which the average farm poultry raiser could not do she had found the improved practices to be highly profitable.

During 1920 Mrs. Huffman gave a small amount of attention to her flock of hens. She allowed them to roost in trees about the farm and when feeding time came she threw out enough corn to satisfy their appetites. During the beginning of 1921 Mrs. Huffman started feeding a balanced ration composed of a scratch feed and a mash containing meat scrap, and remodeled the poultry house at small expense in order that the hens might have proper housing conditions. In addition to this she gave more attention to the flock with the result that during the first ten months of the year the 75 hens had produced a total of 6,500 eggs. Mrs. Huffman has entered her flock in the egg laying project to be conducted over the State during the coming six months by the extension division of the College of Agriculture.

RAILROADING COSTS.

A traveling man was telling the other day of an instance he had heard of giving an illustration of how railroad costs have mounted up.

In a little country railroad station 200 miles from any large city, the agent concluded that his stove was too near the wall and he wrote to the general office asking for a piece of zinc. His idea was to tack it on himself as it seemed a perfectly simple matter.

In a short time two men came out from the office and looked the place over and measured it and went back to the city. Then later two men came out and did the job. The whole thing cost $60.00, whereas the agent supposed it could have been done for $2.00 or $3.00.

A great many costly practices grew up during the war, and the idea of many people has apparently been to make work cost as much as possible rather than as little. Arbitrary rules and classifications have been arranged so that frequently the work can not be done in a simple way, but a number of different men have to give their time to it, thus making the expense mount up.

LAWS OF 1921 RELATING TO FUR-BEARING ANIMALS

Half of the 42 State legislatures in session this year enacted legislation relating to fur-bearing animals, the general trend of which was to safeguard these animals and insure prime condition of peltries. The need for such legislation is apparent in the light of estimates by raw fur buyers that the decrease in the supply of peltries during the last 10 years has been from 25 to 50 per cent.

STOCK FARMING MAKES FIELDS PRODUCE MORE.

Livestock farming and the proper care of farm manure which results from this system is the most successful and economical means of maintaining soils that will produce big crop yields, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils extension specialist from the College of Agriculture. So important is this method that Kentucky farmers will profit not only by giving careful attention to the conservation of manure but also by increasing the number of animals until each farm is stocked to its full capacity of meat and milk production. No other fertilizer is as economical as that produced by livestock, Mr. Stephenson said. At the present time nearly 600,000 dairy cows, more than 433,000 beef cattle, 1,500,000 hogs, 678,000 horses and mules and nearly 708,000 sheep are helping to keep Kentucky soils up to a state of fertility where they will produce big crop yields year after year.

Keeping enough livestock to consume all feeds raised on the farm results in most of the fertility value of the crops being left as manure when the livestock or livestock products are sold, according to Mr. Stephenson. About ten pounds of grain and five pounds of roughage are required to produce a pound of beef, the plant food of 14 pounds of this being left as manure when the pound of beef is sold. About nine pounds of feed are required to produce a pound of mutton, the fertility of eight pounds of this remaining on the farm in the form of manure. Hogs are more economical in the use of feed, producing a pound of pork from about six pounds of feed and leaving the fertility of 5 pounds on the farm. A small amount of fertility is sold from the farm when dairy products are marketed.

SWINE PUT ON 2.6 POUNDS

DAILY ON CORN AND SOYBEANS

Hogging down corn and soybeans is an economical means of rapid pork production, according to results obtained by James A. Dorsey, a Marion county farmer who co-operated with County Agent H. J. Childress and the College of Agriculture extension division in conducting a demonstration to show the value of this method of feeding hogs for the market.

Hogs fattened under this plan by Mr. Dorsey each made a daily gain of 2.6 pounds of pork during the 20 days in which they were on the corn and soybeans, according to the report of the demonstration. The animals averaged 90 pounds each when they were turned on the corn and soybeans and at the end of the 20 days each had gained 52 pounds. The demonstration attracted considerable attention among neighboring farmers, many of whom are planning to follow similar methods of pork production during the coming seasons.

INCREASED INTEREST

Laurel county farmers are showing increased interest in winter cover crops to protect their fields during the coming months, according to a report of County Agent F. B. Willen. Large numbers of them have attended meetings in which the value of such crops have been explained. An increased acreage of rye and vetch is expected to be seeded on farms in the county, according to present estimations.

Personal Mentions.

J. W. Kelly and wife entertained a number of friends to dinner Monday.

Congressman Rouse came home to cast his vote at the election last Tuesday.

Irven Rue and family spent Sunday with his parents, G. T. Rue and wife, near Bellevue.

Mrs. Cora Rouse, of Paynes Depot, Scott county, is the guest of her brother, L. A. Conner and family.

Elmer Kelly and wife spent last Sunday with his brother William Kelly and family, at Aurora, Ind.

Mayor Thos. W. Balsly, of Ludlow, spent a few hours in Burlington, Tuesday morning on business.

Frank Davrainville and wife, of Newport, spent last Sunday with his brother, W. R. Davrainville and family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Goodridge, of Erlanger, were visitors to Burlington Monday, meeting many of their old friends.

Mrs. A. W. Corn, B. C. Gaines and Courtney Walton, prominent citizens of Erlanger, were in Burlington for a few hours, last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Kelly who is teaching at Dry Ridge, Grant county, came home Friday evening and spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly, of Locust Grove neighborhood.

J. K. Tanner, one of the young and progressive farmers of Point Pleasant neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday, and while in town called at our office and gave us $1.50 for a seat in our joy wagon.

Lieut. B. W. Gaines and wife, who have been visiting his father, A. W. Gaines, and brother, B. C. Gaines and wife, for the past month, left last Sunday morning for Quantico, Va., where Lieut. Gaines has been stationed for several months.

Among the visitors to town last week from a distance were G. B. Yates, of Petersburg, Stanley Stephens, of Bellevue precinct, and Joshua (Doas) Beemon, of Florence precinct and Lloyd McGlasson, of Taylorsport. These good citizens called at our office and renewed their subscription.

The Master Commissioner sold at the court house door last Monday 227 acres of land on the Price pike in the case of P. B. Riddell vs. T. K. Wallace for the sum of $22,500 to W. A. Price. This is one of the best farms in that part of the county. Just a short time ago this farm sold for $39,865 which shows that farm lands have materially depreciated.

The Lohline property was sold to Jennie Leukens for $770. This property is in Florence.

Rev. C. E. Baker and wife shipped their household effects to Dover, Ky., last Monday, where he will take charge of the Baptist church. Rev. Baker has been the pastor of the Baptist church at Bellevue for several years, and he and his wife have made many friends in that community during their sojourn there who are sorry to lose them from their midst.

In another column in this paper will be found the advertisement of the personal property of G. H. Arrowood, at public sale at his farm on the Florence and Union pike, Saturday, Nov. 19th, 1921, beginning at 11:30 a. m. Mr. Arrowood will quit farming and move to Florence, where he has bought the business conducted by Grover McBeck, and solicits the patronage of the public.

H. H. Cleck sold 21 head of pure bred Jersey cattle at the fair grounds Monday at an average of $108 per head. $225 was the best price realized for any cow. The sale was attended by buyers from several states. Mr. Cleck was well satisfied with the prices.

Wm. Hodges who lives out on the East Bend road, has six Chester-white pigs seven months old that will average over 300 pounds each.

Small crowd attended county court last Monday.

Over 21,000 tobacco raisers in the tobacco belt of Kentucky have signed the Co-operative Contract and Boone county has passed the 75 per cent mark, and as this is the last week let everybody get busy and sign their contract and not let old Boone have just 75 per cent, but get as near 100 per cent for Boone as possible. The tobacco raisers of this county can do nothing better for themselves than sign this contract. You have all to gain and nothing to lose, and it is hard for any one to understand why a tobacco raiser will not put his name to the contract without hesitating. Do not wait for the contract-man in your district to hurry you to get your contract, go to him and give him your contract and assist him to get the contract of others. Not a single raiser has been advanced why the contract should not be signed, so why WAIT. Make Boone a 100 per cent county. It can and SHOULD BE DONE.

FACE SERIOUS LOSSES FROM PEST OF PLANTS

Present In Many Berries Yields By Killing the Plants and Weakening Others.

Losses of the crown-borer in strawberry fields of the state are threatening the success of this industry in Kentucky and may result in heavy losses to growers of the crop unless steps are taken to control the pest, according to Harrison Garman, state entomologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station who has just completed an inspection of a number of fields. An immediate means of control, growers are planning to set out new beds have been warned to buy plants from inspected and pest-free fields. Growers who already have infested fields have been advised to turn under the plants and rotate their crops. Rotation of crops also has been recommended as a means of avoiding serious injury from the pest.

Strawberry growers in southern counties of the State have suffered most heavily from the crown-borer which is considered the worst enemy of the crop. Its presence also has been reported in a number of Western Kentucky counties. The insect borers into the central part of crown of plant causing it, both in young and in old, to wither and die. The pest is also a weak enemy of the plant with the result that yields are heavily reduced.

Investigations which have been made recently show that the plants are most seriously affected by the pest which now is found in the runners set during the past season are relatively free from the borer. Persons who wish to get back on the reasonably sure of avoiding losses from the insect by using only the young plants from new beds, which have been inspected, specialists at the Experiment Station say.

SUCCESS OF PULLET SALES
BOOSTS POULTRY INDUSTRY

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 8.—Efforts of those interested in the Kentucky poultry industry to blanket farms of the State with improved stock, by means of the county standardization campaign being conducted by the College of Agriculture extension division, are proving highly successful, a total of 2,261 pullets having been sold to farmers in the first six of 20 pullet auctions scheduled as a part of the campaign, according to a report from the college.

Four White Plymouth Rock, one Barred Plymouth Rock and one White Wyandotte sale are included in the first six, a total of $3,173.50 having been received for the 2,261 pullets sold. In the four White Plymouth Rock sale, 1,231 birds sold for a total of $2,467.70. In the single Barred Plymouth Rock sale 316 birds, sold for a total of $410.80 while the one White Wyandotte sale resulted in the sale of 211 pullets for a total of $335.00.

As a part of the campaign to standardize each county of the state with one of the four varieties of poultry, the pullet auctions are designed to repay banks which advanced money for the purchase of butchering eggs and at the same time make it possible for farmers of the State to obtain improved stock at a reasonable price. Farmers who received purchased butchering eggs in the spring through the cooperation of interested banks, return one pullet for each setting of eggs, the money from the sale of these pullets being used to repay the banks. The sales will mark the end of the year's work in the campaign.

Results of the first few sales indicate that the remaining ones are the schedule of 20 will be successful according to the college poultrymen. Those to be held in the future will be conducted in a manner similar to the first six, the pullets which are brought in being graded and then sold to the highest bidder.

SILAGE KEEPS EWES
IN GOOD CONDITION

Because of its succulence and the helpful effect it has on the digestive system, silage makes one of the best feeds which farmers can give to their pregnant ewes during the coming winter months, sheep specialists at the College of Agriculture say. This feed is especially valuable if there is no pasture available and if keeps the ewes in a healthy and thrifty condition. The average farm ewe should receive from two to three pounds of silage each day through more may be fed with safety. Along with the silage the ewes should have some palatable, dry roughage and a small amount of grain, preferably oats or bran.

If the corn has been placed in the silo at the proper stage and well packed and sufficiently moistened there is little danger of spoiled or moldy silage and consequently little danger of injuring the ewes by feeding it to them. Moldy or frozen silage should be guarded against since the feeding of it may cause serious trouble with the pregnant ewe. Farmers who are planning to feed silage to their ewes have been warned by the specialists to guard against the feeding of an excess of it. Too much silage is likely to cause the lamb to grow too large, thus cause trouble at lambing time. In addition the feeding of too much silage may prevent the proper development of the bones.

DEHORND CATTLE
MOST PROFITABLE

Farmers who wish to realize the greatest profit from their cattle will do well to dehorn them while they are calves, according to suggestions made by animal husbandry specialists at the College of Agriculture. Dehorned steers are worth about 50 cents more a hundred lbs. as feeders, will make more rapid gains in the feed lot and lose less weight in being shipped to the market. Dairy cows also are less liable to injure one another when they have their horns removed. This is the best time of the year to dehorn old cattle, conditions being most favorable after the first frosts when the calves have disappeared. Calves may be dehorned any time during the year, the best time being when they are about one week old.

"A stick of caustic potash is the only thing needed to remove the horns from calves," Wayland Rhoads, extension specialist on beef cattle said. "The hair should be clipped one-half minute being the amount of time necessary. A scab will later form and drop off leaving the head smooth. The calves should be kept out of the rain for a few days as the horn over the horn button and a small ring of grease rubbed around it about one-half inch from the base of the horn to prevent the caustic from running. The stick of caustic should be wrapped in paper to prevent its burning the hands of the person using it. The end should be moistened and then rubbed in the button until it becomes tender, about caustic dissolves when it becomes wet and may give trouble."

"The easiest way to remove horns from older animals is to use a set of large dehorning shears or a saw. The saw is sometimes preferable in case the horns are brittle. There is no danger of crushing them. Care should be taken to see that the instrument used is clean. It is preferable to remove the horns close enough to the head to remove a small ring of hair. This is the easiest place to cut the horn and also the best since the head heals rapidly and no stumps are left. The animals had should be held secure either in stocks or held to a strong bar or post with a lopped rope placed around the head. Immediately after the operation is completed it is well to cover the head where the horns were removed with pine tar. In case of excessive bleeding pain-killers administered locally and should be applied."

Suspected that the reluctance of some business men to enter the livestock business is due to the fact that the high cost of food and the loss of the farmstead.

CHEAP FEEDS REQUIRED
IF HORSE HOLDS PLACE

If the horse is to maintain his place on the farm in competition with motor-driven power he must be kept through the winter on an economical ration which will bring him through that season of the year as cheaply as possible and at the same time prepare him for the rush of the spring work, specialists on horse feeding say. This system of feeding requires the economical use of all cheap feeds and roughages on the farm in such a way as to make a balanced ration, according to W. S. Anderson, a member of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture. However, horses and mules that are in harness during the winter must have a larger grain ration than those which are doing little or now work, the specialists say.

Work stock may be carried thru the winter cheaply by making use of as much corn stover, oats straw and weeds as possible. If sheaf oats has been stored on the farm this will answer the purpose of a grain ration and provide much of the roughage needed by the animals provided they are not moldy. The cheap or hays can be fed to horses since the animals will pick the hay out of the weeds and briars and leave the inedible parts.

If oats has not been raised on the farm to provide a grain ration for the stock the cheapest grain this year will be corn, according to Prof. Anderson. However, work stock does not need a full grain ration during the days of winter. If pasture is available the work stock may be allowed to run on it at least part of the time each day for the sake of exercise. Frequently if the weather is mild a small amount of grain fed in pasture with corn stover or some cheap hay is all that is needed. Stock should be allowed to use the bare or hard when the ground is covered with snow or the weather becomes severe.

In feeding to have the animals come through the winter in the best shape possible it is not necessary that they be excessively fat but they should be in better flesh in the spring than in the previous fall when they finished their work. As spring approaches the condition of the work stock must be examined and if necessary more grain added to the ration to improve the condition of the horses and mules.

While the French people are restoring 1,000,000 acres devastated by the Germans, a lot of our folks haven't energy enough to set out trees on streets bared by the summer sun.

BOONE CO. RECORDER

Published every Thursday
N. E. RIDDELL, Publisher

Boone Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION
Entered at the Postoffice, Burlington, Ky., as second-class mail.

ADVERTISING RATES

Furnished on application. The value of the RECORDER as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Only two more weeks until Thanksgiving.

November has furnished some cool weather so far.

Atty. O. M. Rogers was in Burlington last Friday on legal business.

Jno. Manin, of Hebron, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday.

Rev. Geo. A. Royer, of Florence, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Friday.

Ewing Flick, of Bellevue, was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday.

No sign of the buyers strike reported among the eager purchasers of fake stocks.

Take Tanlac and eat three square meals a day. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Wm. Fleet, of near Lawrenceburg Ferry, was a business visitor in Burlington last Friday.

Considerable work in the way of patching holes on the pikes in the county, is being done.

The citizens of the town have been kept busy the last two weeks raking up and burning leaves.

Only way to let a little light into the brains of these hold up men is by means of a well aimed revolver shot.

The open season for hunting is close at hand. You had better post your farm. Send the Recorder 50 cents and it will post it for you.

The enthusiasm of the motorists for good roads cools off quite a little when some one mentions a tax on gasoline to build highways.

The members of the "Bee-Bee" Society were entertained last Thursday by Mrs. N. W. Carpenter at her home out on Woolper Heights.

Don't blame anybody but yourself if your nights are made miserable by indigestion. You failed to take Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

B. F. Bedinger, of Walton, bought of Thomas Heron, a small tract of land near Richmond, last week, and Mr. Heron and wife made deed to the property last Friday.

The RECORDER has enrolled a number of new subscribers in the last few months. If you are not now a subscriber, we would be pleased to have your name on our list.

The demand for Tanlac has broken all world's records. Over Twenty Million bottles have been sold since it was placed on the market six years ago. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Mrs. Martha C. Weaver, of Sale Creek, Tenn., sends us $1.50 for a renewal of her subscription. Mrs. Weaver likes to get the news from Boone county where she has many friends and relatives living.

The nine-year old son of Henry Robinson, colored, who lives on Geo. Kreylich's farm, near Idlewild, died last Thursday after a week's illness of diphtheria. There are four other children in the same family quite ill with measles.

The remains of Mrs. A. C. Porter, which were buried in Odd-fellows cemetery, near town, nineteen years ago, were disinterred last Friday and removed to Highland cemetery on the Dixie Highway. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the work.

Three State Bank Examiners, E. J. Doss, Kelly Perkins and G. F. Tinsley, were in Burlington last Thursday evening. They were completing the examination of the banks in this county in order that they could reach their homes in time to cast their votes.

Among the pleasant callers at our office, last week, were Arnold Bauer and Lon Beeman, of Florence precinct, and they each contributed $1.50 toward replenishing our exchequer. The county has no better citizens than these two hustling young farmers.

According to the Census Report the "school population" of the United States is 33,250,870. Of this number, comprising those 5 to 20 years old, more than 21,370,000 were attending school between September 1919, and January 1920, when the census was taken.

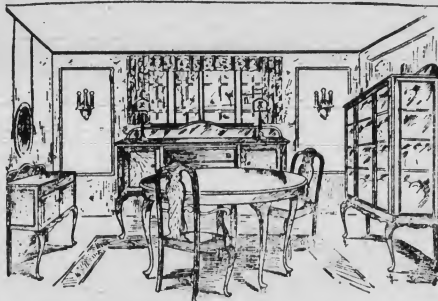

According to reports from all sections of the county there is every indication that there will be an abundance of game during the coming hunting season. Rabbits and quail are more plentiful this season than any year during the past ten years and hunters are very actively engaged in training their dogs and setting their guns in preparation for the opening of the season on next Tuesday.

IN MEMORIAM.

Clay Henry Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Robinson, (colored) departed this life Nov. 3, 1921, aged 9 years, 9 months and 6 days, after a few weeks illness. He leaves a mother, father sister and brothers to mourn his loss. Not only those but his schoolmates loved him. He was a dear, good boy, always entered the room with a smile which greeted all. His seat is vacant at our school but God had a greater vacancy and said "come Clay Henry home we need you." Our loss is heavens gain. We extend our greatest sympathy to the bereaved family and friends.

WINTER DAIRYING OFFERS MEANS OF GREATER PROFITS

Kentuckians Produce Only 30 Per Cent of Dairy Products in Winter—When Values Are Highest.

Greater production of dairy products during the winter months by breeding cows to produce their calves in the fall rather than in the spring is now the case on many farms. Kentucky farmers are enjoying an excellent opportunity for increasing the profits from this phase of their business, according to J. J. Hooper, head of the dairy department of the College of Agriculture. At the present time Kentucky farmers are producing about 70 per cent of their dairy products between May 1 and November 1 and the remaining 30 per cent during the six winter months, according to Mr. Hooper. This condition should be revised or at least equalized if the greatest profits possible are to be expected from the dairy business, he said.

A maximum production of milk during the winter months will make it possible for farmers to realize the greatest profit from their dairies since all dairy products bring the highest price during that season of the year. Labor also is cheaper and thus more plentiful in which to care for the cow and her calf. The fact that a calf born in the fall will give greater growth during the year, if given the proper attention, than one that is born in the spring is another advantage in favor of winter dairymanship.

To have cows produce their calves at the proper time in the fall they should be bred in mid-winter, since breeding them during the early fall will cause them to freshen during the spring. The cow that freshens in the spring will lag in production when the drouth of summer arrives and will begin to dry off in the fall after she has been milking about six months. On the other hand the cow that is fresh in the fall will be stimulated by the calf to give her greatest flow of milk during the winter months when she is fed on silage and grain. She will be stimulated again to a greater production in the summer when pastures are at their best. The cow that freshens in the fall will produce 25 per cent more milk during the year than one that freshens during the spring because of these conditions, Mr. Hooper said.

PIGS ARE BEST WEANED
WHEN EIGHT WEEKS OLD

Good results have been obtained by weaning pigs when they are from eight to ten weeks old, according to suggestions made by animal husbandmen at the College of Agriculture to farmers who are raising fall litters of pigs. At the college farm the feed given the sow for two or three days before weaning is reduced in order to dry up the milk secretion. The pigs are taken from the sow at once and little feed given her for several days. By this method the udders of the sow are not damaged from being gorged with milk when the pigs are weaned.

A ration for weaned pigs which has given good results at the college farm is composed of 40 pounds of corn, 60 pounds of shipstuf and ten pounds of tankage. Another one which has been found to be a good one is composed of 30 pounds of corn, 30 pounds of shipstuf, thirty pounds of oats and ten pounds of tankage.

The Election.

The election passed off quietly Tuesday. Boone voted against both of the Constitutional amendments by about four to one. Hubert Conner of H-brown and L. T. Cloro, of Burlington, were elected as members of the county School Board. The voters of the county took but little interest in the election and there was not cash to exceed one-third of the vote of the county.

In Louisville excitement was high and much disturbance at the polls. At one of the polling places a policeman fired his revolver into a crowd surrounding several persons. Six were killed at the polls in Breathitt county.

The Democrats were successful in Kenton county, electing their entire ticket.

Judge Quinn, the Republican candidate for Mayor of Louisville, won over his opponent, W. O. Harris, and the entire Republican ticket was also elected.

The House of Representatives is safely Democratic but Senate is in doubt.

Walton town election resulted as follows: Police Judge—T. F. Curley. Trustees—Ed. Fry, L. P. Wilson, Wm. Brittenholm, Geo. Ransler and S. H. McCarty.

Mrs. R. S. Crisler was operated upon at Booth's Memorial Hospital Monday morning and a small cancer removed from her breast. Mrs. Crisler had been suffering from this affliction for about three months. The physicians assure her that the operation was a success and that she will fully recover in a short time.

Carl Spaulding who pleaded for the Walton man who just shot the man, committed suicide last Tuesday morning at his home in Dry Ridge. Mr. Spaulding had been despondent for some time.

Miss Minnie Roberts, of Walton who was the guest of relatives in Burlington last week, returned to her home Sunday afternoon.

AT THE CINCINNATI

LYRIC THEATRE.

Loring Smith, assisted by Natalie Deana Vandyke, is the central figure of the frolicsome musical playlet, "Springtime Privileges" at the Lyric Theatre, where Pantages vaudeville has firmly established itself. The Five Pantheon Singers, in classic and popular compositions; Baggott and Sheldon, boomerang hat throwers and Indian stilt jockeys; Ira Kennedy and Teck Murch, musical comedy stars; Johnny Sennet, singer and comedian, and Mason and Dally, "Dixie Boys," are others on the well-balanced program. The photoplay feature is "Greater Than Love" starring Louise Glaum.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

"The Family Fool," a five-act comedy, is one of the two headline plays at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. W. C. Todd is responsible for the comedy, which is one of more than ordinary appeal. The other feature act is that of Joe Cook, whose "Don Man Vandyke Show" is extraordinarily funny. Jack Wyatt and his Scotch lady and hisses, in a Highland romance; Ed Bradley and Blanche Klasko, vaudeville; Doris Duncan, pretty, with song, talks and dances; Alexander Brothers and Keady, in a juggling act entitled "All-Boiled Up"; and Corradini's trained dogs, monkeys and ponies also are on the bill.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

George Sidney, who has made the character of the Hebrew so lovable on the stage, is at the Grand Opera House this week in his new starring vehicle, "Welcome Stranger," in which he has been appearing successfully for more than a year. The story of the play involves the settling of a Boston clothing merchant in a New England rural community, where he finally overcomes prejudice through his energy and kindly disposition. The play is by Aaron Hoffman and is a fine message of tolerance and altruism, without being preachy. A company of capable players is appearing with Mr. Sidney in "Welcome Strangers."

SHUBERT THEATRE.

Pat Rooney and Marion Beall, headliners in vaudeville for some years, are the stars of the musical comedy, "Love Birds," which is attracting the favorable attention of theatregoers at the new Shubert Theatre this week. "Love Birds" is one of those charming comedies which deal in love and beauty and are not just to the fore. The two stars are given every opportunity to display their accomplishments, with the supporting company also sharing largely in the limelight. Charming music, elaborate settings and gorgeous costumes predominate.

CAPITOL THEATRE.

"Beating The Game," a melodramatic play, starring Tom Moore, is the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre. The story is an explication of the theory of "honor among thieves" in which the "master mind" of the underworld reneges one of his sarvelines to "go straight" and gives him money for the execution. The story is locally developed and is gripping to the very end with the uncertainty as to the outcome, both as regards the "master mind" and his gangster. The picture is one of the most interesting and exciting in which Tom Moore ever has appeared in this city.

GIFTS THEATRE.

So great was the success of "Over The Hill," the film comedy drama at the Gifts Theatre during the last week, that the management felt justified in continuing the engagement for another week. And in order further to meet the public demand, morning performances are being given during the present week. "Over The Hill" carries with it a delightful appeal such as few pictures possess. Pathos and comedy are blended in a most effective manner, creating tears as well as laughter, and leaving a lasting impress upon the auditor. The run of "Over The Hill" will be followed by other Fox supreme feature plays.

HARRISON POULTRYMEN

FORM NEW ASSOCIATION

With the organization of the Harrison County Poultry Association, Kentucky has another organization engaged in the cooperative movement to standardize each county of the State with one of the four main varieties of poultry, according to A. S. Chapin, poultry extension specialist from the College of Agriculture. Organization of the association was recently completed with more than 25 charter members.

The majority of the members in the new association are raising Rhode Island Reds.

Carroll county farmers are gradually eliminating the scrub breeding animals from their farms, seven more of them recently having been enrolled in the better stocker stock movement by County Agent G. C. Hunt. They have agreed to use nothing but purchased animals in all their breeding work.

Omer Porter and wife were in the city shopping last Saturday.

KIRKPATRICK IS FOR BURLEY PLAN.

Well Known Warehouseman In Three States Believes Co-operative Marketing Will be To Best Interest of the Growers.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 3.—Declaring that he did not intend to permit his own "selfishness" to stand in the way of a great public movement and that, while it might not be to his own personal interest as a warehouseman to support the co-operative marketing plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, M. L. Kirkpatrick, of Cincinnati, owner of tobacco warehouses in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia, has said that for the interest of the tobacco growers who have so long done business with him and trusted him, he endorses the marketing plan and that, from the standpoint of the grower, there is no doubt in his mind as to the advantages of the plan.

SILENCE AND CONCENTRATION

The overcoming and irresistible power that is continually flowing in and out of every human being is a silent power. It cannot be seen, but its manifestation is in evidence all about us everywhere.

Every human being is employing this power every moment constructively or destructively. The importance of knowing how to intelligently contact with this power so as to employ it for our own good and that of others cannot be overestimated. We will analyze and consider the benefits to be derived through silence and concentration from different angles.

For rest and recuperation of the mind we need to be silent, just as much as we require sleep for rest and recuperation of the body. Silence should be cultivated as a great virtue; it keeps secrets and avoids disputes.

Some people clothe themselves with an impenetrable silence; this attitude of taciturnity is not magnetic, and does not surround us with many friends; does not make a "hale fellow well met," and is often manifestly a cloak for ignorance, foolish and sinful thoughts, and is a safe course for any one to adopt when lacking in confidence.

Silence often enables us to see other people's imperfections, and helps us to conceal our own, but people with whom we associate might reasonably suspect us of emptiness if we indulge our inclination for silence on all occasions.

To think well and speak words of approbation and commendation for our friends, associates and neighbors is for us a personal responsibility and obligation, but to avoid speaking ill or making derogatory remarks about any one only requires our silence, and, truly, every one should endeavor to refrain from sowing seeds of discord and inflicting injury upon others. We know how gossip is disseminated and frequently distorted. "Silence when nothing need be said," is the eloquence of discretion.—Eloise.

SIMPLE MEASURES PROTECT YOUNG TREES FROM RODENTS

Although winter weather reduces the amount of damage done to trees by insects it brings snow and sleet which make it possible for field mice and rabbits to gnaw young trees without the knowledge of unsuspecting owners and cause losses almost equal to those from insect pests, according to orchard specialists. Fruit growers can prevent this injury and reduce the losses caused by these rodents by placing corn or tobacco stalks, newspapers or woven wire around their trees before winter arrives, specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Keeping orchards free from rubbish and weeds has been found helpful in reducing the damage done by rodents.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR THE WINTER.

Erlanger, Ky.,
Oct. 5, 1921.

Mr. N. E. Riddell,

Dear Sir:

I have the weather down for the year 1921. Coldest morning this year up to date was Jan. 17th; 15 above zero; warmest weather first 8 days of July 70 degrees a. m., 95 to 100 in p. m. Snow fall this year 6 1/2 inches; rain fell 44 1/2 inches. We will have a mild winter, cold and warm snaps; sudden changes. Just the kind of weather to make people look sour at you. I can tell every days report but I won't as it takes too much time.

Yours Truly,
W. E. POPHAM.

Potatoes Good, But Apples Light.

The digging of potatoes and the harvesting of root crops has been general in much of the Northern Hemisphere. The potato crop in the Province of Ontario, Canada, is turning out very much better than was expected early in the season, although it will be less than the average. Apple picking has become general in Canada and the United States but on the whole the yield is considerably below average.

Urged that women should sit on all government boards. If these boards don't reduce the taxes, it will be high time some one sat on them.

TRY IT ONCE

Don't hesitate to express your appreciation of the other fellow's merit. It will please him, and it will raise you in the estimation of others.

Try it. If you have men working under you, speak up and give them credit. Don't wait till they make mistakes and jump on them. It makes bad blood and causes little good.

Try it for just one week. Stop finding fault. Be on the lookout for merit in your men. The chances are you will find something to praise. And just keep on giving credit for a while week to the men you have been finding fault with hitherto. You will have all the men on your side. They will do better work and more of it.

IN MEMORIAM.

Clay Henry Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay Robinson, (colored) departed this life Nov. 3, 1921, aged 9 years, 9 months and 6 days, after a few weeks illness. He leaves a mother, father sister and brothers to mourn his loss. Not only those but his schoolmates loved him. He was a dear, good boy, always entered the room with a smile which greeted all. His seat is vacant at our school but God had a greater vacancy and said "come Clay Henry home we need you." Our loss is a heavy gain. We extend our greatest sympathy to the bereaved family and friends.
From Idlewild colored school.

The Recorder hesitates in the midst of a discussion on home town progress, to introduce any subject that looks like a private business matter. Yet one can't enumerate the forces that help develop a county and leave out the local newspaper. As the newspaper grows, the town and county grows. Any community that has a fine and well developed newspaper publication, is going to give an impression to the outside public that is a place of civic enterprise and business hustle.

The week of November 7-12 was named as Home Town Paper Week. The citizen who is anxious to see his home city realize its possibilities, should co-operate during that week by renewing or entering his subscription to his home paper. The well supported newspaper can do far more for all civic causes, and it can do far more to spread abroad the impression that a county is going ahead, than a journal that lacks the hearty backing of its business pals.

Thirty thousand people are killed or injured in the United States every day; five persons, it is estimated, meet death by accident in this country every minute.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Reports Agree that Improvements Were Shown During Past Month.

The time is near when business can safely throw away its crutches. Nearly all our reports agree that the improvement shown last month is holding up well. In some lines the production throttle has been opened another notch to meet increasing demands.

There are still too many smokeless stacks in the steel sections. The blowing in of new furnaces is encouragingly reducing this number.

As the building industry finds its stride, it is a reassuring sight to see the steel frame work springing up over the District, rather than to watch structural steel rusting in the yard.

These facts, together with others, tend to dim the ugly specter of unemployment. A brief comparison with last year's activities is a good tonic for pessimism.

Last year when the crop moving season was at its height there was an especially heavy agricultural demand for funds from other Federal Reserve Banks. In comparison with last October this demand during the past thirty days has been practically negligible.

About this time last year the weakness of the iron and steel industry was casting gloom over all lines of business, as this industry is looked upon as the barometer of business. The cancellation of orders was a common occurrence. Today this barometer indicates a steady improvement.

During October last year the railroads reported a pick-up in business due largely to a plentiful supply of labor and a surplus of goods. It could only be temporary. Now any improvement in this direction has substantial business to back it.

A year ago, automobile and tire manufacturers were overstocked and sales were falling off. Recent reports indicate sales are holding up well. Production is now being determined by demand.

Last fall building was hesitating in anticipation of lower costs. Labor troubles gave out a jarring note. The recovery this fall has been even more rapid than was expected.

These developments are only a part of the transition—a transition not as yet completed, but gradually working toward dependable business.

When business will return to so-called normal is a question we are all asking; but who can give us the day or hour? In looking for the answer we should bear in mind that the survival of the fittest is not always the survival of the best, nor is business at its flush always business at its best.

Criticisms and suggestions are often too freely offered, but, as usually happens, we return to the "time-will-tell" starting point. Credit as well as business, is based on faith. The accusation that the other fellow is the main sprag in the wheels of business weakens this faith; and so far as faith is weakened, business is weakened.—Business Review.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Next Thursday, (Nov. 24th) is Thanksgiving day, a day that has been set apart for thanksgiving and prayer. Do we fully comprehend the full meaning and importance of such a day? Do we fully realize the many blessings that we have received from the "Giver of every good and perfect gift"—health, food, raiment and Christian privileges. Have the people of Boone County daily offered the praise and thanksgiving to the great One for His many kindnesses and countless blessings?

Where could be found a class of people that have been more favored than those of this immediate section of the country? Prosperity and plenty everywhere abounds. From the greatest to the smallest, all have much to be thankful for, and as a people, it is our duty, upon next Thursday to render unto our Lord thanksgiving and praise for the many blessings we receive at His hands.

THE HOME TINKERERS.

Merchant reports that there has been much demand of late from the householders for tools with which to work about their places. Many people have become tired of the high cost of having work done, and are now attending themselves to little jobs of repairs. Thus they save costs, and develop their own ingenuity and mechanical skill. As a result hammers, screwdrivers, hand saws, paint brushes, etc., have had an extra good sale.

The home tinkerer takes more pride in his dwelling than he is inclined to make little improvements to remove disorder, and beautify his grounds. Every householder should cultivate the habit of home tinkering.

TWO LOST YEARS.

In calling the conference for limitation of armament, and presenting suggestions for that meeting to adopt, the Republican leaders are at last doing about the same thing that they refused to let the country do more than two years ago.

One principal object of the League of Nations, was to help the nations get together for the reduction of armament. If the Republican Senate had ratified promptly the Versailles treaty, this matter of limitation of armaments would have been taken up in the fall of 1919. The desire to hold down war preparation was just as strong then, probably stronger. If anything on that line could be done now it could have been done just as well or better then.

If that action had been taken the United States could have saved $1,000,000,000 of war expenditure incurred since that date. Other nations would have saved corresponding amounts. A burden of taxation would have been lifted that would have permitted the industries of the world to function. Instead of spending vast treasure as the costs of future wars, Europe would have been buying raw materials and finished products, and thus keeping busy the millions of workers out of work.

The country has paid an awful price for the obstinacy of those Republican senators. They acted as they did, from the old fashioned fear of entering into "entangling alliances." But to accomplish anything at Washington, they must enter into some kind of arrangements with foreign nations, that will be just as entangling as anything they had to agree to in the Versailles treaty.

Here at this conference they are learning the necessity of entering into relations with the rest of the world, if we are going to live in peace and avoid these crushing loads. It has taken the Republican leaders two years to perceive what was obvious to progressive minds 2 years ago.

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION

Makes Center for All Kinds of Community Activities and Community Progress.

There are innumerable rural sections where there are fine modern homes and elaborate farm equipment, but in which the children attend little district schools that are too small to do efficient modern work.

The movement to consolidate such small schools in central buildings is making rapid progress. One splendid result is to persuade the country young people to educate themselves better. Left in the little one room school, they are apt to quit and go to work when they finish the grammar grades. But put into a consolidated central school they are more likely to remain. In Preble county, Ohio, for instance, where before consolidation they had 523 ill school pupils, now they have 826. The development of a better educated generation of young people means wonders for such a community.

The consolidated school becomes the center for all kinds of community activities, like athletics, dramatics, music, lectures. The whole character of many country towns has been changed by this active and powerful agency for community progress.

JIM IS HARD TO BEAT.

J. M. Thompson, formerly of Petersburg, but who has been a citizen of Aurora, Ind., for two or three years, was elected as councilman at large in that city at the election, on Nov. 8th. Jim is hard to beat at anything he undertakes, and we predict that he will make good as a councilman.

DO THINGS YOURSELF

Go where you will you will find people, both men and women, who are always waiting for something to turn up to better their condition in life. Yet this class of people is the last one to try and turn something up that will be a benefit to them in any way, but wait from day to day. If you want something to turn up, get a move on you, get out, hustle and see if you cannot find something you can turn up to your advantage. There are plenty of chances for every one if they are sought after, but they will not come to you if you do not hunt them up.

OH, BOY!

Once upon a time there was an inn in Merrie England named the Bull Inn. Along in the year 1813 fifty-four British soldiers stopped there for five hours. According to records recently discovered the liquid refreshment served them during these five hours was as follows: 126 bottles of port, 48 of sherry, 64 bowls of punch, besides innumerable mugs of ale and perry, which were free of charge and were not counted in the reckoning.

Some people are now meditating on ways to get sick so they can get a beer prescription.

ARMISTICE DAY

Exercises Attended by Large Crowd of Patriotic Citizens Last Friday.

Armistice Day exercises that were conducted under the auspices of Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, at Florence Fair Grounds last Friday, was attended by a large crowd, although the weather conditions were such that an out door meeting was held under difficulties, as it was cold and raining. Over one hundred boys who were engaged in the late war headed by the Ludlow brass band formed in line at the west corporate limits of Florence and marched to the fair grounds where Capt. Crockett, of Covington with his tank corps gave a drill in the amphitheater ring, after which Judge L. L. Manson, of Lexington, Mr. Goldman, of Robert Bentley Post, Cincinnati, and Rev. Garber, Post Chaplain, delivered addresses. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather all of those present enjoyed the program, and the large crowd was a tribute to the boys who responded to the call in defense of our country. The members of Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, Capt. Crockett and his men for the assistance given them in the day's exercises. A number of the members of the American Legion Post at Erlanger were in line as were soldiers of former wars.

When the war closed many people wanted November 11 made a legal holiday for the whole country, but at last reports only five states had done so. One reason for not taking this action has been that Thanksgiving day comes so near this date. This is a working world, and six days labor is usually necessary to support a family.

Armistice day should never be forgotten. It marks the greatest gift of achievement yet reached by the American people. It notes the day when a triumph was achieved for American spirit that dismounted the world, and brought earth's proud empire to the dust. It showed what the American can do to conquer seemingly insurmountable obstacles, and what dangers and hardships they undertake to vindicate their national ideals.

Armistice day should be a legal holiday, but the best way to observe it would be to have Thanksgiving day proclaimed on that date. The two occasions are harmonious, and the thought of one adapts its use to the other.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By English Class)

School opened Monday, Nov. 7th, after an enforced vacation of two weeks. No new cases of scarlet fever developed.

Miss Jones returned to Tennessee because of the death of a relative, and has been gone the past week. Mrs. Tolin has been "sitting" in her place.

The furnace was repaired during the two weeks quarantine, making our heating system more complete and up-to-date. Improvements were also made in the laboratory room.

Mr. William Clayton, the county trustee officer, paid the school a visit Nov. 8th, and delivered an interesting address on "Influence" to the Senior Class.

Evelene Stephens has returned to school after a period of illness.

Last Wednesday the basketball game between Union and B. H. S. had to be called off on account of rain.

The next Lyceum number will be given at the court house Tuesday November 22. "August" the noted magician, will perform his various feats for the audience.

There will be two games of basketball at B. H. S. Nov. 18th, with Independence. Come out and root for your home team.

School was dismissed Friday, November 11th, in observance of Armistice Day.

COMING TO A GOOD COUNTRY.

Born to William Horton and wife, on Monday, Nov. 7th, twins, a boy and girl—Robert Franklin and Nora Frances. The mother and babes are doing fine, and Dr. Yelton says that with proper care Grandma Mullins will recover, although he is using a cane.

HUNTING SEASON OPENED

The hunting season opened Tuesday and only one hundred and fifteen persons had secured the necessary license from the county clerk. From the bombarding heard there must have been about 1500 hunters out the first day.

OYSTER SUPPER

Oyster Supper at the Fall Festival given by St. Paul's church, at St. Paul's Hall, Florence, Ky., Saturday evening, Nov. 19th, 1921. Tickets 50 cents. Everybody invited.

ROLLED OUT OF BED.

The following item appeared in the Louisville Evening Post, last Saturday, from Georgetown:

"Ruby Allen Tipton, 8, rolled out of bed at the home of her father, William Tipton, and her collar bone was broken in striking the floor."

Mr. Tipton and family were for several years citizens of the Bullittsburg neighborhood, and their many friends are sorry to hear of their misfortune.

GUARDED BY MARINES.

All trains carrying the United States mail are guarded by Marines. The postal clerks are also armed and instructed to take no chances with "hold-up men" but to shoot first and enquire afterwards.

WOULD HELP SOME.

Automobile and truck owners of Boone county have paid into the State Road Fund Frankfort, Ky., $15,000 for their license. This money would if spent on the roads in Boone would repair quite a distance of our roads.

ATTENDED BY LARGE CROWD.

The dance given by Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, last Friday night at Florence Theater, was attended by a large crowd of young folks who enjoyed the dancing and music furnished by Rufus Tanner's jazz orchestra.

JOHN W. HILL STRICKEN

Cynthiana, Ky.—While on the street here John W. Hill, of Boone county, was stricken seriously ill and removed to the hospital. His condition was found to be due to perforation of the intestines, and an operation was performed.

BIG OBSTACLES

To Pleasant Homes Is Failure To Provide Dwellings for The People.

One of the big obstacles to the development of many communities has been the failure to provide dwellings for the people who want to live there. Their manufacturing concerns do not expand, because they could not get help to come and live there. And the reason why they could not get help was that there were no houses for people to live in. Or, if there were vacant dwellings, they were in such poor repair and had so few modern conveniences, that progressive folks bade to live in them.

If the citizens of a place want to see their home town grow, they will find it absolutely necessary to find some portion of their savings and put it into houses for sale and rental purposes. Never yet could you get people to move into a town, if they had to sleep out doors, or if they have to put up with unsanitary and unpleasant quarters. The advancing town has to use a considerable part of their capital in providing comfortable living accommodations for the people.

I want to thank the people of Boone county for electing me Sheriff at the Regular Election held November 8th, 1921. I have selected two good young men I think for my deputies, L. T. Utz, of Florence, Ky., and Herbert Snyder, of Petersburg, Ky. We want to do all we can to protect the people and their rights in Boone county while in office.

I have honor to report Sheriff of Boone county for eleven years, four years under B. R. Alphin, three years under M. F. Wingate and four years under L. A. Conner. I received twenty-five dollars a month for seven years and fifty dollars a month for the last four years and paid all my own expenses, so you can see there is not much pay in being Sheriff. But after a serving the people seven years as Deputy, they elected me High Sheriff for four years by a majority of 752 votes over my opponent, after my term expired I was out of the Sheriff's office for four years, then L. A. Conner was elected Sheriff and I am now Sheriff for four years as Deputy under him. Now the people have elected me Sheriff for the next four years with a majority of 741 votes over my opponent.

As you can see that I feel an added moral obligation to the people of Boone county and expect to serve them in that manner.

Your Friend,
H. B. HILL

THE ELECTION

Both Amendments Defeated—Two Elected to School Board—Light Vote.

The official count as made by the Election Commissioners on the Constitutional Amendments follows:

Amendment No. 1—
For..... 119
Against..... 783

Amendment No. 2—
For..... 153
Against..... 737

For members of the School Board Hubert Conner received 411 votes, W. H. Eggleston received 265 votes, L. T. Clouse 392 votes. At the primary held last August 3490 votes were cast, and at the election last Tuesday only 1185 votes were cast which shows that no interest whatever was manifested by the voters of the county, although two constitutional amendments were submitted to the voters for the ratification or rejection as well as the election of two men who are to conduct the school affairs of Boone county. It is to be regretted that electors will not exercise their rights of suffrage unless some excitement is manifested or the election has a local color to it. The constitutional amendments, which sought to change the fundamental law of our land should have received the consideration of every one. Every one who desires that his State or county to be the equal of any other should take part in all public matters and should exercise his or her right to vote at all elections.

Need more houses. Quite a lot of building has been done in Burlington the past summer. Let the good work go on. We need more new houses as there are a number of citizens that would like to come to Burlington if we had houses for them.

SHUTTING OFF IMPORTS

It is generally agreed among business men that prices of manufactured goods ought to come down still further. The cost of living is still so high as to stop the current of prosperity. Yet in the face of this universal demand, the Republican majority of Congress is planning to go ahead and pass a high tariff law the purpose of which is professedly to raise prices still further.

The protected manufacturers offer as an excuse for such a proposition, that they can not operate their factories full time, owing to the competition of the so-called "cheap labor" of Europe. Now if their complaint is true, the result of shutting off these European products, would be to permit American producers to sell their goods at higher prices than now prevail.

This is a proposal to lift prices on a wide range of manufactured goods, the selling figures of which are now somewhat affected by European competition, up to a new altitude. The American people, just as soon as they understand the real meaning of this idea, will never stand for it, and if it is insisted upon, they will elect a Democratic Congress next fall.

Imports at the present time are not heavy. We need to take all the foreign goods we are now getting, to pay for the stuff we are exporting. We ought to take still more, so that Europe could make a beginning in paying principal and interest on its enormous debt.

Shutting off our present meager imports, will close down factories producing goods to go ahead, and adjourn all payments on the foreign debt. Manufacturers who can not stand competition with the very limited amount of imported goods now coming in, are in a line of business that is on too insecure a foundation to live. They should either improve their methods so they could compete with Europe, or go into a line where they can produce better results.

COONS AND MINKS IN DEMAND.

The trapping season opened last Tuesday, and with the cold, wintry like weather of the past week, caught many country boys, and men, too, to get to get out and oil up his spring traps.

Fur buyers are sending out warnings to the more remote rural districts, telling prospective trappers what pelts will be in demand this season and urging them not to trap too soon. Pelts are not prime until really cold weather has started. Coons and minks will be in demand this year, it is said.

GREATLY SURPRISED.

Mrs. Fannie Hice, Mrs. J. L. Kite, Mrs. Lucy Cowen, Mrs. Ed. Berkshire and Misses Lucy and Anna Gaines, surprised Mrs. Emily Ann Berkshire last Monday, it being her 88th birthday. They spent the day with Mrs. Berkshire who was not advised that she would have company, and she knew nothing of the surprise until the guests arrived who assisted in the preparation of the dinner. Mrs. Berkshire is one of Boone county's oldest and most respected citizens. She has resided at her present residence, three miles west of Burlington, on the Bellevue pike, for more than sixty years, and she is now enjoying good health and is able to do all her own housework. She can cook three as good meals a day as any woman many years younger. The Recorder wishes Mrs. Berkshire many more happy birthdays.

NOTICE.

The Milk Producers of Boone county will meet at Old-Fellows Hall, Florence, Ky., Saturday evening, Nov. 19th, 1921. All members are requested to be present.

CLEM KENDALL,

Secretary.

NEED MORE HOUSES.

Quite a lot of building has been done in Burlington the past summer. Let the good work go on. We need more new houses as there are a number of citizens that would like to come to Burlington if we had houses for them.

JONATHAN M'MULLEN

One of the County's Oldest and Highly Respected Citizens Passes Away.

Jonathan McMillen, 78, died at his home near Grange Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 9th, 1921. He had been in failing health for about two years.

Jonathan McMillen was born in Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 16th, 1843, being at the time of his death 78 years, 3 months and 24 days of age. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Amanda Henderson, to whom he was married October 31, 1865, to this union one child was born, Ada McMillen. His first wife died April 28th, 1879.

July 22nd, 1880, he was married to Elizabeth Mitchell, to this union was born three children—one son and two daughters, Owen, Annie and Eunice, who survive him.

He united with Gunpowder Baptist church Oct. 10th, 1910, of which he was a faithful member until death.

In the death of Mr. McMillen Boone county has lost another of her oldest and highly respected citizens. After a short service at the grave conducted by Rev. Wilford Mitchell, his remains were interred in the L. O. O. F. cemetery near Burlington last Friday morning in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends.

ANOTHER GOOD WOMAN GONE.

Mrs. Emma Frances Stephens, aged 74 years, passed away at her home near Grange Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 8th, 1921. Funeral services were held at the Union Baptist church, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, after which the remains were taken to the Union cemetery by undertaker Philip Taliaferro, for interment. She is survived by her husband, John M. Stephens, and a son, Elmer Connelly, by a former marriage. In the death of Mrs. Stephens the county has lost another of her good women.

GEORGE ANGUS SNYDER.

Geo. Angus Snyder, aged 81, died at his home near Florence, Saturday evening, Nov. 12, 1921. Funeral services were held at the residence Monday, conducted by Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, after which his remains were laid to rest in Florence cemetery. Besides his widow, he leaves a host of relatives and friends who sympathize with her in the loss of a life's companion. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Philip Taliaferro.

Mrs. Arminta Pearson, Dead.

Mrs. Arminta Pearson, widow of James N. Pearson, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eli Surface, in Mt. Zion neighborhood, last Friday. Funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Florence, last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, after which her remains were laid to rest by the side of her husband in Florence cemetery. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Surface, she leaves one son, Robert Pearson, of Covington, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her death. In the death of this good woman the son and daughter have been deprived of a kind and loving mother, and the community in which she lived, a good Christian woman.

Formerly the post-war beautiful lines about the barefoot boy with cheeks of tan, but now he would have to get out something about his pointed feet shown and football face profecters.

GRAND

"The Champion" a new comedy with the brilliant young star, Grant Mitchell in the principal part will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House this week. It is a comedy of youth with all of the ingredients that go far towards making a play of that kind a real success. Embodying all of the essentials that the title of the play would suggest, "The Champion" is proving a real comedy sensation and Grant Mitchell is living up to his already established popular reputation.

SHUBERT

Any play that has made an international reputation is worthy of consideration. Such a one is "Irene" the musical comedy sensation which on its previous visit to Cincinnati broke all traditions for a play of its kind by staying two weeks and playing to record breaking attendance. The book is by James Montgomery and the story by Harry Tierney. The song hits in the production include, "After All's Said," "Castle of Dreams," "We're Getting Away With It," "Irene" and "The Last Part of Every Party." This play is holding forth at the Shubert this week and the audiences are enjoying it as much if not more than they did on its previous visit.

KEITH

At B. F. Keith's Vaudeville house this week John Steele considered America's greatest tenor and for a number of years the leading participant in the famous Ziegfeld Follies is the feature attraction. In conjunction with Steele the management has provided a very diverse and entertaining bill. There is a sketch called "Young America" praised by many as the "epic" of American boyhood. Wallace Bradley, Gretta Arline and J. L. Fisher in a clever offering, there is a comedy called "On and Off" and several others worthy of seeing.

LYRIC

"Whirl of Mirth," a concoction of comedy, songs and dances is the lead-in act at this vaudeville house this week. Another feature act is Poul's Melody Mads. Others on the bill are, David Reese, singer, Arthur and Peary in a Scotch skit, G. Swayne Gordon in a comedy playlet, Judson Cole magician and a film feature called "Pilgrims of the Night," adapted from E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel "Passerby." The cast consists of Ruby Delemer, Lewis S. Stone, Kathleen Kirkham, Raymond Hutton and William V. Mong.

AT THE PICTURE HOUSES.

CAPITOL

For this week's attraction at Ascher's Capitol Theatre the management has outdone itself by bringing to Cincinnati what is considered to be the greatest photoplay of the year, with the most popular stars in the world part. The feature is "The Three Musketeers" from the novel of the same name by Alexander Dumas and the star is Douglas Fairbanks. While the production is still running in New York at $3.00 it is being shown at the Capitol at the prevailing Capitol price 44 cents. As D'Artagnan the dashing young Gascon hero of the Dumas novel Fairbanks is seen at his best. Over a million dollars was spent in the making of the film and one of the greatest casts in the movie world was used in the support of the star. The original musical score is played by the famous Capitol Unit Orchestra under the direction of Theo. Hahn, Jr., and the Capitol Male Quartette sing some very appropriate songs in the costumes of the period of the story.

GIFTS

"Over The Hill" the Fox film which has been playing this house for several weeks is still breaking records at this theatre for attendance. It is a typical mother story with all the joys and sorrows that are resplendent in a story of this type. Mrs. Mary Carr the mother has become one of the most talked of performers in Cincinnati by her splendid portrayal of the part. There is no telling how long the picture will stay, for it has created quite an interest and the flow of attendance never ceases.

CONSTANCE.

Listen! If all reports are true, wedding bells will ring this week. Mr. George Kottmyer and family attended church at Bullittsville, last Sunday.

Mrs. Meagly is very ill at her home here. Mr. Meagly has the sympathy of this community in all his sickness and trouble.

Last Wednesday week Mrs. J. Wood Riggs entertained the Point Pleasant Ladies Aid with an all day meeting. The Aid finished one quilt and tacked one comfort. All had a pleasant day.

Mrs. Kate Dolwick Sunday week ago entertained her sister, Mrs. Carrie Miller and her nephew, Mr. Elmer Miller and wife, of Hebron neighborhood, and Mrs. Margaret Dolwick and Mrs. Dora Dolwick and family, of this place.

The boys feel that they should not injure their vision by over study, as it might injure their batting eye.

RECORD FOR ATTENDANCE

Wilford, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Fuller, of Glen Springs, has attended five terms of public school, during which he has missed only two days, and through no fault of his, as the trustee asked that he be kept at home two days to see if he would develop measles, as he had been exposed. This is a record and it is doubtful if it can be equaled.—Vanceburg Sun.

LEGION NOTES

Members of the American Legion who served with the United States forces in France, will be called upon to give facts relating to Senator Watson's charge that American soldiers were shot and hanged in France without the formality of a court-martial. Secretary of War Weeks in a request to Commander Hanford MacNider for the Legion's cooperation said the War Department desired to prove or definitely refute the Georgia Senator's allegations. Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion said he was sure the National Commander would cooperate.

There is one officer to every seven men in the United States army, according to information received by the American Legion. It was explained by the War Department that the high proportion of officers was due to the present arm policy of maintaining an army capable of quick expansion in time of war. The army today numbers 138,000 of which number 18,000 are officers.

Flying a kite "to keep the wolf away from the door" is the occupation of a World War veteran who during the war flew an airplane in France. The veteran was jobless and the only work the American Legion Employment Bureau at Minneapolis, Minn., could find for him was flying an advertising kite for a film company.

The home in which the daughter of Betsy Ross, maker of the first American flag, lived at Fort Madison Ia., has been purchased by the Fort Madison post of the American Legion for a club house.

Reunited after seventeen years separation, Frank and Jos. Payne, who had been placed in an orphanage in St. Louis in early childhood, found in comparing the war experiences that they had sought safety in the same shell hole in the Argonne but did not at the time know they were brothers. The reunion occurred at Kansas City Mo.

The mayor and chief of police of Lincoln, Neb., have endorsed a plan for the employment of jobless ex-service men as night watchmen to aid the police department in suppressing crime.

A post of the American Legion composed entirely of World War veterans of Polish descent has been formed at Toledo, Ohio and is known as Argonne Post. Frank Szumigala is the commander, Stanley J. Grzesinski is vice commander and Joseph Malinkowski is adjutant.

Roy Phillips, member of the American Legion at Nashville, Tenn., received a five-pound box of candy in the mail and wondered who loved him. After eating some of the candy he was sent to the hospital, where physicians pronounced his condition critical. The candy contained poison and Phillips is now wondering who hates him. The police are investigating.

A five-mile walking race will be held Thanksgiving Day by the Chas. A. Learned Post of Detroit, Mich. Both men and women have entered the contest. Only Legionnaires are eligible. Prizes valued at more than $1000 will be offered.

Joseph Sentich, a world war veteran who lost a leg in the Argonne, walked seven miles at the head of the Selbinn, Mo., post of the American Legion in the Legion parade at Kansas City. Sentich gets around with the aid of a crutch.

C. G. Riddell, of Rabbit Hash, who has been sick for the past five weeks, was taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, for treatment. His many friends wish for him a speedy recovery.

CORN AS FUEL.

The following from the editorial columns of the New York World is well worth reading by those who say they are trying to find out why the farmer is discontented:

When corn is 32 cents a bushel it is as cheap fuel as coal at $16 a ton, according to Secretary Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture. At 20 cents a bushel it is a fuel as cheap as coal at $10 a ton. "Undoubtedly," he says, "large quantities of corn will be burned on Western farms this winter unless the price should materially advance." In Argentina, corn is burned today not only on farms but in power plants.

As a statement of economic fact this cannot be disputed. It is simply a count of calories and carbon units. But when food is burned for fuel the mind flits to Vienna, to Petrograd, to Warsaw, to river towns on the Volga, where millions of people are facing the prospect of starvation at best, stagnation for many, and where American relief workers could so helpfully use that "fuel" for food.

No hint of blame should darken the homes that, by the stern laws of economics, are forced to burn corn.
The corn-burners are as truly victims as are the starving wretches many miles away of the failure of civilization to solve the problem of distribution of food, the problem of the price of food. We point, and justly, to the breakdown of production and transportation in Soviet Russia as an indictment of the Government and as the handmaid of famine. In our own record quite spotless when corn that starving people need is burned because it is cheap while coal is dear.

It is undeniably true that the products of the farm have fallen far beyond the things that the farmer must buy. The farmer must buy coal at inflated prices, but he has to sell his wheat and corn and cotton at delated prices. And the same thing is true with dozens of other articles.
Of course he is disoriented. He has a right to be disoriented. But what he needs, most of all, is to think clearly. The present situation cannot last unless such a prohibitive tariff is built up that the farmer, along with other consumers, will be at the mercy of great combinations of capital. There is but one hope for the ultimate consumer, and that is the operation of economic law. And that is a hope that may be made a reality unless artificial barriers are raised up against economic law. The farmer stands to gain nothing from protective tariff rates, and he stands to lose a great deal.

COMFORTABLY LOCATED.

St. Louis, Mo.
Nov. 9th, 1921.

Editor Recorder:

Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir: I am now located on the historic Potomac, not the stream by that name, in South St. Louis.

Doubtless you have concluded 1 change locations as often as the moon changes in a month. I lived at 1410 LaSalle St., four years; at 180
P. A. California Ave., one month, and at 2614 Potomac street two weeks.

I sought peace, religious surroundings, quietude and plenty to eat, and believe I have found it. This is a German Lutheran neighborhood, hospital one block west, two churches across the street, and the undertaker and coroner just a block away.

I am in a private home for aged working people, of both sex, non-charitable, non sectarian, self-supporting. Not a hospital for sick, helpless invalids, but those in normal mind and health, at a nominal cost.

After living in the streets, alleys, backyards, halls and parlor for two weeks, I now have a new, clean comfortable room all by myself with 3 meals each day and many modern conveniences, and hope to stay.

I am sorry to hear of C. G. Riddell's serious illness and hope he will soon recover.

Many friends, school mates and acquaintances have passed away in 1921. Peace to the living as well as to the dead.

Yours Fraternally,
JAS. L. CONNLEY,
2614 Potomac Street.

In order to stimulate the production of bigger yields of wheat in all parts of the county, Graves county millers, bankers and local farmers' organizations cooperating with the County Agent B. H. Mitchell have donated five barrels of flour and fifty dollars in cash to be awarded as prizes in a wheat growing contest which was started this fall.

The farmer growing and delivering the largest amount of wheat will receive the five barrels of flour. The farmers who produce the most bushels of wheat an acre on five acres or more will receive twenty-five dollars.
A similar prize will be given to the farmer who produces wheat at the least cost a bushel on five acres or more.

PUZZLED BY KENTUCKY'S POLITICAL TURNOVER.

DECADE-OLD REPUBLICAN DISTRICTS FLOPPED.

WHEN THE DEMOCRATIC TIDAL WAVE SWEEPED STATE.

Louisville's Adherence To Rank of Lig Cabin Is Attributed By Observers To Heavy Negro Vote.

(By Observer in Enquirer.)

Louisville, Ky., November 12.—Kentucky's elections not only went according to the pre-election form sheet, but did so in an entirely unexpected degree.

A Democratic tidal wave swept over the state, engulfing everything except Jefferson and Logan counties into the Democratic columns which had been Republican for 30 years. The complexion of both Houses of the Legislature is decidedly Democratic.

A woman will take a seat in the House of Representatives for the first time in the state's history.

Logan county, usually Democratic, went Republican because of a coalition of anti-Rhea Democrats and Republicans in their factional quarrel with the Rheas. This result cracks the power of the Rheas, so long in control of this county.

Louisville's failure to tide on the Democratic wave is attributed to the heavy negro vote, which, when cast up to its full strength, makes it apparently impossible for the Democrats ever to look for victory here.

The net result of the Louisville races discloses a situation that indicates a Democratic Governor two years hence. The state county has shown such a remarkable political reversal in such a brief period of time.

The House of Representatives, from a count of 55 Republicans and 45 Democrats, has switched to 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans.

The Senate will contain 20 Democrats and 18 Republicans against a tie of 19-19 at the last session. This situation precludes the voting of the Lieutenant Governor who is restricted to balloting in case of a tie.

The Democrats will organize both Houses of the Legislature and will name all the offices that go with it. The speaker of the House will be Democratic and so will the President pro tempore of the Senate.

SANITARY EQUIPMENT IS LACKING IN FARM HOMES.

That Kentucky farm homes are seriously in need of sanitary equipment in the form of running water, indoor toilets, bathrooms, and electric and gas lights is shown by early reports received in an investigation being conducted by the engineering section of the College of Agriculture to determine the number of homes which have such improvements. Less than three per cent of the farm homes of the State have any of the sanitary and modern equipment mentioned, according to the reports received from various county agricultural agents.

Conditions in counties of the state vary, some having a large percentage of homes with such equipment and others having practically none. The reports have indicated that in all counties there is need for more sanitary equipment, and that a better and more sanitary place to live. Mr. Kelley said. One county agent reported that not a single farm home in his county contained any sanitary equipment.

Plans are being made by the farm engineering section of the college to assist farmers with the problems of making their farm homes more convenient and sanitary, according to Mr. Kelley. Arrangements are being made to give suggestions and help to all those interested who write to the college at Lexington requesting such information.

OVER THE TOP

Boone Has Signed 75 Per Cent. Of Her Tobacco To The Burley Pool.

Burlington precinct signed 98 per cent for the cooperative tobacco pool while Carlton precinct will sign the lowest per cent. Boone county will on a final tabulation show that more than 75 per cent signed the cooperative plan. From reports received by the Recorder at the time of going to press, show that the cooperative plan of marketing the tobacco crop has been signed by more than 85 per cent of the growers in the Burley district.

1,200 LEE FARMERS ATTEND FOUR COMMUNITY MEETINGS

School and community meetings are proving a valuable means of presenting farm and home as well as community problems to farm men and women of the State, according to reports being received by the College of Agriculture. Many reports of successful gatherings of this kind already have been received by the college, the most recent one being from Lee county where a total of 1,200 farm men and women attended four school and community gatherings arranged by County Agent T. H. Jones in cooperation with the College extension division and school authorities of the county.

WITHOUT BIRDS RACE WOULD END

Feathered Friends with Big Appetites Essential to Welfare of Mankind.

Man might lose horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and yet contrive to live. But it is fairly safe to prophesy that if all birds were exterminated human life would cease within ten years.

This statement, startling as it may sound, is cold truth, for if there were no birds to keep their numbers down, noxious insects would increase so rapidly that all vegetation would be destroyed, all grain and grass eating creatures would consequently become extinct, and the few survivors of the human race would be driven to the far Arctic to eke out a miserable existence on fish, whale, or seal flesh.

WHAT MOTHER EARNS.

That excellent country newspaper, the West Point (Neb.) Republican carries the following story in its current issue and declares that every newspaper in the land should print it. We agree, and here it is:

"She never earned any money—she lives on an Ohio farm, but she lives on almost every other farm. She is somebody's mother, maybe your own. She has earned nothing. No, but during her thirty working years she has served 432,938 meals; she has made 3,123 garments, 32,000 loaves of bread, 5,390 cakes, 7,932 pies, 1,500 gallons of lard; she has grown 1,432 bushels of vegetables, and has raised 7,600 chickens; churned 5,430 pounds of butter; put up 3,625 jars of preserves; scrubbed 177,725 articles of laundry; and she has put in 35,839 hours of sweeping and washing and scrubbing. At accepted prices for this work it is worth $115,480.50. She can't retire on her savings—she has to keep on. Not earning! No. How do you define the ordinary woman's contributions to her family wealth?—Collier's Weekly.

The Death Angel has again visited our community and taken from our midst one of our oldest citizens. Jas. Smith was born in Bione county, May 9th, 1840, died Nov. 7th, 1921, aged 81 years, 5 months and 29 days, after a illness of 3 months.

Early in life he was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Cullens, and to this union 11 children were born, of which six with the widow survive.

Fifteen years ago he united with the Baptist church at this place and remained a member until death. Funeral services were conducted at the home on Wednesday Nov. 9th by Revs. Jeffries and Traynor, of Petersburg, Ky., and although the day was rainy and disagreeable the large crowd present was evidence of the fact that he was respected and esteemed in the community where he had spent so many years.

Card of Thanks.—We desire to express our thanks to our many friends and neighbors for the many kind acts shown us during the illness of our beloved husband and father, also for the beautiful floral offerings, Rev. Jeffries for his consoling remarks, Rev. Traynor for the beautiful prayer, and Mr. Steele the undertaker, for the efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral.

PETERSBURG.

Charles Cox is at home again. His family for the present.

Built White's son who had pneumonia last week, is improving.

The ladies of our town are busy making and burning leaves.

Husking corn and stripping tobacco in the order of the day.

When you want to know what is going on in the county read the Recorder.

Mrs. Perrin Loudon arrived home from the hospital after a stay of several weeks, much improved.

The town was quite noisy last Friday Nov. 11th, Armistice Day, from 11 o'clock a. m., until nearly 12 o'clock noon, with the church and school bells ringing.

The citizens of the town, surrounding country and members of the different churches blessed sister Mary Eliza Snelling, one of our oldest and highly esteemed christian ladies with a bountiful shower last Thursday evening, with enough provisions of all kinds to supply her wants for a long time. Petersburg Coal Co. donated eight dollars worth of coal four little tots gave the widows nine, two gave ten cents, each one a nickel and one two pennies. Over fourteen dollars in cash was given her. She asks all to accept her heartfelt thanks for their liberal donations, praying God's richest blessings to reward them.

GUNPOWDER.

H. F. Utz and wife were shopping in the city last Saturday.

Noah Zimmerman had his winter supply of mill feed delivered last week.

The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Lonnie Tanner found on the pike near Florence a link cuff button which the owner can have by calling for it.

H. F. Utz delivered his crop of wool at Walton, last Monday, and attended to other important business enroute.

Last Sunday morning had very much the appearance of winter for a short while, with a cold east wind and snow flying made it rather uncomfortable.

Edward Busby moved from Cincinnati last week and is occupying the Redmon Gossett house. On account of failing health it was necessary for him to leave the city.

After a lingering illness of several months Mrs. Arminia Pearson was called to her reward last Saturday night at the advanced age of eighty-one years. She was cared for most tenderly by her daughter Mrs. E. H. Surface during her illness. The funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church at Florence last Sunday, after which the remains were interred by the side of those of her husband in the Florence cemetery.

One daughter, Mrs. E. H. Surface, of Cincinnati, and a host of friends survive to mourn her departure.

HAS LANDED A FEW NICE ONES. James Mitchell from over on Gunpowder, was in Burlington last Friday. He said he had had very little time to fish this fall, but had landed a number of nice cat fish the past few weeks. He is one of the best fishermen in the county.

A penalty will be added to your tax list if it is not paid. In the next two weeks.

CARELESS PRACTICES MEAN SERIOUS WASTE OF MANURE

Leaching, heating, fire-fanging and the failure of farmers to spread the material as soon as possible results in an annual loss of approximately three-fourths of the farm manure produced in Kentucky, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils and crops specialist at the College of Agriculture. Not more than one-fourth or about 2,500,000 tons of the manure produced is dropped in stalls or otherwise saved so that it can be hauled and spread on the land where it is most needed, according to the specialist. However, a large amount is dropped on pastures and in the open field where cattle are fed and is therefore not a complete loss although it is not used as efficiently as it might be. More careful attention to the proper care of this important farm fertilizer affords farmers of the State a splendid opportunity for increasing their profits, according to Mr. Stephenson.

The greatest manure loss results from the fact that few farmers make sufficient effort to save the material and spread it on the fields where crops are produced. Large amounts of it are allowed to accumulate around the barnyard and strawstack and in other places. Since the most efficient place to save the manure is on a field which is producing a crop best results will be obtained by hauling and spreading it as often as possible. When manure cannot be spread as rapidly as it accumulates a specially constructed manure pit or shed will be found helpful in conserving the plant food which it contains.

Leaching is another one of the channels through which farm manure is wasted, much of the material becoming inferior in quality because of the loss of liquid matter. This liquid constitutes one-half the value of the manure and in order to properly save it farmers should prepare tight floors of clay or concrete and then use large amounts of bedding. When stock are loose in the stall some of the bedding will be consumed as feed and the remainder tramped into the manure to absorb the liquid portion.

Heating or fire-fanging which results when manure is piled in loose heaps also results in losses of the farm fertilizer. The heated manure gives off ammonia which carries with it large amounts of valuable nitrogen. This loss may be prevented by allowing the stock to tramp the manure so that it will be compact and by keeping it moist until it is spread on the field.

SALTS HAVE TAKEN PLACE OF GREEN FEEDS FOR HENS

Green feeds such as sprouted oats, mangel, beets, silage and cabbage which for some time have been advocated as important winter feeds for hens may be successfully replaced by epsom salts placed in the drinking water of the birds, according to J. H. Martin, in charge of poultry work at the College of Agriculture. Use of this material accomplished the same results as the feeding of green foods and did it with less expense and trouble, according to results of trials cited by Mr. Martin.

Use of green feed in the winter ration of the hens only serves to keep the digestive tract in the proper condition and does not increase the egg production of the birds, according to results obtained in feeding trials. It also furnishes the yellow coloring in the yolk of the egg. Since the yellow color may be supplied by yellow corn and the digestive tract benefited by the salts the trouble and labor involved in the growing and feeding of green feeds can be eliminated by poultrymen.

One pound of salts for each 100 hens in the flock is sufficient according to Mr. Martin. This amount should be dissolved in one-half the amount of water normally consumed by the birds. The solution should be placed before the hens before any thing else in the morning and the flock confined in the house until the salts and water are consumed. Before going to roost at night the birds should be given plenty of fresh water.

KENTUCKY APPLE CROP ONE-FOURTH OF NORMAL

The apple crop in Kentucky this year will be approximately one-fourth what it was last year, according to reports made by farmers to Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna and to the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates at Louisville. The crop on October 1 gave promise of totaling 1,215,000 bushels as compared with 5,780,000 bushels last year.

The story of what growers say was the damage done by frost last spring, when killing frosts occurred long after the trees were in full bloom, is told by the reports of conditions in the various counties, fifty-six counties making no report of conditions on this crop. The best report came from Henderson county, with a crop 80 per cent normal, with Logan county, where the condition was said to be 68 per cent of normal, second, and Ballard county reporting a crop 63 per cent of normal. Martin, Bath and Montgomery counties reported the lowest percentages, the crop in each being 1 per cent of normal. Duane county, which ranks second only to Henderson as the banner apple county of the State, reported a crop 41 per cent normal.

GOOD ROADS BILL

Congressman Rouse Supports Townsend Road Bill.

Congressman A. B. Rouse supported the Townsend Good Road Bill, and on the question of recommitment he said:

Mr. Speaker I shall vote against the motion to recommit this bill and vote for the adoption of the conference report. The first bill enacted into law making appropriation for the construction of roads originated from the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads during the Sixty-second Congress. I have been a member of the Post Office Committee during my term in Congress, and it was my pleasure to vote in committee and on final passage of the bill for the first appropriation for good roads, and I have consistently maintained that position to this time. Money appropriated by Congress for construction and maintenance of good roads will be of greater benefit to all the people than money spent for most any other purpose.

While I favor the adoption of the conference report on this bill, yet at the same time I do not see the necessity of the many provisions contained in the bill. This bill makes an appropriation of $75,000,000 for good roads for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, $25,000,000 of which shall become immediately available and $50,000,000 to be available after January 1, 1922. The bill is drawn to meet the recommendation of the President when he stated in his first address to Congress as follows:

I know of nothing more shocking than the millions of public funds wasted in improved highways, wasted because there is no policy of maintenance. The neglect is not universal, but it is very near it. There is nothing the Congress can do more effectively to end this shocking waste than condition all Federal aid on provisions for maintenance. Highway ways, no matter how generous the outlay for construction, can not be maintained without patrol and constant repair. Such conditions insisted upon in the grant of Federal aid will safeguard the public which pays, and guard the Federal Government against political abuses which tend to defeat the very purposes for which we authorize Federal expenditure.

NEW MOVIE THEATRE

Petersburg Has New Theatre And Her People Should Feel Elated.

The opening of the new movie theater at Petersburg, was greeted with a packed house last Saturday night, and the large crowd was well pleased with the superb pictures of seven reels. The new owner and promoter, Mr. R. E. Berkshire, should be congratulated by the people of Petersburg and surrounding country for his efforts in securing for them a place in which they can enjoy a few hours of amusement, one night a week during the long winter evenings. The building has been thoroughly remodeled and put in "apple pie" order—painted, frescoed, and a new Edison machine installed. Petersburg can now boast of one of the finest movie houses of any country town in the State. On next Saturday night "Keeping Up With Lizzie," with a new reel comedy will be the attraction.

Some Ear of Corn.

Mr. Everett Hickman, who lives at the edge of town, who knows good corn when he sees it, brought to this office one evening last week an ear of yellow corn that measured 11 inches in length, 8 inches in circumference, weighed 26 ounces and contains 1200 grains. This corn was raised on the land belonging to Dr. M. A. Yelton which lies along the Florence pike, opposite the Boone County High School building. Who can beat it?

THE BOND ISSUE.

A bill will be introduced in the next session of the Kentucky Legislature to put on a fifty million dollar bond issue. This issue is to be paid for year to year by the future citizens of the State. At the present time we are opposed to putting the state any deeper in debt and we always have reasons for our vote.

The State and Nation have not recovered from the effects of the war and the results from a fifty million dollar debt added to the present state debt would dishearten the people who pay taxes in the State.

Again until there is a different system used in the State in spending the State funds, the tax payers are not getting their money's worth. Thousands of dollars have been spent upon the roads the past year and the roads are not in much better condition.

We need a little more normalcy, a little less red tape, and a little more value received for the dollars spent.—Owen County Democrat.

RIVER REVIVAL DISCERNED.

In Investigation Begun by Agent of Carnegie Steel Company.

Louisville, Ky.—What is believed to be the first real attempt at revival of river transportation now is under way, according to officials in the office of the United States Engineers here.

The Carnegie Steel Company, of Pittsburgh, has sent Charles Orchard, special agent of its traffic department, to investigate the possibilities of river transportation with a possible view to shipping steel products by water.

Shipment last week by another Pittsburgh steel company to Louisville, Evansville, New Albany and St. Louis of thousands of tons of steel products and shipments of thousands additional tons of freight under preparation by the concern are said to have caused the action of the Carnegie Company.

A MOON STORY.

An exchange says: "A man in Michigan by the name of Moon got married, and that was a change in the moon. In due time his wife presented him with a daughter, and that was a new moon; then he went out in town and tanked up on 'moon' for joy, and that was a full moon; when he started for home he had 25 cents in his pocket, that was his last quarter; his mother-in-law met him at the door with a rolling pin and that was a total eclipse—he saw stars."

NEARLY 85 PER CENT.

Of the Tobacco Signed in the Burley Pool—Boone County Signed 77.3 Per Cent.

Lexington, Ky.—The largest cooperative association of farm producers in the United States came into being with the adoption of a resolution and a report of a verification committee which went over the reports of all the counties in the burley tobacco district and declared that 84.85 per cent of the crop of 1920 had been signed up to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association.

The figures, as revised by the verification committee, which was composed of six well known Kentuckians acting with the executive committee of the association, showed that 209,203,482 pounds of tobacco had been grown in the burley district in 1920 and that 177,521,265 pounds of this had been signed up by the growers with the association, and that 42,000 growers of tobacco signed the contract.

There remains considerable territory unorganized in the states of Tennessee, West Virginia, and Indiana, besides two or three more. It is likely that an opportunity will be given the growers of these counties to come into the association before the final closing of the pool, 85 per cent was 77.3 signed by 711 Boone county growers.

SCHOOL PUBLICITY.

Clyde R. Miller of the board of education of Cleveland, Ohio, in a recent magazine article asks: "How do we have not made more effort to secure publicity. In his city the board encourages the news papers to cover school news. School executives are urged to help the newspapers get interesting items and other articles."

The schools are full of interesting events. But frequently when a newspaper man goes to a principal or teacher and asks them for information, the educator not having his news sense developed, says there is nothing new.

TRY WORKING AWHILE.

The election being over it now behooves the street corner orator to find a different subject with which to entertain his followers. Suppose he tries the subject of "work for the interest of your town?" That subject ought to enable him to "spread himself" right, for it is seldom you hear any one arid pertaining to the upbuilding of our good old town. Hold-ups are of such frequent occurrence all over the country that the subject has ceased to excite any other than a passing interest in the details; the matter of better roads no longer appeals to the people; legal holidays are of no consequence to many of our people; Xmas celebrations are yet in the distance, and the truth of it is the "sidewalk speaker" is having a difficult time these days to entertain his hearers. Try the subject suggested, brother, and see if the magic of your eloquence will not move the people to do something for your town that you call "HOME."

MADE A KILLING.

Robert Popham, who lives down on Gunpowder creek, holds the record so far as the Recorder can find out as to the number of rabbits killed on last Tuesday. He killed 27 rabbits and one quail.

LIGHTNING

Kills Two Horses While Two Men Have Narrow Escape.

During the rain and thunder storm on Wednesday of last week, Mr. Henry Clore and his son-in-law, Lon Clore, who reside about three miles from town out on the Burlington and Waterloo pike, had a narrow escape from death, although the two horses which they were driving and a dog that was under the wagon, were instantly killed.

The Messrs. Clores had just drove into the shed from out in the field, where they had been at work, when a stroke of lightning knocked them both unconscious, and when they revived, neither the horses nor the dog and the dog dead.

There is no evidence to show that the building or anything else close by had been hit, and just how the two men escaped being killed is a mystery, as they were both sitting in the wagon. Mr. Lon Clore who was sitting nearer the horses was more seriously injured than was his father-in-law, who was in the back end of the wagon.

WORKING FOR THE LARGER COMMUNITY.

A get together meeting of commercial and agricultural associations of the Fox River Valley, Wisconsin, has been held to work out a plan to advertise the valley nationally.

They propose to bury the individuality of the several cities in the district, and emphasize the valley as a whole. This idea is gaining much ground. People sometimes get glib of so much boasting of individual features, but they get interested when they are told about the resources and possibilities of a district.

Our communities need to realize better that what promotes the development of their section helps every town and city in the section. Rival cities can get about so far by pulling and heeling to get business away from each other. But to make a big advance, they must lift their county or their district up to a higher level of production and prosperity, which will automatically reflect itself in the advance of every community contained therein.

THE AMENDMENTS.

The people of Kentucky showed plainly that they desire to elect the State Superintendent of Schools by their repudiation of School Amendment No. 1. They did not, however, by this action necessarily show hostility to educational progress. Within the limits of the Constitution, for any efforts to raise the standard of the office should meet with approval.

A majority of 10,854 has been registered against the first constitutional amendment and of 12,071 against the second by thirty-five counties, reporting so far to Secretary of State Fred A. Vaughn at the election of November 7. The vote stands for the first amendment 21,223, against 32,167; for the second amendment 19,512, against 31,523.

Old Colored Lady Dead.

Aunt Jimma Kennedy, aged 79 years, one of the good old-fashion colored women, died at her home in north edge of town, last Wednesday evening, of the infirmities of old age. Her remains were buried in the colored cemetery, last Saturday morning. Philip Talarfero, of Erlanger, had charge of the funeral.

Teacher Resigns

Miss Sallie Jones, one of the teachers in the Boone County High School, and who went to her home at Atwood, Tenn., on a visit during the scarlet fever quarantine, has sent in her resignation to the Board of Education. It is reported that a young lady from Michigan will take her place in the school.

WIND DOES DAMAGE.

Some damage was inflicted by the high wind which visited this part of the country during the early hours last Saturday morning. A portion of the roof of a barn of J. H. Jockey's south of town was torn off, while the tops of several pine trees, the surrounding residences were twisted off and blown some distance away. The persistent rain that resumed its fall at day break Saturday was checked about noon and toward evening the mercury had dropped several degrees, and Sunday morning saw very much of a winter appearance.

NOTICE.

The Boone County Chapter A. R. C., will hold its annual election of officers at the Court House in Burlington Saturday Dec. 3, 1921, at 1 p. m. It is desired that each auxiliary have a representative at the meeting.

A ROGERS.

The month of November has given us plenty of rain so far.

THE MAN WITH THE RAKE

Poets have become disturbed about the sorrows of the "Man with the hoe." They picture him as bowed down under the weight of toil, so physically weary with his labors that he has no joy in living, or leisure for intelligent thought.

But no one ever wrote any pessimistic poetry about the Man with the Rake. He is a more cheerful figure. He gets out on these nice fall days, and as he scratches over his lawn, disorderly accumulations of rubbish and dead leaves resolve themselves into neat piles, and soon are consumed by the crackling flames of the fall bonfire.

An enormous improvement manifests itself as the result of his exert. His neighbors look uneasily at their own conditions, and they do get out their garden tools and trim up for winter. The homes look shinier and more self-respecting as these labors go on. A row of previously insignificant looking dwellings takes on an air of refinement. Let Boone tender its warm appreciation to the Man with the Rake.

Dr. W. E. Slet Dead.

Dr. W. E. Slet, formerly of Verona, died at Beechurst Sanitarium, Louisville, Nov. 24th. He had been ill for several months. Cause of his death was hardening of the arteries. He was born at Verona, and was 62 years of age at the time of his death. He was buried at Midway, where he had resided for several years Nov. 6th. He was a brother of Mrs. J. C. Hume, of Walton.

MILK PRODUCERS MEETING

To Be Held in Cincinnati, November 28th and 29th.

The Fifth annual meeting of the National Milk Producers Federation will be held at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati, Nov. 28th and 29th. Hon. Milo D. Campbell will preside at the meeting. Nov. 28th, Hon. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, will deliver an address on the problems affecting Agriculture and the Dairy Industry. The session of the Federation to be held November 29th will be held in Central Turner Hall, Walnut Street, Cincinnati, and this meeting will be addressed by Hon. J. B. Cull, Secretary of the National Association of Agricultural Inquiry, Hon. W. F. Schilling, President of the National Milk Producers Association of St. Paul, Hon. J. D. Miller, Vice President and General Counsel of the Dairymen's League of Utah, N. Y., and others who will discuss questions affecting the dairy interest. This will be a meeting that should be attended by milk producers as questions of vital importance will be discussed by men who have given those subjects thought and consideration.

ODD-FELLOWS SUPPER AT WALTON.

The Walton Odd-Fellows Lodge will give a supper in the basement of the Walton Christian church, Saturday, Dec. 3rd, six to seven o'clock, to which everybody is most cordially invited. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the lodge as it is in debt for sick and death benefits. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

WHY THEY POST.

Out through the county will be found notices, prohibiting hunting and trespassing on many farms—this measure was taken for the simple reason that many unscrupulous hunters did not respect the rights of the property owners. Wire fences were cut, rail fences pulled down, gates left open and oft times the poultry and cattle of the owner became the target for careless hunters. The land owner to protect himself had to adopt the means of posting his land, against all trespassing. Very few farmers object to the real sportsman, the man that enjoys the hunt from the sportsman standpoint, they enjoy having him out on their lands.

According to news dispatches from such reliable sources as the Associated Press, President Wilson received the greatest ovation any man, living or dead, ever received as he rode up Pennsylvania avenue in the armistice day parade. Yet, so prejudiced are some of the great newspapers of the land that the dispatches carrying this particular event were ignored by them.

CARD OF THANKS.—We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all those who rendered their kind help during the death of our infant son and brother. And especially to Bro. Jeffries for his comforting words at the grave.

Geo. Tinsley wife and children.

COMET Wednesday, Nov. 23, the Union Graded School will give an opera, "Bobby Brewster's Roster" beginning at 7:30 p. m. Admission, Adults 25c, Children 15c.

ONE BY ONE

Are the Older Citizens Passing Away—Another Has Answered the Final Call.

The announcement of the death of C. G. Riddell, which occurred at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, last Saturday night about nine o'clock, where he had been taken, for treatment, comes as a shock not only to his relatives, but his numerous friends throughout the county, and especially to those in the community where he was born and reared.

He really had not been well for a year or more, but had been up and about looking after his business, until about two months ago, when he was compelled to take his bed. It was that grief over the sudden death of Mr. Ben Wilson, with whom he had made his home for the past thirty or more years, hastened his death, which was attributed to heart trouble and asthma of which he had been a sufferer for several years. He was a patient sufferer and bore the pain without murmur unto the last.

He was the youngest child born to John and Florence McKay Riddell, of whom had preceded him to the grave; was reared on the farm now owned by R. B. Huey, February 14, 1851, died Nov. 12, 1921, just five months to the day after the death of his brother, W. L. Riddell.

The death of Calvin Garnett Riddell removes another Boone county citizen who probably had as many as six or seven heads as any man who lived in the county, and who, by virtue of his sunny nature, deceived the friends he met. But, Cal Riddell, as he was familiarly called by all who knew him, has answered the summons and gone to his eternal home.

He was born and reared on the farm, and attended the common schools of the county, and after reaching manhood taught in the public schools for several years. In 1877 he became a clerk in the Granger store at Rabbit Hash; in 1883 the business became the property of Wilson Riddell; in the spring of 1900 Mr. Wilson's interest was sold to L. L. Stephens, which business was carried on under the firm name of Riddell & Stephens and the store was run under that name for three years, when Mr. Riddell bought out his partner, and which he owned at the time of his death. That he was loved and respected by all who knew him, was attested by the large concourse of sad people who paid their last tribute by their presence at the funeral services, which were held at the home of Mrs. Ben Wilson in Rabbit Hash, where he was taken last Saturday night by Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, who had charge of the funeral.

"Cal" as he was called, was praised for his many good qualities of heart and soul. He was never known to turn down a deserving acquaintance, and never failed to respond to a call for help in sickness or death. We have known him to be learned of a worthy neighbor was behind with his work and was likely to lose for the want of help, his team and men were ready to go to the rescue, without asking, and under all considerations free from any pay." With such a happy disposition, explains why he had legions of friends. He was never married. He leaves several nephews and nieces who have the sympathy of all in their grief and sorrow.

Rev. R. C. McNeely conducted a short funeral service in the K. of P. Hall in Rabbit Hash, which was filled with also the yard surrounding the hall. A quartet from the Rising Sun rendered several beautiful and appropriate songs.

Funeral service was conducted by the Masonic and K. of P. orders of which he had been a member for a number of years. After the service his remains were brought to Burlington and buried on the lot with his father and mother, sister and brother, there to rest until resurrection day. The pall-bearers were B. M. Wilson, R. L. Hodges, B. C. Kelly, R. T. Stephens, J. A. Wilson and Kenneth Ryle.

THE FARM BUREAU.

When country people proceed to help themselves by means of a great farm bureau organization, they are forcibly calling government's attention to the things that government itself ought to do.

"God helps them that helps themselves," is all right, but the time has pretty nearly dawned for government aid to help the people, and we will be very much mistaken if farm bureau federation progressiveness does not, before long, stir our Federal congress to more important action than has ever been dreamed of before.

Dam Work Stopped.

Work on Lock and Dam 28, being built across the Ohio river at Millville, was stopped last Friday evening, throwing about 350 men out of employment. Work will begin again early in the spring. Too much water in the river was the cause of suspension.

A QUARANTINE STORY.

The Health Officer dropped in the office yesterday.

"Let me give you an instance of what might be termed protector citizenship," he commented, "the type every county needs 100 per cent of, the type through which a Health Department can most efficiently work."

"A Sunday or so ago I went out eight or nine miles from town to examine a case of Scarlet Fever reported by a county physician, leaving the Cincinnati pike and driving towards Biddle. Not knowing exactly the location of the house I stopped at the first home looming up before my headlights. When the owner came out to determine the cause of the racket outside, said racket being a Ford engine running idle, I inquired the direction. He did not recognize me in the dark and immediately replied, 'Better not go there, they have scarlet fever.'"

"Thanks," I replied, "that's the reason I am going." I identified myself.

"On arriving at the home designated, I put the card up and went through the necessary routine. On the point of leaving, the householder volunteered a suggestion. 'Suppose you let me have another card for the gate, Doctor, you know my house is a little off the pike.'"

"Do you know," said Dr. Lipscomb as he pulled on his gloves and looked toward the Ford representing the collective mind of many pikes, "it really makes a Health officer feel good to meet examples and people like this, and there are lots of similar types in this county. Am I right in my term 'protective citizenship.' I think so. A Health Officer leaving a home like that feels instinctively that such good citizenship back of a quarantine card means community and county protection."—Georgetown Times.

SHOULD FEEL PROUD

The people living in Hebron, Florence and Petersburg and surrounding communities should feel quite proud that each of these towns now has a "Movie Theatre," which means for them helpful, uplifting and entertaining evenings during the winter. The citizens should stand by, get under and help make each of these projects a success. What's the matter with Burlington that she can't keep up with these progressive towns?

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By English Class.)

Miss Jones, our English teacher, who was called home on account of the death of a relative, has sent in her resignation. Mrs. Tolin will continue to teach until school is dismissed for the Thanksgiving holidays, when a permanent teacher will be secured.

The next Literary number will be given at the school house, November 30th by "The Society." An interesting program is planned. Everyone is cordially invited.

Last Wednesday night the two basketball teams of B. H. S. journeyed to Elsmere and were defeated. The girls score being 15-2, boys 19-10. This being an indoors court, everything was in favor of Elsmere, as Burlington was accustomed to an outdoor court.

November 15th several boys were absent from school on account of it being the opening of the hunting season.

Burlington will play the Walton basketball team on the home court, Wednesday Nov. 23d.

The Freshman class was initiated by the Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores, one day last week.

Myrtle Eddins, after an illness of scarlet fever, returned to school, last Monday.

CONGRATULATIONS.

I want to extend congratulations to all workers in Boone county who have been so loyal and hearty in their support of our county in this county. By your untiring effort and unselfish devotion the cause you have placed your county on a par with other tobacco producing counties in the State. You are entitled to all the credit that can be accorded you in having a part in bringing about the formation of the largest commodity cooperative in America.

To the ladies in charge of the various Telephone Exchanges in the county I want to say a THANK YOU for the efficient and able manner in which you have handled the large amount of extra work imposed on you, sometimes under the most trying condition.

C. O. JIMPLEING, Chairman, "Organization Committee," Burley Tobacco Growers.

A DAY NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN.

Language is inadequate to express our appreciation and gratitude to our many friends and relatives that gathered with us to celebrate the anniversary of our birthday.

It was one of those beautiful mid-October days, that no other month in the year can duplicate, and all nature seemed in harmony with the occasion. They had kept their proceedings such a profound secret that the surprise was complete.

Although we noticed a mischievous twinkle in many an eye and a happy smile on every face yet we were slow to comprehend what was to follow, but at last it dawned upon our mind that we were the victims of a surprise party, and then we entered into the spirit of the joke with all our heart, and found ourselves in the midst of the happiest and jolliest crowd that ever gathered on the hills of old Gunpowder.

The morning hours were occupied in shaking hands and exchanging greetings with our three welcome visitors, and then the dinner, everything that heart could wish for, prepared in the most appetizing manner that the good cooks in attendance understood so well.

When more than 80 hungry men women and children had been fed there remained on the bountiful table ample provision to have fed one hundred more. The spirit of generosity had not been abated, for many baskets and boxes were prepared and sent to the sick and aged that could not be with us. Our Savior said "As ye do to the least of these my brethren ye do to me" and as we know that we are less than the least of his children we believe our kind heavenly father will reward these good people according to their deeds.

Afternoon was spent in social conversation intermingled with hymns played on the victrola, such as "I want to live closer to Jesus," "Mothers prayers have followed me," "I walk with the King," "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," "Memories of Olden Days," "Old Rugged Cross," "Sweeter as the Years Go By" and many other beautiful selections. Too soon the shades of evening began to gather and as our guests prepared to take their departure we heard such expressions as this: "O what a day," and deep down in the depths of our heart we said Amen, what a day, never to be forgotten, no never.

May they all live long and prosper may this be our wish for them.

J. H. Mitchell and Family.

GETTING AFTER BUSINESS

The maker of a popular staple said the other day, that while retail stores are still some distance from normal, yet he has found for the past year that those that really went after business were getting it. He felt that the consumption of the public had not fallen off as much as many people have thought, and that plenty of goods can be sold if the retailers make a little more effort than usual. Consequently his firm had been spending a lot of money to push their goods and were getting results.

For manufacturing concerns a great deal depends on the kind of work the traveling salesmen do. During the flush times, orders came so easily that the salesmen degenerated into a kind of animated order taking machine.

He walked up to the business office with a confident air, knowing that he had only to show himself, and the orders would flow in faster than his firm could deliver them. It was comfortable work for sales forces, but it got them into easy going habits.

Similar conditions exist in retail salesmanship. The store clerk in these times needs not merely to stand behind the counter and quote prices. He should make a study of his merchandise, so that he can give intelligent suggestions to the people looking for the most dependable goods.

A crust of conservatism now holds back a great business revival. While prudence is good, yet too much of it creates a jerky trade, in which periods of dullness are succeeded by a rush of everyone to buy at once, resulting in higher prices. A steady trade can be promoted by a steady pull for sales. The business is there for those who go for it systematically. The traveling salesmen will tramp a little further to see all their possible customers. If the retail clerk finds himself idle, he might call up his friends and tell them of the bargains in his department.

CONSTANCE.

Clifford Reeves and wife are entertaining a little son born Nov. 11. Miss Margaret Meyer was married last Wednesday, Nov. 16th. Details later.

Mr. and Mrs. Mengley are the proud parents of a little son, born last Monday, 14th of November.

C. L. Hankins, son of John Lewis Hankins, is home on a furlough. Young Hankins has been a sailor on the U. S. Arkansas nearly 3 years.

Several from here attended the pie social at Sand Hill school Friday night. Among the number were Sadler Hankins and Mr. Henry Reeves. All report having a good time.

While discussion is a good thing in a democracy, political argument should not be carried so far that it has to call out the fire department to turn the hose on the disputants.

SIMPLICITY SHOWS TRUE THANKSGIVING

Reducing the frills of the usual Thanksgiving dinner and increasing the attention paid to home or community activities on that day is a logical way in which Americans can celebrate the holiday in fitting style, according to Miss Maybelle Cornell, head of the home economics department of the College of Agriculture.

For certain foods are particularly appropriate for the day it is neither wise nor necessary in carrying out the traditions of the day to sacrifice all else in order to heap the table with burdens of rich and many times improper foods. Church services in the morning, followed by a simple but well-prepared dinner at noon and appropriate home amusements in the afternoon and evening constitute a celebration that will most nearly approach that of the colonial settlers, according to Miss Cornell.

"Since the day is supposed to be one of real thanksgiving for the many benefits enjoyed during the past year a short church service in the morning is an ideal way in which to begin the day," Miss Cornell said. "A union service of a number of churches with inspiring music, appropriate prayers and talks will not only place the day on record as one of real thanksgiving but also will provide an inspirational meeting from which community thinking should result.

"One should remember that the real feast is one in which the food is of superior quality properly prepared and that the arrangement of it in true American style calls for simplicity. A suitable menu for the day, limited to grape fruit baskets, baked turkey with dressing and gravy, cranberry jelly, candied sweet potatoes, creamed cauliflower, tomato jelly with celery, individual pumpkin puddings with hard sauce, nuts raisins and coffee. Another may include tomato soup, celery, roast pork, tenderloin, stuffed baked potatoes, onions in cream sauce, baked squash, pear salad, French dressing, pumpkin pie, currant jelly, nuts, raisins and coffee.

"Following the close of the Thanksgiving dinner the true homemaker has an opportunity to come forward with some sort of program with which to conclude the festivities of the day, invited friends of both the children and the older members of the family can constitute a group which should obtain real Thanksgiving enjoyment from popping or parching corn, staging short one-act plays, making taffy or telling stories connected with the traditions of the day."

There are seven dreams.

It has been said that three great problems confronted the mind of primitive man: the differences between living and lifeless matter; the fate of the individual human soul after death; and the nature of the figures that were most frequently seen in dreams.

It may be said that, in a certain sense, these three problems still remain unsolved; for, although science has done much towards their solution the primary questions still remain, in their broadest sense.

When we come to think of it it is very remarkable that most of us consider our dreams so little. We spend approximately one-third of our lives in sleep, and it is almost certain that there is no such thing as dreamless sleep! We all dream all the time, only we do not remember our dreams. Therein lies the difference.

But many dreams are remembered—and a hopeless jumble many of them are, you will say! Certainly, they appear to be so; but it is very doubtful if this is the case, as usual. We now know that we remember only a small fraction of our dream—what is called the "main content," and that below this is a vast mass of dream material never normally recalled, known as the "latent content." If we could remember this we should see that most of our dreams are systematic, coherent, and frequently represent some wish or desire. All this has been shown by psychoanalysis and other methods.

It may be pointed out that practically every one of us has had, at one time or another, seven common dreams, which are said to have been dreamed at one time or another by nearly everybody in the world.

These are:

1. The falling dream.
2. The flying dream.
3. The dream of inadequate clothing.
4. The dream of not being able to get away from some beast that is pursuing.
5. The dream that some darling wish had been gratified.
6. The dream of being about to go on a journey and being unable to get your things into your trunk, etc.
7. Hereward Carrington, in Leslie's.

Bread crumbs toasted may be served as breakfast food and will be found a pleasant change from the usual dried foods.

FARM AND HOME NEWS

(From Over Kentucky.)

Callaway county farmers will give special attention to cover crops this fall, according to a report of County Agent L. E. Ashburn. Community meetings which are being held to acquaint farmers with the value of these crops in protecting fields during the winter have been well attended, the report states.

An aspiration is a joy forever. To have many of these is to be spiritually rich.

A GROUP OF GOOD CAKES.

A cake which is easy to make if one has a good strong arm to give it the beating it needs is Wearly Willie.—No Wearly Willie would have the name, and deserve it, who had ever made this cake. Take one cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a speck of salt, sift three times to blend well. Into a measuring cup drop the whites of two eggs, fill the cup to half measure with softened butter, not melted; then fill to the top with milk and water or just water. Pour the mixture from the cup, adding flavoring; mix well, then beat with a strong spoon or egg beater for seven minutes by the clock. If Willie doesn't get too weary keep it for ten minutes and the cake will have the most beautiful texture and grain. Bake in layers, color one and leave one white. Use color selected for layer in the icing which may be used for the filling.

Every Day Cake.—Beat four table-spoonfuls of butter to a cream, add one-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of chopped raisins, two eggs yokes beaten light, one-fourth cupful each of maple and corn syrup, one-half cupful of milk; add one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt and the same of mace, all sifted together. Lastly add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and turn into a shallow pan. Sprinkle with chopped nuts or raisins, and dredge with one teaspoonful of sugar. Bake one hour or longer, depending upon the depth of the mixture in the pan.

Fig Cake.—Take two cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, mix two table-spoonfuls of shortening with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, a little salt and nutmeg; stir in two well-beaten eggs and the bread crumbs. Sift four teaspoonfuls of baking powder with one cupful of flour; add one-fourth pound of figs and beat well. Turn into a loaf-shaped pan or one with a cone and bake thirty to forty minutes.

Bread crumbs toasted may be served as breakfast food and will be found a pleasant change from the usual dried foods.

Polish Melodies.

The Poles have remained singularly free from eastern influence. Their melodic invention is sometimes rather limited, but their tunes are always wonderfully embellished, and they often make use of difficult intervals which would seem to be more suitable for an instrument than for the voice. The effect of these songs is sad but full of interest and in hearing them it is easy to realize that Chopin was a thoroughly "national" composer.

Kiss Has Been Important.

The kiss has always played a rather important part in events of the world, from the kiss of Judas, betraying Christ, to the kiss of a French general on the blushing cheek of an American doughboy as he pinned a decoration on the khaki blouse. In the folklore of every country it is a prominent theme—it waked princesses who had slept for a hundred years in enchanted palaces, or transformed hideous beasts into gallant princes.

The kiss has always played a rather important part in events of the world, from the kiss of Judas, betraying Christ, to the kiss of a French general on the blushing cheek of an American doughboy as he pinned a decoration on the khaki blouse. In the folklore of every country it is a prominent theme—it waked princesses who had slept for a hundred years in enchanted palaces, or transformed hideous beasts into gallant princes.

At least the speeding motorists should slow down enough so you could see 'em go by.

Some of the girls should be interested in housework by giving them a fascinating kitchen dress.

The disarmament movement should extend to the schools by raising the desks of the boys for spitalitis.

The fisherman in need of a sinker might take the German mark, as it has shown a splendid ability to go down.

Some of the people who are hollering about taxes are also shouting to have the biggest navy in the world.

It is denied that there is nothing going on in Russia under the soviet government, as they have buried a lot of people.

It is denied that the motorists pay no attention to the speed law, as a lot of them spend much time laughing at them.

The successful pooling of the tobacco production for five years will put more pep into the growers and preparation will be made to do more real farming next season than for many years. Work stock will be in demand.

The heavy rains of last Wednesday and Thursday caused considerable damage to the highways and fields—both being badly washed. The heavy down pour caused the water in the creeks to get out of their banks, doing some damage to the low land along these streams.

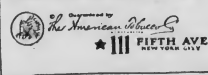

Frequently you find a man who can't stop telling it when he does something clever or worth while until he becomes exhausted. As if his friends and associates didn't know all about the smart achievement and admire him for it. And the worst of it is that his repeated talk presently chills the mind admiration to the bone, and drives it to cover.

We, with a million of others, are watching with a good deal of anxiety the disarmament conference at Washington. We, with millions of others, are hoping for some sort of an agreement to be reached, which will permit our country and all other countries to cease building battle-ships which cost millions of dollars. We are hoping that the immense sums now being spent for these monster sea dogs may be diverted to something which will prove of far greater benefit to mankind. But with millions of others we are skeptical and doubt if such a thing will be accomplished. We saw this country refuse to become members of a League of Nations, which in our judgment would have accomplished much more because a lot of little men in Washington could not resist a temptation to play politics. Since that time we have doubted if anything good could really come out of a disarmament conference, but we are watching with hope in our heart for such a movement to succeed.—Grant County News.

THE OTHER FELLOW.

Is the fellow who's job you would like to have, he is the fellow that you think is lucky, the fellow that shouldn't worry, the fellow that should be perfectly satisfied the fellow that has had all of the opportunities and the fellow that has made a success. Or he is the fellow that is foolish that is always unlucky, the fellow that has never had a chance and the fellow that made a failure. Such is life and such is human nature in summing up and taking stock of our achievements and failures in this life. If we could quit living the life of the other fellow and get down to living our own, our story would be different. No matter how much we envy the other fellow in his position in life, the job he holds or the luck he has, he is in the same boat, to him the other fellow has the easy job. Let's satisfy ourselves with the duties we perform, to the extent of an efficient performance of same.

Dear Sir:

I am now here at Purdue University and expect to stay for quite a while, so I must have the Recorder each week to keep in touch with old Boone while I am away. I am enclosing check for $1.50 which I believe is the subscription price for one year, and I would like for you to send me back copies to include Nov. 9th, if you can.

This is a good town, and has a fine college, and especially in Agriculture courses, as it ranks as one of the very best Agricultural colleges in the United States.

This week I attended "The Little International" live stock show at Purdue, which included all of the finest stock of all kinds owned by the University, and of which there will be a number taken to the International Show at Chicago, in a few days, and with which we expect to bring back several hogs.

An apple show was also held here this week, with entries from all parts of the U. S. including eleven universities. Some apples, however, are.

Last Monday night I had the privilege of going over to the wireless station with an operator and while there, heard grand opera singing and music from Pittsburgh, Pa., by wire, which was very distinct most of the time. VACCINATING FALL PIGS ISPROTECTION FROM CHOLERA

Hog cholera, a disease to be guarded against at all times, has increased in seriousness with the arrival of the fall crop of pigs and is demanding special attention from farmers of the State, according to animal husbandry specialists at the College of Agriculture. Vaccination with anti-hog cholera serum and hog cholera virus coupled with sanitation about the farm is the only means of preventing and controlling the disease which is considered the most serious obstacle to the swine raising industry.

The best time to vaccinate is when they are from eight to sixteen weeks old or about ten days after weaning at which time they should be given both the serum and the virus, these two comprising the double method of treatment. Infectious diseases make it necessary to vaccinate the pigs with either the double or single treatment when they are from two to four weeks old. When this is done best results are obtained by re-vaccinating them with the double treatment six to seven weeks later. Suckling pigs, even from immune sows, if placed on badly infected grounds frequently will contract the disease, the specialists say. They have suggested that animals which are exposed in any way the disease be treated as soon as possible.

BOONE NO LAGGARD.

Boone county growers have signed up considerably more than 75 per cent. of their tobacco to the co-operative marketing plan. We were always pretty sure that Boone county growers would not be laggards in this movement. If the best minds in the country among whom are numbered both growers and business men, are willing to take a chance, and if the bankers are willing to finance it as they claim, there does not seem much doubt of its ultimate success. However, we advise growers not to expect too much right at the start. It is going to take some little time to get the organization in good running order and going smoothly, but it will be worth all of the trouble and inconvenience involved if it succeeds.

Anyway, the grower does not seem to have very much to lose and much to gain.

Many Graves county fields will be well protected from leaching and erosion during the coming winter as a result of the increased acreage of cover crops, which has been sown, according to a report of County Agent B. H. Mitchell. More than 800 bushels of Rousee rye have been distributed to be used for cover crops and this together with a normal acreage of wheat and a 200 per cent increase in the acreage of sweet clover, which will be sown is expected to result in more protection to fields of the county than has ever been before.

This office has printed quite a few cards talk the past month.

Home Town HelpsCITY HAS ITS DISADVANTAGES

No "Neighbors" There, as There Are in the Smaller Towns of the Country.

A big town offers advantages. There are unusual facilities for spending money, impressive buildings to suggest man's importance and show houses where one may be entertained, at a price, by experts in the entertaining business. There are smooth streets to encourage the consumption of gasoline and smooth promoters to encourage the cutting of eye teeth. There are pedestrians wearing the latest styles and news-squips chuckling over the latest scandals.

But there are no neighbors. In a city a good neighborhood is a part of a town inhabited by people who have plenty of spending money. In a small town a good neighborhood is one inhabited by people who make good neighbors.

A good neighbor is one who bids you good morning, calls to ask what he can do when you are sick, borrows your garden tools, keeps his chickens and children at home, never plays his phonograph after ten o'clock at night and takes a mild interest in all of your affairs. He calls you Tom, if you happen to be a Tom, and feels free to enter your house by the kitchen door if that is the more convenient way. Are there any such in great cities?

When the wife bakes and has unusually good luck the best loaf goes to the neighbor. It expresses friendship and her commendable pride in good craftsmanship. After a few days the loaf returns in the form of a cherry pie, hot from the oven, or a bowl of dumplings cooked in the home-made blackberry wine left from the holling of a ham. If one of the children cuts a finger the neighbor has tolline. He offers it freely, for tomorrow night he may forget to bring home a can of tobacco.

Small-town people are one big family. If their mode of life makes secrets impossible, it also lessens the number of things that should be kept secret; and their interest in one another—an interest that might be very annoying to a big-town man—is inspired by kindness rather than curiosity.

The man who asked "Who is my neighbor?" was not a small-town man, else he would have known.—Robert Quillen in the Saturday Evening Post.

MAKE WAR ON THE ANTS

Destructive Little Creatures May Be Routied by Hot Water or Kerosene Emulsion.

Ants are quite troublesome in some localities. They almost destroy large areas of otherwise healthy grass. There are two methods of routing this enemy. One is to locate each hill and pour boiling water over it, or kerosene emulsion where the hot water is not to injure the plants. Residue of carbon can be used, but it is more expensive than the other remedies. This insecticide has the advantage of being more penetrating and follows the intricacies of the tunnels of the hills therefore destroying all the inhabitants.

Remove Seed Pods.

It seems unnecessary to suggest that each day you remove all dead leaves and flowers, but some fond gardeners do neglect this phase of the work. You know if you don't do this two things are sure to happen: First your garden appears untidy, and second your flowers develop seed pods, and this means the enemies of the plant are all devoted to maturing seeds and not to sending forth new growth, and hence you have fewer and fewer and finally no flowers.—Exchange.

Urges Parks for the People.

Recreation has an important place in the new movement to enlarge the system of federal and state forest reservations and parks and to acquire woodland parks for municipalities, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington, D. C. While the occasion for such reservations is frequently the protection of watersheds, timber production, or other public benefits, all of the areas afford opportunities for outdoor recreation. Equally true it is that recreation has an important place in the demand for a large program of road improvement and extension.

The Small Town Rules.

The small town rules America because, instead of being a place of hotels, restaurants and amusements, it is a place for normal living—where men walk home to lunch from their offices and have their own front lawns and weed the back yard garden and bid their neighbors across either fence the true of day; where they not only live in today, but remember yesterday and plan for tomorrow; where families and communities retain, cherish and transmit traditions. There hails the heart of America.—Gladys Bee.

HOME-GROWN SPUD SEED IS EQUAL TO IMPORTED STOCK

Jefferson, Ky.—By using the proper soil in the selection and handling of seed stock potato growers in Jefferson county as well as in other sections of Kentucky can grow seed for export or at least maintain their stock at a standard as high as that maintained by growers in northern states, according to the conclusions reached by members of the Jefferson County Certified Seed Potato Growers' Association who cooperated with the extension division of the College of Agriculture in conducting comparative tests with high-clad home-grown and Minnesota-grown seed. Results of the first year's demonstrations were discussed at a recent meeting of the association and while direct comparison between the two types of seed was not possible in all cases because of the slight difference in planting time and soil, sufficient evidence was obtained to show those who cooperated the possibilities of high class seed from their own county.

In 16 cases where fair comparisons could be made, three men reported a slight superiority of Jefferson county-grown seed over the imported stock, eight men could report no difference and five men reported a slight advantage of the Northern-grown seed over that grown at home. Following a discussion of the results members of the association concluded that the use of high class, home-grown seed would be equally as good as the use of imported seed provided proper attention was given to the care and selection of seed stock.

Members of the association consider the first year's work which they have carried on to be highly successful and by next year they hope to increase their stock to the point where they can enter the market of furnishing certified seed potatoes. This year they have been compelled to refuse orders for three carloads of certified seed because of their limited stock.

NEW VACCINE CONTROLS ROUP AND POX OF FOWLS

Successful vaccinations made during the past year by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station on thousands of chickens for the control of roup and chicken pox indicate that these two diseases which are among the most serious ones affecting poultry may be controlled by this method, according to A. J. Steiner, a member of the veterinary science department of the station. The new control has increased the importance with an increase in these two diseases in the State during the present fall as indicated by the numerous inquiries and reports received at the station. Isolation of the infected birds coupled with sanitation was found helpful in controlling the disease in the vaccinated by the station veterinarians. Roup is a disease of the head and is usually characterized by accumulations of watery fluid in the nostrils and eyes of the bird, this fluid later becoming hark and cheese-like. Its accumulation causes enlargement and deformity of the parts affected. Chicken pox is characterized by tumor-like lesions which appear on the comb, wattles, angles of the beak and face, the eyes and occasionally on the skin. Colds and influenza are two other names by which roup sometimes is known.

It has been demonstrated that chicken pox is caused by a filterable virus but there is still some work to be done before it can be determined definitely whether or not roup is caused by the same thing, according to Mr. Steiner. The fact that both diseases are usually found combined has led investigators to believe that they may be caused by the same thing, roup seems to be most prevalent in Kentucky and is accompanied by a certain percentage of pox. Belief of investigators that the two diseases originate from the same cause is strengthened by the fact that vaccines made from roup lesions seem to control both roup and pox while vaccines made from abscesses of pox control both pox and roup. Different methods of making the vaccine are practiced in different states. Kentucky using a combination of the roup lesions and the pox abscesses in preparing the vaccine.

STATE NEWS.

The late potato crop has saved the day and will put them in reach of all this winter at fair prices.

The year's crop of Burley tobacco is one hundred million pounds short with quality 84 per cent.

It comes from headquarters that the State will use no more convict labor upon the roads. The road building this year, by them seem, to have been a failure at a terrible expense.

The tobacco crop in Kentucky is reported to Commissioner W. C. Hanna to be 32 per cent below crop of 1920 and shows a decrease below the ten-year average of 538 pounds per acre. The yield for 1921 is 850 pounds per acre with decreased acreage under 1920. Quality is 83.1 against 80 per cent, last year. The first potato crop is 38 per cent under 1920.

If the politicians lose an election, they declare it was due to overconfidence, but if they win, it was a spontaneous uprising of the people.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

If the country had elected a Democratic Congress and president in 1912, certain things would have gone differently.

There would not have been the pasting record of inaction that has characterized the present Congress. If anyone had said last April that our national legislators met, that they would have achieved nothing of first class importance by the succeeding November, he would have been laughed to scorn. All our Republican wise men would have haw-hawed, and said "Just you wait and see." Yet the months have dragged along and the tariff and taxation and other questions which were to be settled during the extra session, still remain in the air.

The Democratic Congresses during the first six years under President Wilson, showed a remarkable ability to get together and shape programs of legislation, that has been mostly absent this year.

A Democratic administration would have had the taxation question out of the way by this time. It would have made such minor changes in the tariff as conditions warranted, without passing the entire business of the country by the throat of a naval review. There is no reason why wholesale changes in the tariff as long as parties remain on their present quite moderate level, should attempt to give all these rates of duty throws a pall of uncertainty over the plans of business men.

A Democratic administration would have saved the federal government from the all-out effort to get the country into a hole. It would have entered the league of nations with desirable reservations and would have given this country the will of Europe instead of incurring its contempt as a quitter. Action along these lines would send the current of life throbbing through our business world.

PROFIT FOR FARMERS IN HOME BUTCHERING

Under present conditions the home butchering and curing of meats should be highly profitable to Kentucky farmers provided proper attention is given to the many important details connected with these processes, according to E. M. Wilford, a member of the animal husbandry staff of the College of Agriculture. High freight rates combined with numerous handling charges make backing house products unreasonably expensive when the price of these meats is compared with the price which farmers receive for animals on foot. Mr. Wilford said. Home killing and curing of meats during what is usually a slack season on the farm will make it possible for farmers to take advantage of the profits enjoyed by mail-order men and at the same time obtain a product which should be superior for home use to that from packing houses. In Kentucky butchering can be done any time after Thanksgiving, a temperature of 36 to 58 degrees being cool enough to cool the meat properly.

Health, condition, quality, age and weight are the important things to be taken into the animal which is to be butchered on the farm. Care should be taken to see that the animal which is slaughtered is healthy since there is danger of transmitting disease from the animal to the person who eats the meat. Signs of tuberculosis and cholera as well as indications of fever or other abnormalities should be watched for carefully.

Animals in high condition that are not losing flesh at the time they are slaughtered usually produce the best meats. Animals which are gaining weight rapidly at the time they are killed usually yield the best quality of meat. On the other hand, extreme condition increases the yield and decreases the quality of bacon. High-grade or purebred animals will usually yield the best quality of meat but the hog covered smoothly with deep flesh will produce well-marbled meat.

Age is closely associated with quality, hogs between the ages of six and eight months giving the most satisfactory results. Extremely young animals furnish meat which is watery and lacking in flavor while aged animals yield meat of more flavor but often dry and tough. Hogs weighing 180 to 250 pounds are to be preferred to the heavier ones. These weighing between 140 and 180 pounds are of a handy weight and usually have sides capable of producing prime bacon with proper cutting and curing methods.

It goes without saying that a progressive city should have good schools, parks, playgrounds, libraries, public library, good water, lighting, sewage, well paved streets and walks. Taxation rates always seem heavy, and many communities find themselves poorly equipped in one or more of these lines, as compared with rival communities having about the same population and wealth.

It is a great temptation to lie down and decide that owing to the heavy burdens, it is best to drift along with some meager luck. Yet it should be possible for any city to do as much as others having equal ability.

Observing the leaves blowing off his lot, the negligent householder is pleased to note that old Mr. Wind is taking up his leave for him.

LEGION NOTES

One grand assault on the magnificent digestion was expected during the visit to that great America. Tres bien, and one had been in the training for the glorious eatings. But, pour l'amour de Mike, it is les chevaux of other colors to train for the unexpected company of a wild bob-cat, is it not that little?

Consequently the undomesticated kitten presented Marshal Foch by Montana members of the American Legion now bays the moon in a cage at the Bronx Zoo, New York, and Le Maréchal sleeps of nights. The yestermorning baby, brought 1500 miles by airplane by Montana Legionnaires and given the marshal at Kansas City, rapidly changed into a white elephant. The Foch party carried it in a strong box from the West and through several Eastern cities, newspaper men of the special train standing guard. But when the Foch special stopped in New York for an hour enroute to Princeton University and while the allied generalissimo, mascot was quietly transferred onto a truck and hurried through the early morning hours to the zoo-logical gardens. The spirit of the Montana Legionnaires and their hobnob was highly appreciated, but "Viva!" as the French said it.

Disincent of the business of American soldiers buried in Brest, France, during the war, has been completed, according to word received by the American Legion. Army authorities have forwarded to the four permanent American cemeteries in France 1,080 bodies, removal of which to the U. S. was not requested by relatives.

When the Y. M. C. A. in Somerville, Mass., burned down, American men rescued 21 lodgers, clothed all of them and turned the Legion club-rooms into the temporary Y. M. C. A. of the city.

More than a million members of the American Legion have pledged themselves to assist in the American Education Week campaign, December 4-10, under the auspices of the Legion and the National Educational Association composed of schools and college teachers. The purpose of the campaign is to inform the public of the accomplishments and needs of the public schools and to secure support and cooperation of the public in meeting these needs.

Louis W. Harrington, railroad magnate, was unanimously elected mayor of "Slippery Gulch, the wickedest city," for one week at St. Paul, Minnesota, under the auspices of the American Legion. Governor Praus of Minnesota assumed the role of a bad man known as "Mexican Pete" and Lieut. Governor Collins was his rival in the character of "Alkali Ike."

An effort to prohibit the holding of dances in the public school at Katonah, N. Y., was defeated by the American Legion and the Village Improvement Society of that place.

A bronze tablet has been erected at Brooklyn, Mass., to the memory of Albert E. Scott, a former newsboy known as "Scotty" who was killed behind his machine gun in France. He is believed to have been the youngest American soldier killed in the World War. The American Legion participated in the unveiling ceremony.

STOPPING GULLIES PREVENTS FURTHER EROSION OF FIELDS. Fall and winter rains which soon will start gullies in many fields on Kentucky farms make it necessary for farmers to take immediate steps to stop the erosion if they wish to prevent further damage to their land, soils and crops specialists say. At the present time there are approximately 2,500,000 acres of eroded land in the State, an acreage that should be decreased rather than increased if farms of the State are to continue to produce big yields of crops. Few valuable plants or crops will thrive on gullied fields, say specialists say.

Since the season for the seeding of cover crops is past for the year it will be necessary for farmers to take other means to stop the gullies in their fields, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialists at the College of Agriculture. Small gullies may be filled with brush, straw, briars, weeds, waste fodder or any other coarse material available. Cedar brush with the tops placed up the slopes to catch the washed soil make good breaks for filling gullies. Larger gullies and ditches should have more substantial breaks especially where damage is apt to be heavy. Piles of stones at intervals serve satisfactorily for this purpose. In extreme cases it is advisable to put in concrete work to stop soil washing.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The weather of last week was something unusual at this season of the year.

If you wish to "Keep Up with Lizzie" don't fail to go to Petersburg, next Saturday night.

Tanlac is appetizing and invigorating. Try it today. For sale by W.
L. Kirkpatrick Burlington.

Gra L. Ogden, from out on R. D.
3, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Saturday. He made the printers a pleasant call.

As many people have been unable to secure office under either of the old parties, the move for a third party should secure large support.

Ernest I. Conrad will have a sale of personal property on Thursday, December 1st. See ad in another column.

During the services at the Methodist church, last Sunday night, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Tomlin, Hubert T. Gaines united with the church.

Ben Hewett and wife and their son and wife, of Cleves, O., were the guests of his brother, Geo. Hewett and wife, at the Boone Hotel, last Sunday.

Now is the time to do your fall plowing. Farmers who do their plowing this fall will be ahead of the game when the usual wet weather of March and April comes.

Herman Buckler will have a public sale of personal property at the John Poston farm near Limburg, Tuesday, Nov. 29th. See list of property in another column.

Wild geese were southward bound last week and a big thunder storm prevailed, both forerunners of cold weather, and if we don't have it it's not the fault of the geese nor the thunder.

A marriage license was issued last Saturday at the County Clerk's office to Naomi Wagner, 21, 1305 6th Street, Dayton, and Edgar G. Jackson, 30, of East McKicken Street,
Cincinnati.

Times are improving, as some of the mills have started and are running overtime. A perusal of the daily papers show the divorce mills in the large cities are way behind with their orders.

Ben Furnish Johnson, of the U. S.
Navy, son of Col. W. B. Johnson and wife, of Walton, is at the home of his parents in Walton enjoying a fifteen day furlough. He is assigned to the Delaware.

John McCool and Chas. Pepper, two of our good friends out on R.
D. No. 1, made us a pleasant call one day last week, and had their subscription to the Recorder moved up another notch.

Two teaspoonful of Tanlac in a little water taken three times a day just before meals will make you eat better, feel better, sleep better and work better. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick Burlington.

There are too many of us who are always saying "I ought to do that."
Don't get into that habit; it's too risky. You may easily become a failure through it. The real man says:
"I shall do this" or "I shall do that."

Miss LaRue Davis, of Chattanooga,
Tenn., only weighed 76 pounds.
After taking three bottles of Tanlac, she now weighs over 100 pounds and is enjoying the best of health.
For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Edwin Gaines, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Perry Cropper, of Louisville, after a few days visit with relatives and friends in this part of the county, returned to their homes, last Thursday. They spent a couple of days in the fields hunting.

In some sections of the county men are hunting on Sunday. Cut it out, boys, before the law takes an iron grip on your right leg. Six days in the week you are permitted to hunt, but you should place the old "splash" in cold storage on Sunday.

Don Dickmeyer and son, of Cleves,
Ohio, were guests at the Boone Hotel, last Sunday. Mr. Dickmeyer when a boy lived with Mr. Dickmeyer in the Boone home owned and occupied by Mrs. M. Penn and family. He met several of his friends of boyhood days.

RED CROSS GIVES ANNUAL BUDGET

$19,361,657 Allotted for Current Program of Relief and Service.

MILLIONS FOR VETERAN AID

Medical Aid for European Children Will Cost $6,000,- 000 This Year.

Washington.—Expenditures totalling $19,361,657 for carrying through its program of relief and services in the United States and overseas are outlined in the budget of the American Red Cross for the current fiscal year.
This total is more than $5,000,000 lower than the expenditure during the last fiscal year, when the disbursements reached $24,362,741. It is announced at National Headquarters in a statement calling attention to the necessity of continued support of the organization by response to the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24, if the vital work of the society is to be effectively carried on.

Outstanding among the items of the domestic budget is the appropriation of $3,000,000 for work in behalf of the disabled ex-service men and their families. This appropriation represents the amount allotted to this work from National Headquarters only and does not take into consideration the millions being spent in chapters for relief of the World War veteran. It is in the chapter that the greatest amount is spent in meeting this obligation of the Red Cross, the announcement continues, as manifested by figures of the fiscal year 1920-1921 when the total was approximately $6,000,- 000, of which $2,892,694 represented the disbursement of National Headquarters while the remainder was the chapters' contribution to this field of Red Cross service.

Work for Disabled
Chief among the sub-divisions of the appropriation for work with veterans is that which concerns itself with assistance to disabled men and women in government hospitals. This item of $1,700,000, an increase of more than $240,000 over the appropriation for the same work in last year's budget, will provide these personal services for the disabled and their families which are indispensable to supplement those provided by the government.
The director of the Veterans' Bureau has recently expressed his desire that the Red Cross should continue and extend these "humanizing services."
Other items of the appropriation for veterans' relief are proportionately increased. An additional appropriation of $180,000 has been made for Red Cross work in connection with regular Army and Navy hospitals and with the regular Army and Navy.

For disaster relief, the Red Cross has set aside for the current twelve months an appropriation of $543,350, virtually doubling the appropriation for the same purpose for the fiscal year 1920-1921.

More than $2,000,000 is provided for service and assistance to the 3,979 Red Cross chapters by the national organization.

Helping Destitute Children
Other items of the domestic budget include $498,546 for miscellaneous activities, including contributions restricted for special purposes and $708, 000 for management. Each of these items represents large reductions over similar appropriations of the previous year.

From a fund of $10,000,000, $5,000, 000 of which was contributed through the European Relief Council campaign and $6,000,000 allotted by the Red Cross for child welfare work in Europe, there remains $8,765,108 still available, of which it is estimated that $10,000,000 will be required for this work during the current year.
For Red Cross participation in the joint effort to relieve famine conditions in Russia, for final work in the China famine, for Junior Red Cross and other overseas activities including the closing of the old general relief program in Europe $4,978,000 is made available.

In announcing the national budget, the Red Cross makes it clear that the figures do not include chapter expenditures or place any cash estimate on the invaluable service of volunteers in chapters.

"ERMINIE"

Coming to Grand Opera House, Week of Nov. 25th.

"Erminie" perhaps the best known in America of all comic opera, is coming to the Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, for a week's visit, beginning Monday evening, November 25th. For the past month this attraction has been playing at the Illinois Theatre, Chicago, to unusually successful business.

George C. Tyler, producer of such important attractions as "The Garden of Allah," "The Daughter of Heaven," etc., and William Farnham, latterly of International "novel" fame, are the managers and producers of the present reproduction of "Erminie." These managers have provided a well-kept perfect organization for the presentation of this famous work. Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper, two of the best known comedians in the world of comic opera, are the joint stars. Wilson plays the part of Cadieux, the engaging, cunning comely chief, (which part he created 34 years ago), and Hopper that of Eugene, the suave, suave, and Cadieux's partner in crime. Prominent in the support of the stars are Jennie Weatherly, Alexander Clark, Madge Lessing, Lillian Glaser, Rosamond Whitehead, Sudwathi Frazier, Primrose Caryll, Angela Ward, etc. The entire company numbers sixty, and it has been receiving great praise for its extraordinary ability to sing.

The scenery and costumes of "Erminie" were designed by Norman-Bell Geddes, of Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, and of the Chicago Opera Company, and are said to be attractive in the extreme.

It has been 34 years since "Erminie" was first produced at the Casino Theatre, New York, and during all of the intervening period the entrancing melodies of Jablonski and the irresistible comedy of Paulton retain their fascinating powers.

Last season the present attraction was seen only in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington. Matinees of "Erminie" will be played at the Grand Opera House Wednesday and Saturday.

PENDLETON COUNTY

(Falmouth Outlook.)

The daymen of Pendleton county are watching with interest the successful organization of the tobacco growers. The daymen are about worn out with accepting eight cents per gallon for their milk when it is retailing at 60 cents in the city. The take-off between the producer and consumer is 52 cents per gallon. If this condition does not force the daymen to organize we will be prone to believe that Mr. Hayseed is minus a thinking pan.

Hunters had better be very careful and not kill the several different kinds of pheasants. During the past three years they have multiplied rapidly, but it is unlawful to shoot them until 1924. Farmers are keeping a close watch on these birds and will report any infringement on the law. It is also commendable that many of our farmers will not permit hunters to kill their quail under any circumstances.

The practice of illegal voting continues to increase in Pendleton county. So far, no bad results have resulted from this source, but some of these days it will happen that some race in the county will be close enough for a contest, and then these illegal voters will be thrown into the limelight, and prosecutions will follow. We would not blame any candidate defeated by illegal voters for prosecuting them to the fullest extent. The law is plain, and the penalty is severe. The great majority of these voters, however, they are wrong, but take the chance believing that there will be nothing done after the election. Some voters will even take an oath that they are legal voters.

Pendleton county has gone over the top in the campaign for the co-operative plan of pooling tobacco. We are glad to say that our tobacco growers believe in the State motto: "United we stand; divided we fall." At least 95 per cent of our tobacco is now in the pool. Pendleton county in the past has been one of the large tobacco producing counties, and one of the first counties in the State to engage in the cultivation of the weed some sixty-five years ago. During the past ten years our farmers have taken up dairying and other intensive farming, and the tobacco raising industry is now occupying almost second place. The cause of this situation has been the prevailing low price of tobacco and the depletion of our soil in the production of the weed. Under the new pooling plan the industry will be stimulated and farmers should get a uniform price. This will place the growing of tobacco back on a firm basis. As it is now, a grower has not the slightest idea whether he will receive two cents per pound or twenty cents. The farmers are now organized and can curtail the crop according to the appetite of the tobacco trust. There is not a farmer who would not rather raise one acre of tobacco at 25 cents per pound than two acres at 12½ cents per pound. The contract is the emancipation proclamation of the tobacco growers.

GUNPOWDER

Mrs. Minta Utz was shopping in the city, last Saturday.

P. J. Allen and wife were guests of this writer last Sunday.

Considerable rain fell here last week and the tobacco growers took advantage of it and there was considerable of the weed stripped.

I had occasion to spend a few hours in Walton recently, and called on Everett Aylor and found him a busy man in his grocery and meat store.

A fairly good crowd was present at Mr. Arrowood's sale last Saturday, and good prices prevailed. Horses sold for $10 to $85, cows from $30 to $36, and corn from 61 to 66 cents per bushel.

W. P. Beemon had a narrow escape from a serious accident last Saturday, his horse fell on one of his limbs, but the ground being soft he was not hurt, but was pretty badly plastered with mud.

Mr. Cam Kennedys sale was attended by a large crowd and everything sold for satisfactory prices. Horses sold from $12.50 to $100, cows from $39 to $100, corn 61 to 63 cents per bushel, the auto sold for $130.

A wind storm which passed over our ridge on Thursday night of last week, blew a portion of the roof of Newton Marksberrys barn off and a tree down in his yard, and did considerable damage to fodder in some of the fields.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers" from the immortal story by Alexander Dumas, is in its second 12½ week now at Ascher's Capitol Theatre. Many plays and stories have been reproduced on the screen, but never before in the history of the silent drama has such fidelity been used in the reproduction as has in this case. Think of the man who saw it last week, and found it to be the masterpiece of the cinema world. The press was unstinted in its reviews declaring it to be a great picture played by a great actor and a great cast. You might have searched the world over and not found a better man suited to play the part of the Duke of Anjou than Douglas Fairbanks. Is the way over previous pictures. Truly a great picture worth while, going to see for interpreted the Capital way it is doubly charming.

Cits.

"Over The Hill" seems to retain its popularity at the Cits for it is now in its fifth week at this house and still playing to capacity houses. Its success is largely due to the theme of the story which has its mother as its principal character. Stories of this nature are deserving of patronage, for they bring back all that is dear in all of us. The climax provided in "Over The Hill" is very thrilling.

AT THE LEGITIMATE HOUSES.Grand.

It has been more than two years since Mrs. Fiske has visited Cincinnati, and there is one reason why her engagement this week at the Grand Opera House where she is appearing in "Wake Up Jonathan" is meeting with such great success. The other is her wonderful little comedy, "Wake Up Jonathan" and was written by Hat. Roy Hughes and Elmer L. Rice and enjoyed a wonderful season in New York. It is a story of an American home where business is conducted in a strictly coordination with the higher ideals in life.

Shubert.

Musical comedies and Broadway reviews seem to be the attractions desired at the Shubert Theatre in consequence of which the management is offering this week the latest Winter Garden production, "The Whirl of New York." The show is a huge musical comedy with a plot running through the entire affair, which is in two acts and seven scenes. There are eleven songs in the production, who sing and dance in a pleasing way while among the principals may be found: Dorothy Ward, J. Harold Murray, Nancy Gibbs, Kyra, Roy Cummings and a score of others.

George B. Cox.

The Cox Theatre is having its premier opening this week, and for its first attraction it is entertaining "The Masquerade" with Guy Bates Post. "The Masquerade" is one of the outstanding artistic successes of recent years. Although it has played locally on two previous occasions it still seems to sustain its popularity, evidenced from the fact of the crowds that are attending this newest of Cincinnati's theatres this week.

VAUDVILLE.B. F. KEITH'S.

Quite a diversified program is being offered at this playhouse this week. As a headliner Edith Talferro is appearing in a romantic playlet entitled "Under the Same Old Moon." Then comes Bert Errol in some clever impersonations of stage celebrities. Walter Kelly, familiarly known as "The Virginia Judge" is very entertaining with his negro dialect stories; Arthur Sibley and Eva North; Billy Sharkey, Eddie Roth and Fred Wirt; and Hazel Pierce and Fred Giff make up the rest of the program.

Persons at Summer Resorts Buy Produce in Winter.

City People Have Inspected Producer's Farms and Know Under What Conditions Foodstuffs Are Raised —One Case Cited.

Many producers living near summer resorts supply produce in the summer months to the persons at the resorts, and during the other months of the year ship produce to these persons while they are in the city. This, say marketing specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is one of the best methods of obtaining customers for direct marketing, as the producer and consumer have some acquaintance. In most instances the customers have been at the producer's farm and know under what conditions the articles are produced.

One man who lives near a summer resort in Indiana is about twelve miles from the nearest town of any size. He does not desire to drive to this town to dispose of his farm produce and is not satisfied with the prices that the truck stores pay. Consequently he built up a business of supplying products to resorters in the summer and of shipping produce by parcel post and express to these persons at their city homes in the winter.

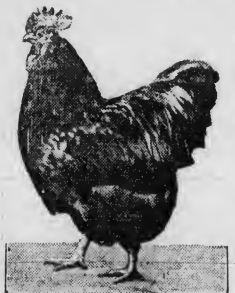

The principal products shipped are butter, eggs and dressed poultry. This producer uses good shipping containers and packs produce attractively. As he is acquainted with his customers, he renders statements of accounts only once a month. In this way the matter of making payments is simplified for the customers.

This producer has had no trouble in establishing his business nor in retaining customers. He states that his only trouble has been in getting enough high-grade produce to supply all of his customers.

BARBITUM POISONOUS TO RATS

Tests Indicate That a 20 Per Cent Mixture With Food Makes Most Satisfactory Bait.

A study of barbitum carbonate as a rat poison, made by the United States Department of Agriculture, indicates that a 20 per cent mixture with food makes a satisfactory bait. With this percentage a rat ordinarily needs to eat only one-third or three-eighths of a meal of average size to get a fatal dose. It was found that with this dose many of the rats poisoned died within 24 hours; though an occasional rat was found which survived an even larger amount, thus indicating that 100 per cent mortality is not to be expected in any case.

A summary of results of experiments conducted by various persons with a view to determining the dose of barbitum to different animals shows the fallacy of the assumption that barbitum is poisonous only to rats. It is pointed out that the fatal dose of barbitum per pound tends to decrease relatively as the size of the animal increases, and that a bait calculated to be fatal to rats may be assumed to be more or less dangerous to small domestic animals also.

SUCCULENT FEED FOR FOWLS

Now That Good Qualities of Forages Are Well Known Hens Should Be Given Ample Supply.

Everyone knows that a hen lays best when she gets the succulent grasses that first shoot out of the earth in spring. Most successful fooders use in their flocks a large quantity of heavy, nonfattening, yet nutritious food. For a long time the best feeders of the country used wheat bran for this purpose, but now that the good qualities of forages are well known the bill of fare should be changed to suit.

550 DISASTER DEATH TOLL FOR ONE YEAR

Red Cross Gives $1,871,000 Relief
When 65,000 Families
Are Made Homeless.

Forty-three disasters, resulting in the death in the United States of 550 persons and the injury of 2,500 called for emergency relief measures and the expenditure of $1,871,000 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, says an announcement based upon the fourth annual report of the Red Cross. These disasters caused property damage estimated at $30,000,000, affected sixty-seven communities and rendered 65,000 families homeless.

The year's disasters were of varying types, including several which previously had never been thought of as falling within that classification. The Red Cross furnished relief in seventeen fires of magnitude, five floods, seven tornados or cyclones, one devastating storm, three explosions, including the one in Wall street; one building accident, two typhoid epidemics, the most serious being that at Salem, Ohio, which affected 9 per cent of the population; one smallpox epidemic, in the republic of Haiti; one train wreck, the rare riot at Tulsa, Okla.; the famine in China, emergency relief in famine among the Indians of Alaska, the grasshopper plague in North Dakota and an earthquake in Italy.

Pueblo Most Serious
By far the most severe of the disasters in the United States during the period covered by the Red Cross report was the Pueblo flood early in June, 1921. The rehabilitation problem confronting the Red Cross in Pueblo was one of the most difficult in recent years. When the first news of the horror was flashed throughout the country, the American Red Cross National Headquarters responded with a grant of $105,000 for relief work.

Governor Shoup of Colorado, appreciating the long and successful experience of the Red Cross in organizing disaster relief work, placed the entire responsibility for the administration of relief in its hands. In response to appeals from President Harding, Governor Shoup and other governors of western states and through local chapters of the Red Cross and other community organizations, public-spirited citizens brought relief material for Pueblo's rehabilitation to more than $325,000.

The terrible havoc wrought by the flood waters is a matter of record. More than 2,300 homes were affected and 7,251 persons were left homeless. Estimates of $500,000 as an absolute minimum for rehabilitation were made by Red Cross officials in charge of the relief work.

Fast Work in Wall Street
The Wall street explosion was notable in that relief workers of the Red Cross were on the scene twenty minutes after the disaster occurred. The rare riot at Tulsa also was unique in disaster relief annals in that outside of a small emergency relief fund contributed by the Red Cross, the only relief measures outside the city consisted of the service of social workers, nurses and a trained executive whose object was to assist local forces in directing their own efforts.

In decided contrast with the previous year, only one tornado assumed the proportions of a major disaster. This occurred on April 15, in the border sections of Texas and Arkansas with the city of Texarkana as the center. The significant feature of this disaster relief work was the fact that it covered so much rural territory as to make necessary a large number of relief workers.

The famine in China, necessitating relief expenditures totalling more than $1,000,000 by the American Red Cross was by far the most serious of the foreign disasters in which the Red Cross gave aid.

Builds Up Its Machinery
In connection with the administration of disaster relief measures, an increasing effectiveness on the part of the Red Cross to deal with emergencies was manifested during the past year. In 328 chapters of the American Red Cross there have been formed special committees to survey the resources of their respective communities and to be prepared in case of disaster. In others of the 3,402 active chapters, a network of communication has been formed through which instantaneous relief may be dispatched to any part of the United States.

Thus its work in this field may be continued with ever greater effectiveness, the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during its Annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from November 11 to 24.

LIFE SAVING CORPS ENROLLMENT 10,000

Growth of Red Cross Life Saving Corps throughout the country continued unabated during the last fiscal year. A summary of the year's achievements by that Red Cross Service shows. There are now 100 Corps with a total membership of more than 10,000 members, of which 1,270 are sufficiently skilled in the work to act as swimmers. Among the outstanding achievements of the Red Cross in this field during the last year was the organization at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, of what is perhaps the largest life saving corps in the world.

WAREHOUSES WILL NOT OPEN FOR SALE BURLEY

Owners Agree in Conference With Committee to Give Time For Election of Directors and Permanent Organization.

One hundred of the 111 warehouses or warehouse companies represented at the conference with the warehouse committee of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association at Lexington Tuesday voted to adopt a resolution providing for the closing of the warehouses, so far as the sale of burley tobacco is concerned, pending the permanent organization of the association and the selection of the board of directors. The other eleven did not vote against closing, but later in the afternoon held a conference with the warehouse committee, at which details relating to these particular warehouses were worked out, some of them being in counties in which dark tobacco, as well as burley, is grown and desiring to open their houses to sell dark tobacco only, while remaining closed for burley.

Following the conference with the committee all except three either signed the closing resolution or agreed to remain closed, pending the organization of the association. These three agreed to remain closed until Dec. 15th. The conference adopted without opposition a resolution proposed by a committee composed of James C. Stone, M. L. Kirkpatrick and Dave Prewitt, which was appointed on motion by Dr. Samuel H. Halley, after a number of motions and substitute motions had been offered looking toward the valuation of warehouse property. The resolution offered by the committee provided that the warehousemen offer their property to the association for its use until the board of directors of the association and the owners of the property have had opportunity to work out a method of valuation of the property it is proposed by the association to take over.

Just previous to the adjournment of the conference, which was in session from 10 o'clock until 1, and which assembled again at 2 o'clock, Chairman Ralph M. Barker, of the warehouse committee, expressed the hope no warehousemen in the district would ignore the wishes of the 50,000 tobacco growers who had signed the co-operative marketing contract and that all would keep their houses closed so far as the sale of burley tobacco was concerned, until the association could get ready to do business.

Vice Chairman Stone expressed the same thought, calling attention to the fact that the men in the conference all had been for the co-operative marketing plan and had worked hard for it, making possible by that hard work and devotion to the cause its final success.

The resolution providing that the warehouses remain closed for the sale of burley tobacco pending the permanent organization of the association was offered by Rev. J. R. Jones, of Harrison county, and was the first business considered by the conference. It read as follows:

"Resolved, that we keep our warehouses closed for the sale of burley tobacco until the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association is elected and a reasonable time is allowed the association to get organized and ready for business."

The resolution relating to the valuation of warehouse property, as finally reported by the committee named on motion of Dr. Halley, was adopted unanimously. It reads as follows:

"Inasmuch as the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will be elected within the next thirty days, and as nothing can be legally done until they are elected, and as we have been assured that the subject of appraisal, buying or leasing of our properties will be taken up as soon as a practicable after said Board is elected."

"Be it resolved, that we warehousemen offer to the association the use of our warehouses until the Board of Directors of the association, in conjunction with the owners of the warehouses, work out a fair method of arriving at the values of the various properties by arbitration."

Dr. Adams Again Elected

Educational Society President.

Dr. M. B. Adams, President of Georgetown College was re-elected President of the Kentucky Baptist Education Society at its annual meeting just before the General Association of Kentucky Baptists, which was held at Hopkinsville last week.

Dr. Adams has been president of this Society for a number of years. Before becoming President of the Georgetown College he was corresponding Secretary of this Society, resigning to come to Georgetown.

PROMOTING SCHOOL AND CHILDREN'S HEALTH.

The American people spend millions to train the young people with book knowledge, and then let a lot of them come out of school with impaired health. It was disappointing recently, when the United States Chamber of Commerce learned that out of every $100 spent for school purposes, only 48 cents on an average goes for the promotion of health among school children, through medical inspection, school nurses, etc.

Yet superb results are being achieved by those cities and counties that have provided a school nurse, and other features of health work. The school nurse discovers epidemics before they get a foot hold, and saves expense for doctors and nurses. She persuades ignorant people to call a doctor where otherwise they would neglect their children. She discovers defects that could handicap a child for life. Forty eight cents of $100 for such activities is penny wise and pound foolish, and the schools of Kentucky should do better than this figure.

TRAINING IN BUSINESS MANAGEMENT.

Many schools and colleges are giving courses in "business management." So many are taking the training, that some people have remarked that there were going to be more managers than workers.

Not all the youth people who study to become executives can attain any large success. But they will accomplish something if they get the ideas of efficient work. The small business will be far more profitable if run on systematic principles. The mechanic at his bench and the clerk behind the counter both need more systematic ways of performing their tasks.

These courses are spreading this idea of efficiency, and in so far as these principles are applied to industry, they must reduce cost of production and benefit everybody.

FIFTY-FIFTY

The basket ball teams of the local school engaged in two games with the players from Walton Hi School here last Wednesday, the result being a victory for the Walton team. The Walton boys won while the Burlington girls won out by the small score of 2 to 0. The boys' game was a hotly contested affair with the first half showing fast work on the part of Burlington but their goal shooting was poorly executed which resulted in the half closing with Walton leading 4 to 0. The second half was used to better advantage by the local team as concerns goals as they scored three field goals and one foul but they failed to hold the fast Walton team allowing them to register 8 more points, consequently the final score was in Walton's favor, 12 to 7.

HANDSOME EXTERIORS.

Strangers going through or visiting a place judge that town's development largely by exterior appearance. If a town has well kept home places, if its business district looks modern and substantial, if it shows appreciation of beauty by park spaces, tree planting, shrubbery and flowers on home grounds, etc., a conviction will spread around for a long distance that that place is going ahead and realizing its possibilities, and is a good place to live in and do business.

To accomplish this result takes a general spirit of co-operation. There are many quiet and reserved citizens who could never say one word in a public meeting, who lack self confidence to take hold and push any organization work. But there is one thing they can do, and that is to add the touch of beauty to their home places. If they will plant beautiful flowers and shrubs, they have made a real contribution to the development of their city's possibilities.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Miss Clara Uitz, trained nurse, who has been making her home with her brother-in-law, Mr. Geo. McGlasson, of Hebron neighborhood, suffered a slight stroke of paralysis while sitting at the breakfast table, last Saturday morning and was unconscious for some time and unable to speak. Dr. Nunnally was summoned and gave medical aid and from last reports she was some what improved. Her many relatives and friends thronged the county home for her a speedy recovery.

NOTHING MORE ABSURD.

Every so often you run into a poor fellow who tells you forlornly that "life isn't worth living." But you continue to meet him at the usual places where folks are customarily met and then suddenly you get a shock when you realize that he is still alive. Life is not so much worth living for him to be on hand and eat his usual meals. After all, nothing could be more absurd than the man who says "Life isn't worth living."

The Congressmen are talking of taking a recess, but even if they do they will accomplish just as much work as if they remained in session.

GROWERS NOT IN POOL

Given Fifteen Days to Come In And Join The Pool.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 23.—In order that every tobacco grower in the burley district, who has not had an opportunity to sign the contract of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association heretofore, may have a chance to join the association and pledge his tobacco crop to it before the association finally closes its books, the committee on elections today directed that these men be given opportunity to sign hereafter the calling of the elections for the choice of delegates and directors. The time set for the signing up by these outside growers has been fixed for the fifteen days between November 26 and December 10. The decision to reopen the books for the benefit of those who have not yet signed is contained in a letter sent today by Organization Manager Jos. Passonneau to the county chairmen in the district, as follows:

"Lexington, Ky., Nov. 23, 1921.

Dear Sir: As you know, there are a large number of tobacco growers who for some reason or other, failed to sign the marketing contract prior to November 15. Regardless of what that reason was, it seems to be the belief that these men should be given an opportunity to sign the contract before the primaries for the election of delegates are held.

"The committee on elections has voted that fifteen days should be given for the signing up of these outside men. The time chosen is from Saturday morning, November 26th, until 12 o'clock Saturday night, December 10th.

"I believe that everyone who has not signed the contract should be offered the opportunity to do so. With a little additional effort on the part of the workers it should be possible to make the association 95 per cent strong during these fifteen days."

Very Truly Yours,
JOSEPH PASSONNEAU Organization Manager."

TWO MEANS OF PROMOTING GOOD BUSINESS.

The greatest difficulty in the way of resumption of full business prosperity is that the price of farm products is relatively lower than that of factory goods, so that the farmers are not buying normal quantities of merchandise. Until they do, there can not be any high tide of business prosperity. You can't ask wage earners to take reductions in pay greater than decline in cost of living, except in lines where wages may have advanced abnormally.

But there are two ways in which this disparity is already being met:

1. Better distribution methods. The farmers are forming marketing associations to get their stuff to the consumer with less expense for middlemen. If they get a higher price for their products in this way, it enables them to buy more factory goods. But of course the consumer must not be taxed any more. If he is his purchasing power is reduced.

2. The movement of city people back to the soil. The factory capacity of today is bigger than the ability of the country to consume at the present prices, with the farmer's purchasing power somewhat reduced. Hence many workers in the cities who are not fully employed would do well to move to the country and make a living on the farm. An economical family can live on the produce of a pig pen, chicken yard, vegetable garden, and sell enough stuff in nearby cities to pay for clothing, taxes, and incidentals. Many are doing it.

These two tendencies will solve many problems by increasing the ability to purchase products and removing surplus labor from cities. The land purchasing movement should meet with all possible encouragement in Boone. Any industrious family that wants to start farming or market gardening in a small way in this locality should find some one willing to lend money on the purchase of such property.

HOGS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Ed. Borders, who lives at the forks of Gunpowder creek, in the Pleasant Valley neighborhood, had seven fat hogs so badly injured by a stroke of lightning, Thanksgiving morning, that they had to be killed. The hogs were in a pen near a tree that was struck, and the porkers were knocked lifeless for some time, but revived and began eating. When killed it was found that the bones in the hams had been so badly shattered that very little of the meat was fit for use. The same morning lightning struck and set fire to a shock of fodder in a field opposite Clon Kendall's residence, on the Florence pike, burning corn and fodder.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boone Co. Farm Bureau will be held in the office at Burlington at 10.30 a. m., Dec. 8th. J. COLIN KELLY Secy.

TRUST COMPANIES.

Trust Companies in Kentucky reported total resources for the year ending June 30, 1921, of $66,540,364, as against $41,449,899, five years ago, according to "Trust Companies of the United States," just issued by the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, of New York. This volume now in its nineteenth annual edition, shows aggregate resources of the Trust Companies at the close of business June 30, 1921, of $12,323,430,513, as against $12,451,877,583, last year and 2390 companies reporting, as compared with 2241 last year.

In commenting on Trust Company conditions during the past year John W. Platten, President of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company says:

"No stronger evidence of the stability of Trust Companies has been forthcoming during their entire history than was demonstrated during the past year in connection with their banking operations. The year ending June 30, 1921, covered by the latest returns as given in the 1921 edition of 'Trust Companies of the United States,' was one of tremendous recession in prices and values, attended by production of bank bankruptcy of credit and rapid falling off of deposits.

"Notwithstanding these adverse conditions, the resources of the Trust Companies of the United States, as of June 30, 1921, amounted to $12,323,430,513, or the 2390 companies reporting, a decrease for the year of only $123,000,000.

"This situation, coupled with the fact that a substantial increase is shown in all branches of fiduciary business, is extremely gratifying, and affords further and convincing proof of the recognition by both corporations and individuals of the value of Trust Company service."

"A LETTER FROM HOME"

Morgan, Minn.,
Nov. 29, 1921.
Boone County Recorder,
Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir: I read in last week's Recorder, which I always call "The Letter From Home," where the coldest mornings this year were last Friday and Saturday—22 above, and as I read it I looked out of the snow window and looked upon 14 inches of snow, and snow still falling, then put my coat and hat and walked up to the corner to see how cold it was, and found it was only 21 below.

This is the coldest winter yet here for a good many years, it has lasted two weeks and looks good for six months.

Just a few of our prices: Coal a ton, $19.00, wood a cord from $12 to $18, corn a bushel, 24c, oats 17c, wheat, 80c, butter a pound 52c, eggs per dozen 48c.

We had a poultry car here from Chicago last Thursday and the farmer sold 16,000 lbs. of chickens at 17c a pound. The poultry car comes about every two weeks.

Well, hoping this finds everybody in old Boone well and hoping to hear lots of good news in the next "Letter From Home" the RECORDER, I beg to remain as ever with best regards to all.

Yours Truly,
HAROLD LARSEN.

GIRL BADLY BRUISED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR.

Miss Londa-Betts, youngest daughter of James Betts of Buckeye Ridge, had a close call Sunday, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Russell E. Carroll of Ridge. Her clothing was torn and her limbs sustained cuts and bruises. The most serious effect of the injury was the nervous shock which the girl suffered.

Mr. Betts and two daughters had just arrived home after having attended church service in this city. Mr. Betts had stopped his car at the side of the road preparatory to driving into his garage across the road. The youngest girl stepped from the car, passed in front of it and started to cross the road to open a gate, when Carroll's car which had followed the other car in the police truck, drove up and struck her. Her car was going into the house and did not see her as she passed in front of the Betts car. He brought his car to a sudden stop and his quick action saved the girl from being run over. It appears that the accident was a case of avoidable. Mr. and Mrs. B. Woodward of this city were in Carroll's car.

Miss Betts is recovering nicely from the effects of the accident. Ohio County News.

HEBROH HI CAVE PIE SOCIAL.

The Hebron High School gave a pie social last Wednesday evening that was enjoyed by all present, and netted the school $32.05. Prof. Morton, Miss Kelly and Mr. Goodridge, are offering their best efforts to make Hebron High School one of the best in the county.

RYLE-SCOTT MARRIAGE.

A host of friends were pleased to learn of the marriage of Miss Pearl Ryle and Vernon Scott which took place Thursday evening at 3 o'clock at the home of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Jane Sutton, at McVine, Rev. C. E. Baker, performing the ceremony.

The bride is one of our favored young ladies, with friends in countless numbers won by her pleasing manner. She is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Ryle and the late Walter Ryle of Rabbit Hash.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Scott of McVine, is one of Boone county's industrious and promising young farmers, with a host of friends who congratulate him.

After the ceremony, the happy couple with their attendants, Miss Jennie Rogers and Orville Y. Kelly, went to the Ryle home where Mrs. Ryle served a sumptuous dinner to guests numbering seventy.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott received the compliments of many useful and beautiful gifts.

Kelly cut glass marmalade jar and cream pitcher, Harold Aylor pair of linen towels, Vernon Stephens cut glass salt and pepper shakers, Mr. and Mrs. Gladys Thelma and Janet Kelly cut glass salt and pepper shaker, Mary Hankinson, hand painted cake plate, Wilbur Aylor pair linen towels, Jennie Rogers butter knife, Lloyd Loudon half dozen tablespoons, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Ryle cream ladle, Virginia Botts table cloth, Howard Aylor china plate, D. M. and wife $5.00, J. R. Stephens $5.00, Si Spivins, classic reader.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Scott entertained with a family dinner on Friday for the newlyweds.

A MAN'S LIFE.

A man's life is full of crosses and temptations. He comes into the world without his consent and goes out against his will, and the trip between the two is exceedingly rocky.

The rule of contraries is one of the important features of the trip: When he is little the big girls kiss him, but when he is grown, the little girls kiss him. If he raises a large family he is a chump, but if he raises a small family he is a hero. If he is poor he is a bad manager; if he is rich he is dishonest. If he is in politics, it's for pie; if he's out of politics, you can't place him, and he's no good to his country. If he doesn't give to charity he's a stingy cuss; if he does it's for show. If he dies young there's a great future ahead of him; if he lives to an old age, he's missed his calling. The road is rocky but he loves to travel it.

A LITTLE SLOW.

Sheriff Connor states that the taxpayers have been a little slow about paying up this year, but that they have been coming pretty rapidly the last few days, and he had his deputies have been kept busy night and day writing receipts. The penalty goes on today (Thursday) and all those who failed to pay will have to pay the penalty. While the penalty is not heavy, it usually amounts to enough to be worth saving. Waiting until the last few days before paying costs the taxpayer a lot of work on the Sheriff and his deputies. Last Saturday they issued about one hundred and fifty receipts.

HAVE THEM READY.

County Clerk W. R. Rogers will be ready to issue the 1922 automobile licenses beginning Saturday, December 3. You are required to have the 1922 license by January 1st, so have them ready when the bells toll.

AN ALL DAY MEETING.

An all day meeting will be held at New Bethel Baptist church, Verona, Sunday, December 4th, at which three deacons will be ordained.

MRS. ALICE WATTS, DEAD.

On November 26, 1921, Jehovah, "said come," and the Spirit of Mrs. Alice Watts took its flight to the city of endless bliss.

Mrs. Watts was sixty seven years of age June 27th, and was the wife of Wash Watts, who died 14 years ago.

She leaves to mourn their loss, two daughters, Mrs. Lottie Blankenbaker and Mrs. Lillie Garr, and a grandson Harold Garr, and a brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Mr. Allie Corn and wife, and besides a host of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Watts was a member of Sand Run Baptist church, near Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky., for thirty-three years, and none more faithful, her devotion to the church was always first. Her home until three years ago, was near this church, (Bullittsville), moving from there to Louisville, Ky., in a beautiful Southern Suburb, where life was in reality a blessing. Richly blessed with good neighbors and friends. Mrs. Alice Watts, was a noble character and to know her was to make a friend, as she had no enemies.

On the 27th a funeral was conducted at the home by a minister of Louisville, and on the 28th the remains were interred in the Highland cemetery, near Erlanger, Ky., Rev. C. T. Channell, of Chicago, her former pastor, conducted a very brief service. We can say in the words of the Psalmist, "We can go to her." "She is not dead but sleeping." "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." No greater mother, one of the good old fashioned kind. Blessing the world with girls to follow in her footsteps. Our sympathies are extended to them.

C. T. CLAUNCH.

THOMAS BRADFORD, DEAD.

John Elmer (Tom) Bradford, aged 43 years, passed away at his home in the Grange Hall neighborhood Friday, Nov. 25th, after a lingering illness. Funeral services were conducted at the Big Bone Baptist church Sunday morning by Rev. Miller, in the presence of a large concourse of friends. Mr. Bradford is survived by his widow and one son Russell, an aged mother, two brothers and a sister. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Philip Taliaferro.

DANIEL C. NOBLE, DEAD.

Daniel G. Noble, 68, after a lingering illness, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clint Eggleston, about one mile from town on the Petersburg pike last Thursday afternoon. He leaves three sons, two daughters, one step-son, twenty-three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. His remains were buried in Odd-Fellows cemetery last Saturday morning. Philip Taliaferro, the Erlanger undertaker, had charge of the funeral.

WHO CAN GIVE HIM A HOME?

W. W. Grimsley, of Walton, who has had in his possession for some time, the horse old "Tom," the property of Congressman A. B. Rouse, wishes to secure a good home for him the rest of his days. Anyone well by calling on Mr. Grimsley at Walton, as he does not want the horse to be sold.

HIGH TAXES AND LOW PRICES.

High taxes and low prices have about knocked "arm" out of farming. Now, if some speedy autoist would run over old gossip and knock the "sip" out of it, many would be out of a job.

DOCKET WILL BE LIGHT.

Next Monday is county court, and the following Monday the December term of the Boone Circuit Court will convene. The docket for the term is very light—no important cases to be tried.

SOLD FOR 25 CENTS EACH.

The first day of the open season rabbits sold for 25 cents each. But, due to the warm weather the "hits" have been knocked out of the rabbits and they are now being bought for eight cents.

PLENTY OF EACH.

Thunderstorms, heavy rains and vivid flashes of lightning during the month of November, were as great as is usually noted in the summer time.

ISSUED ONLY 42 DOG LICENSES.

Up to last Saturday at noon only 42 dog licenses for 1922 had been issued by the County Clerk, out of about 1200 listed by the Tax Commissioner.

NOTICE.

There will be a meeting of Boone Post No. 4, at the Court House, on Tuesday night Dec. 6th. All ex-servicemen invited.

ROBT. T. MCGLOSSON,
Post Commander.

The men who can't remember to take their hats off when they meet their country passes by, will probably forget that get when they meet a good looking girl.

WALTON.

Chas. H. Young, of Folsom, visited friends here last Wednesday.

Joe, of Bridge of Gallatin county, visited friends here a part of last week.

Ira Jones, of near Glencoe, was here a part of last week looking over some farm property with a view to buying.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. L. Vest spent Thanksgiving in Louisville attending a special social meeting of the Eastern Star Chapter.

Mrs. Sarah J. Grubbs who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. Raymond Morris in Covington, returned home here to spend Thanksgiving.

Cooper Gentry of Wheatley, Owen county, spent part of the past week here in the interest of a fire insurance company in which he is the State manager.

J. L. Haring of Louisville, one of the principal managers of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., buying department, was here last week looking at some old tobacco for future consideration.

Harry Dahling of Oregonia, Ohio, was here a couple of weeks helping in the repair work on the lines of the Consolidated Telephone Co., returned home last week to resume work on the Peoples Telephone Co. lines owned by the same company.

Miss Willa Hance who is a teacher in the public schools of Carlisle, Nicholas county, spent the Thanksgiving holidays here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hance. She is highly pleased with her position at Carlisle and is much impressed with the genial qualities of the people there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Reeves and little son left last week for Alamogordo, Florida, on a visit to his brother expecting to remain a couple of weeks. J. E. Funk of Eminence, Henry-co., is assisting W. C. Collins in the work at the L. & N. Railroad Station during the absence of Mr. Reeves who is the chief agent.

Lloyd Clifford McElroy, who went last week to Indianapolis to take a special treatment for diabetes from which he has been suffering for over a year, died at the home of his brother George McElroy in Indianapolis, Sunday morning. Mr. McElroy was one of the first of our boys to volunteer for overseas service during the World War, and was sent to England for mobilization and had been ordered to France when the Armistice was declared. He had been in the hospital, and on his return home diabetes manifested itself in an alarming form, and he has been gradually going into a decline. He was a strong, robust man when he entered the service and passed a splendid physical examination. Mr. McElroy was a fine young man of most pleasing address and was a favorite with a large circle of friends. He was a son of Thos. McElroy, and was about thirty years old, and was born near New Liberty, Owen county, where the funeral took place Saturday.

At the meeting of the Co-operative Burley Tobacco Association at Lexington last week the tobacco growing territory was subdivided into districts, and the Eleventh District is composed of the counties of Grant, Gallatin, Boone, Kenton and Campbell. Each district is to have a director to be elected by the growers who are members of the Association, and the directors from the respective districts comprise the Board of Directors on whom much of the success of the organization will depend, and only the very best and shrewdest men should be selected, and men who cannot be swayed from right by money, influence or threats. The best man this district could select would be Hon. R. B. Brown of Warsaw, as he is not only a large land owner and extensive tobacco raiser, but all of his interests are with the farming people, and he has always been loyal to them and their rights in every fight they have had, and in the present issue he has been one of the most zealous workers for the success of the co-operative plan. Mr. Brown is in thorough sympathy with the farmer in all of his struggles, and understands how to handle matters of this kind with diplomacy and good sense, but if it comes to a fight there will be no back down on his part. He is the man for the growers to have for their director, if you can get him, but he has a great many business interests and may not want to take the place, but he has never yet proven to be a slacker when he could serve the people to a good advantage and for their best interests.

FARM YOUNGSTERS SHOW NEW INTEREST IN CLUBS

Reports of increases in the enrollment of boys and girls in junior agricultural clubs being received by club authorities at the College of Agriculture from county agents indicate that farm youngsters of the State are showing increased interest in the projects outlined for them in this work. Among the latest reports are those from Breathitt, Lawrence and Jackson counties, the counties, the county agents of which anticipate an increase in this year's enrollment over that of last year. In most cases the work is being carried on through the cooperation of the school teachers many of whom have reported a record enrollment from their district.

People reported to be drinking wood alcohol but perhaps it doesn't hurt their wooden heads any.

PT. PLEASANT.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Tanner entertained with a beautiful Thanksgiving dinner in honor of the several birthdays occurring during November. Miss Elizabeth Gordon of Price Hill, came out to the Oyster Supper Wednesday evening and is enjoying the holidays with relatives. Miss Gordon is a senior student at Hughes High School.

People who failed to attend the oyster supper at Point Pleasant on Wednesday evening, missed one of the best times we've had for years. The supper was under the management of Mrs. Tupman assisted by the ladies of the church, and it was considered by all the most delicious meal served for a long, long time, so perfect was it in every detail. Miss Sarah Elizabeth Tanner had charge of the Bazaar and the display of aprons, dolls and other useful articles was very beautiful, and realized quite a nice sum. Mrs. Sallie Southern donated a quilt top, all hand made, but the Aid decided to quilt it and sell it later on. Brother Shepherd wife and children were the guests of honor and aftersupper was served. Brother Omer invited the crowd upstairs to an illustrated lecture on the "Courtship of Miles Standish and Colonial Life." This was enjoyed immensely by all.

One of the most charming events of this holiday season was the surprise party given Miss Sarah E. Tanner, it being her 16th birthday. The young people spent the evening dancing, singing and playing games, and about 11:30 a delightful luncheon was served in the dining room. The birthday cake was a beauty, baked and decorated with 16 candles by the Southern Southern. All had a delightful time and each left wishing Sarah many more delightful birthdays.

BEAVER LICK.

Will Wilson shipped some fat cattle last week.

Joe W. Cleck spent Friday afternoon at Walton.

Elmer Denegon has bought a Ford car of L. B. Hume.

Mr. J. H. McCabe shipped some fat cattle last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Griffith spent last Wednesday in the city.

J. H. McCabe and W. C. Johnson spent Saturday at Walton.

Frazier Miskell, who has been ill for some time, has improved some.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Griffith spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green.

Mr. Leon Wilson and Mr. Mollie Wilson, spent Friday with relatives at Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Green spent Sunday with L. Lee Huey near Big Bone Baptist church.

Mr. H. H. Clerk of near Burlington, has moved to the farm he purchased of M. Hume.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Flayback and Mrs. Mary Neill spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Johnson.

Osman Jack, Wayne Brown, O. W. Clark and others have enjoyed several fox-chases near Beaver, the past week.

Mrs. W. V. Moore who has been ill for some time, with blood poison, is improving at the St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington. Her many friends are glad to know she is improving.

For Holiday Time

An unusually pretty breakfast cap is here offered as a suggestion for a gift. It is a spirited model made of taffeta silk and almost covered with crisp, plaited frills of taffeta ribbon. Such a cap requires a crinoline support and a lining of thin silk.

Unusual interest attached itself to the plans of the War Department to send the big dirigible across the Appalachians into Ohio—a cross-country test flight.

The Roma was built by the Italian government in Rome Italy and purchased by the United States government after the armistice. It is the largest flying ship in America. It has a length over all of 418 feet and carries 1,200,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. It is about the size of the Zeppelins that Germany used in the London raids but not quite so large as the R-34 which crossed the Atlantic.

The Roma, after flying in Italy, was dismantled and sent to this country and assembled at Langley Field, Virginia.

There are only five hangars in the United States at the present time large enough to accommodate the ship. One of these is at Wingfoot Lake Air Station, Akron. Wingfoot Lake hangar is 400 feet long so that the nose of the ship will project out of the door a little ways.

The Roma carries 4500 gallons of gasoline and can make about 70 to 75 miles an hour. It is present equipped with six 450 horse power motors of Italian make but it is planned to replace these with Liberty motors which will give it a greater cruising radius. With the Liberty motors the ship is able to fly 3000 miles without landing.

CONSTANCE.

Several from here attended the oyster supper at Pt. Pleasant, and enjoyed the stereotyped views given by Bro. Omer. They said they had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hemphing gave a reception in honor of Sallie Hankins Saturday night, Nov. 19th. It rained every day the past week.

HOME-MADE SAUSAGE.

Three parts of lean meat to one of fat give good results in making sausage on the farm, animal husbandrymen at the College of Agriculture say. One recipe recommended by them for good sausage includes these ingredients for every 6 pounds of meat: One and one-half ounces of fine salt, one-half ounce of finely ground black pepper, and one-half ounce or less of sage to suit the taste. One-half ounce of black pepper and one-fourth ounce of red pepper may be used instead of all black pepper if a "hotter" sausage is desired. Ginger alone may be substituted for the sage if desired. The meat may be rolled in the seasoning before the pork is ground or the seasoning added after the grinding.

EXERCISE

Physical exercise is necessary. It is as important as food, fresh air and sleep; without it health is impossible. By "exercise" we mean making movements other than the purposeful movements of ordinary life. Brushing the hair, raising food to the mouth, getting up and sitting down are done for a purpose and are of course exercise of a sort, but we do not do them with the idea of developing our muscles, expanding our chests, or quickening our circulations.

The impulse to take exercise is instinctive in the young. During childhood it finds expression in playing and romping; during youth and early adult life, in sports and athletic contests. It is not necessary to urge young people to take that kind of exercise; rather it is necessary to utter a word of warning against excess. The young man of the present day is in greater danger of overtaxing his heart and other organs by excess in athletics than he is of letting them spoil for want of sufficient exercise. It is the business man or the professional man who has passed his fortieth birthday that needs exercise and that usually thinks he is too busy to take it.

A favorite argument of the brain worker who is advised to walk, or to play golf, or to take some other form of regular exercise, is that he has exhausted his vitality by brain work, and that the use of his muscles beyond the absolute needs of daily life would exhaust still further his life forces. That is not so, for the brain is fatigued only because it is fed with blood that circulates sluggishly and that is already so loaded with toxins that it cannot take away that result from intellectual work. A brisk walk would fill the brain worker's lungs with air, quicken his circulation, oxygenate his blood and unload it of its toxins, squeeze the stagnant lymph out of his muscles, empty his liver of its poisons, and quicken all his excretory functions. Then his brain would be bathed with fresh pure blood, and the "cobwebs" would be washed away. What such a man does for exercise is less important than that he should do something; yet there is a choice. We should guide his choice we shall speak of in a later issue.

NOTICE.

Beginning Monday, Dec. 5, 1921, I will make three trips each week between Rabbit Ha-h and Cincinnati, on the present schedule. Trips will be made on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

C. W. CRAIG.

HEN HOUSE WORK LESSENED BY MAKING ADVANCE PLANS

Much of the care which must be given poultry flocks during disagreeable weather can be made easy and the comfort of the flock insured during that season of the year if farmers will complete all building, remodeling and repairing of poultry houses during the next few weeks so that the hens and pullets can be settled in their winter homes before they start laying, according to J. R. Smyth, field agent in poultry from the College of Agriculture. This preparation is especially important in the case of pullets since any change in their living conditions after they begin to lay is apt to cause them to stop for a time.

The interior arrangement of the house is perhaps the most important item in the satisfactory and efficient management and housing of the flock during the winter, the specialists say. If the nests, roosts and equipment are placed off the floor all available space there can be used for scratching purposes. This arrangement necessitates a dropping board under the roosts which keeps the straw litter clean. The board should be two and one-half to three feet from the floor and extend at least 10 inches beyond the edge of the first roost. If the roosts are placed on a level no trouble will be experienced in keeping the birds evenly distributed over them during the night. Ten to 12 inches of roosting space is sufficient for birds of the heavier breed while eight inches is sufficient for Leghorns.

Serviceable and inexpensive nests can be made out of orange or lemon crates by placing them on one side and nailing a four-inch strip along the front to hold the straw in the nest. If this type of nest is used a framework should be built along the wall to hold the boxes in place.

A large self-feeder or hopper is essential when dry mash is fed. If this is placed about one foot off the floor straw and dirt can be kept out of it easily. The water vessel also should be out of the way of dirt and may be placed on a platform built about one foot above the floor. Farmers who wish special help with their poultry housing problems may obtain information from the Experiment Station, Lexington.

IRREGULAR ASSESSMENTS

The present tax laws in Kentucky are as good as in any State, and "as good as many," and that being the case, why is it that so many complaints are heard and so many threats to repeal them?

Answer is not far to seek, as anyone familiar with the question knows that the greatest objection to the present tax laws is the irregularity of assessments resulting in the unequal taxation of the same kind of property in different localities and more taxes on some kinds of property than on other kinds according to the views of the assessing authorities and construction of the law.

The Constitution states very clearly that all property subject to taxation shall be assessed at its fair cash value, and while this law was generally disregarded for twenty-five years, it has never been changed and the recent efforts of the State Tax Commission to enforce it has aroused the animosity of those affected.

No one will deny that a law so plain as this is apparently unavoidable and it should be accepted as any other law or repealed if it is considered unjust and some other basis of assessment substituted. Laws are made to be obeyed and tax laws should be as inviolable as any other laws.

While the assessment of property at the fair cash value, true or full value is the basis adopted generally in many States, it has been the practice to list certain kinds of property at some regular percentage of the actual value on the assumption that the taxable value was somehow different from the real value which resulted everywhere in gross irregularities and inequality in taxation.

The fallacy of the percentage principle was finally recognized and it is now the custom to assess all property at the full value and fix the tax rates to correspond with the assessment. This is logical and leads to greater uniformity in taxes and is the rational solution of the problem of taxation.

The percentage basis prevailing in Kentucky was so irregular and discriminatory as to cause an unending litigation and the decisions of the courts only complicated the situation when they declared that when any percentage of the real value was used as the basis of assessment, all property should be assessed at the same percentage value, but this has never been observed and assessments in Kentucky are as irregular as ever.

The State Tax Commission says that under the former law the only property really assessed was that of railroads, banks and corporations required to be assessed by the State Board, at Frankfort, and all other property was simply listed with local assessors at such values as the owners pleased and officials concerned in.

Thus corporations, compelled by other laws to expose the value of their taxable property, were usually assessed at the full value, according to law, and this practice also applied to Bonds, Stocks, Notes and Money which were taxed at their full value, when taxed at all, while a great deal of other property was simply "listed" or arbitrarily valued according to the views of local assessors.

The average taxpayer is more concerned in the amount of his tax bill than in the methods of taxation and it matters little whether his property is assessed at the full value or some percentage of same if the tax rates are in just proportion and here lies the key to the question.

As an illustration, the advocates of tax reforms calculated that Classification would disclose more property for taxation, and secured a reduction in the State tax rate from 55 to 40 cents and the result showed the soundness of the principle as, notwithstanding an increase of $150,000,000 in the assessment of real estate, the first year under the present law, the State taxes paid were $440,000 less on account of the reduction in the tax rate and Classification induced other property to make up the difference.

Had this principle been carried out in the succeeding years and tax rates reduced in proportion to assessments there would have been less cause for complaint, but in response to a demand for more revenue, assessments have been steadily increased without any corresponding decrease in the tax rates and taxes are naturally higher.

In raising revenue for government all expenses the authorities usually follow the lines of least resistance and as it is easier to get more money by increasing the assessment of property already contributing than by discovering other property to tax, the burden is added to the taxed property probably on the theory that nobody knows what the actual value of tangible property really is and as much of it has been undervalued, it can always stand another raise in assessment.

If all of the taxable property should be uniformly assessed it would justify lower tax rates and the advantage of doing this needs no argument, as in that event all property would contribute its fair share and taxes would be a matter of less concern.

The owners of property which is not paying its fair share naturally resent any increase in their taxes, but their cause of resentment is incomparable with that of owners of property who pay more taxes than they should because of the delinquents and the law says that all property shall be assessed at the fair cash value and there is no legal way of getting around it.

There is no taxable wealth of any kind in Kentucky, except money, but the value of money and of property is established by the available evidence which affords a pretty fair idea of value for all purposes, the fact remains that the average one-half in value of the taxable property in the State is now assessed for taxation.

The National Health Exposition, comprising the greatest collection of health exhibits from all parts of the world ever before gathered together, will be held in the Jefferson County Armory, in Louisville, February 1-9, 1922, according to definite dates just decided on.

This exposition, which will be the fourth of its kind ever held, will be under the direction of the U. S. Public Health Service, the State Board of Health, the Jefferson County Board of Health, and the Louisville Health Department.

Louisville has been resting serenely in the belief that its health was good; that the various kinds of diseases which each day take their toll were just in the natural order of things. Then it got a rude awakening when the report of the recent sanitary survey by the Women's City Club, showed that eighty per cent of the cases of sickness were preventable and with the aid of statistics, compiled by Dr. A. T. McCormack, Secretary of the State Board of Health, learned that at least a year should be added to the average Kentuckian's life by careful living and healthful practices.

In conjunction with the Exposition, the United States Public Health Service will hold the Public Health Institute here and the Kentucky city and county health officers will open their annual conference in Louisville at that time, as will the Kentucky Public Health Association.

With the opening of offices in the State Board of Health Building, invitations are being sent to health organizations in all parts of the world to have exhibits in Louisville Exposition.

Invitations also are being sent to the Indiana State Board of Health and to organizations in neighboring states asking them to participate.

THE DEMANDS OF THE CHARITIES.

Many people, when asked to subscribe to such a cause as the Red Cross, will make the objection that they are "sick and tired of drives." During the war, they say, there was one long procession of solicitations asking money for public causes, and since the war, it has been about the same.

These people should consider how comparatively little people do in a personal way for the benefit of others. Our fathers and mothers who lived in country towns used constantly to go out to watch with sick people, sitting up all night after a tiresome day's labor. There were but few curses then, and most of the labor of caring for the sick was done by this volunteer help. People lived closer to the suffering and the poor in those days, and when anyone needed assistance everyone knew it, and took hold to help.

The spirit of hospitality was more prevalent in those times. Families would give a home for months and years to unfortunate relatives, freely supplying them with food and clothing. In country towns still people gather to the home of some sick man, and saw and split his woodpile or get in his crops. And they do these things gladly, and find pleasure in serving others.

And yet there are folks living in towns and cities who get roughly because a few times a year some solicitor comes around for some charity which takes the place of all this intimate and personal service that people used to offer so freely.

People in these times are giving less than the old times used to. The trouble with many of us is that we are concentrating our thoughts on our own advancement and pleasure, so that appeals for a kind and generous spirit may not find us ready to do our part, or to enjoy the satisfaction that is to be found in giving.

ONE OF TWO COUNTIES.

Louisville, Ky.—Bell County, Ky., after December 1, will be one of the two counties in the entire U. S. with a doctor of the rank of Surgeon in the United States Public Health Service as County Health Officer. Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, announced here.

He had just received a letter from Surgeon General Hugh Cummings, head of the service, informing him that because of the spirit shown by the people of Bell county when the matter of establishing an all-time health department was first agitated there and in view of the typical character of the conditions in that county, it had been decided to station Surgeon J. C. Applewhite there for one year.

Dr. Applewhite has spent the last year working his health work in Georgia. While he is serving in Bell county, there will be with him as Assistant County Health Officer a physician who will succeed him as Health Officer when his year's assignment expires.

What the country needs in these moonshining days is more cash and less trash.

MEAT CURING SUCCESS INVOLVES NO SECRETS.

Curing meats on the farm involves no great secret and can be done successfully if a few general principles are observed, according to animal husbandrymen at the College of Agriculture. Thoroughly cooling the pork to remove all animal heat before the curing starts and trimming off all ragged edges and corners before the meat is placed in the curing solution are the important points to be taken into consideration. Curing by the sugar method is recommended by the specialists as one of the best for Kentucky.

After the meat has been thoroughly cooled for at least 24 hours it should be left in salt for from 18 to 20 curing days if it is to be preserved by this method. Curing days are those on which the meat will take the salt, this condition not being true in freezing weather. After the meat has been removed from the vat or bin it should be washed in lukewarm water to remove the outer coating of excess salt. At the end of 12 hours the excess salt and water should have drained from the pork after which the meat may be smoked until it attains an amber brown color.

The mixture for sugar curing is made by preparing a thick mixture of molasses and pepper, one-fifth of which is red pepper. No certain amount of either ingredient is prescribed but enough should be used to make a thick paste substance. This should be spread over the meat which then should be wrapped in parchment paper followed by muslin and hung in a dry place where the temperature is fairly uniform and meat protected from flies. If in parchment paper is available newspapers dipped in lard or grease will serve the purpose.

SILVER LINING.

Thanksgiving in the Infirmary caused one to think of the song
"Wait Till the Clouds Roll By Jennie" and they rolled.The ideal managers of the Infirmary, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rouse, made things as pleasant for the inmates as it was possible for them to do so under the circumstances.
When some 10 or 15 went to breakfast that morning they found everything as nice as in the average Boone county family. Butter from Jersey cream, biscuits, coffee and milk, and most everything that goes to make a good breakfast.Generally the dining room is as quiet as a mouse but that morning pandemonium broke loose and every one was stricken with the Thanksgiving spirit. Of the 10 or 15 women men and children none of them laughed more and enjoyed it more than Mrs. Rouse.And the dinner, yes'em, duck and goose with trimmings and plenty of it, in fact one would think to see some of them eat it that they would not want to look at another bird for years to come.As for the building, it is kept clean and a home where there is plenty of of good wholesome food, a home where one is treated kindly if they obey a few simple rules that any gentleman would obey indistinctively. The building is situated on a pretty hill from which one can look over the beautiful little city of Burlington and over the wooded hills of Woolper creek a distance of five miles or more. A pretty view in warm weather and when it is all wrapped in snow, cause one to think of "Nearer My God To Thee."Those who come and leave will always bear a kind remembrance of Mr. and Mrs. Rouse, for they do what they can for the inmates.

Me-o-my,
how you'll take to a pipe—and P. A.!

Before you're a day older you want to let the idea slip under your hat that this is the open season to start something with a joy'us jimmy pipe—and some Prince Albert!

Because, a pipe packed with Prince Albert satisfies a man as he was never satisfied before—and keeps him satisfied! And, you can prove it! Why—P. A.'s flavor and fragrance and coolness and its freedom from bite and parch (cut out by our exclusive patented process) are a revelation to the man who never could get acquainted with a pipe! P. A. has made a pipe a thing of joy to four men where one was smoked before!

Ever roll up a cigarette with Prince Albert? Man, man—but you've got a party coming your way!
Talk about a cigarette smoke; we tell you it's a peach!

Prince Albert is sold in tippy red boxes, tidy red tin, handsome pound and half pound tin humidor and in the round crystal glass holder or with a sponge moisture top.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

Some few things the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation has accomplished:

Has 50 counties organized with a membership of over 9,000 paid members. The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation is not yet two years old.

Called a Convention of Marketing Experts to discuss the cooperative marketing of tobacco. This convention approved the principles of the California Plan as explained by Mr. Sapiro. The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, at their Annual Meeting the next day pledged their support to the organization of the Burley Growers under the leadership of Judge Robert W. Bingham.

Through the cooperation of the Louisville papers and the Louisville Board of Trade, has changed the method of quoting prices on wheat from Chicago price less the freight as established by the Government during the war, to prices based on local trade. As a result of this change Louisville quotations have averaged considerably above Chicago quotations this year, instead of 15c below as formerly.

Assisted County Farm Bureau in reducing the price of Acid Phosphate this spring from $32 per ton down to $18 and $20 per ton. Contracted the output of the Peerless Chemical Co. for Farm Bureau which enabled members to buy their Acid Phosphate this fall at from $16.50 to $17.50 per ton, whereas non-members had to pay $23 ton.

Has assisted Farm Bureau in materially reducing prices on coal, feeds and other raw material.

Has obtained the cooperation of the Louisville papers in presenting to city people the problems of farmers from the proper viewpoint.

Has obtained the unanimous approval and endorsement of the Kentucky State Bankers Association.

Has appointed a Committee which has started to work out a State-wide Program for Agriculture, coordinating the various forces engaged in agricultural activities in the State.

AUNT JEMIMA KENNEDY.

There is no flock here'er watched and tended but one dead lamb is there. There is no fire-side how so ever defended, but has a vacant chair.

Since the grim monster, death, visits the bowels of the poor and the mansions of the rich alike, and alike does He call from labor to reward those in the bloom of life and those who have matured in age, be it resolved that since He has visited this home and in plucking, plucked the most choicest flower, "Mother," we commend them to Him who puts no more on His children than they can bare. God's finger touched her and she passed to rest with her Ma, at a time it seemed she might have been spared a little longer to cheer the lives of relatives and friends. We know we'll meet her on earth no more, so let's prepare to meet her in the sweet beyond where parting will be no more. God moves in a mysterious way. We further point the family to Him in whose wisdom there is mercy and who doeth all things well.

Servant of God well done,
Rest from thy love employ.
The battle fought, the victory won.
Enter thy Master's joy.

She was a devout, patient and loving mother. Words cannot express her devotion. She was loved by all who knew her. She has gone to rest and now looking over the battlements of glory, waiting for you to come. She is sleeping in the arms of Jesus.

Sleep on beloved, sleep and take thy rest, lay down thy head upon thy Savior's breast, we loved thee well but Jesus loves thee best.

Good night, good night, good night.

Teacher Lizzie Smith.

Card of Thanks--We wish to thank the pastor for such a beautiful sermon, the undertaker for conducting the funeral services and neighbors and friends of our dear mother, Jemima Kennedy, who departed this life Nov. 16th. Peace to her ashes. The Family.

Election of Delegates Dec-12
For Burley Tobacco Growers
Cooperative Association.

Upon authorization from the Organization Committee, Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, Lexington, Ky., chairman C. O. Hempling called a meeting of the Organization Committee of Boone county and all members at Burlington last Tuesday afternoon to determine method of holding election of delegates and to nominate a number of growers to be placed on the ballot to elect the two delegates to represent Boone county in the Central Business Meetings. The following growers were nominated at the meeting:

L. K. Cropper, Petersburg, Ky.
J. W. Slier, Walton, Ky.
Marshall Whitson, Verona, Ky.
Solon B. Ryle, Grant, Ky.
C. O. Hempling, Taylorport, Ky.
Tim Sandford, Burlington, Ky.
Joe Cleek, Beaver Lick, Ky.

Those present at the meeting nominated these growers because of the interest they had shown in the organization and their adaptability to the office. However, blank spaces have been left on the ballot for any of one or even two additional persons whom they deem more suitable as delegates.

The time is at hand that every signer of a tobacco contract take an individual interest in the men we elect as our delegates. Every member should take the time to read the list of his choice. A printed ballot will be mailed to every member with instructions as to how to cast his ballot. I trust some possible information he should call his friend or neighbor to man or one of the Election Committee. The following compose the election committee:

E. H. Hootch, Lexington, Chairman
Timothy Sandford, Burlington
Bert Gaines, Burlington

Daniel G. Noble.

Daniel G. Noble died after a lingering illness Nov. 24, 1921, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clint Eggleston. He was born in Boone county Feb. 27, 1853, being at the time of his death 68 years, eight months and 27 days of age.

In his early years he united with the Methodist church at Big Bone. He was married to Medline Inogle Sept. 20, 1876. To this union was born nine children, Charles Noble, of Edinburg, Ind., Will Noble, Frank Noble and Mrs. Charles Long, of Indianapolis, Ind., James Noble and Mrs. Clint Eggleston, of this county.

He leaves to mourn his death his children, twenty-three grandchildren six great-grand children, two brothers, one sister and many friends.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the residence of Clint Eggleston by Rev. Tomlin, after which the remains were interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Burlington. Philip Taliaferro, of Erlanger, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. Noble spent the greater part of his life in Boone county where he was highly respected by a great number of friends. He was a kind, gentle, lovable man, well liked by all who knew him. By nature he was quiet and rather reserved, but his friends found him witty and full of a quaint dry humor which made it a pleasure to know him and talk with him.

He was especially fond of children and through his death they lost one of their best friends. They were quick to make up with him and were always delighted to be in his presence.

He was of a cheerful disposition and was never known to do much fretting. He accepted life in his calm, deliberate manner, thankful for its happiness, uncomplaining of its trials, seeming to realize as only few of us do, the futility of worrying and fretting over our troubles.

Through the Recorder we wish to express our thanks to the friends and neighbors who stood so loyally by us during the bereavement of our father, Daniel G. Noble. We deeply appreciate their help and sympathy. Also we wish to thank Rev. Tomlin for his comforting words and Mr. Taliaferro for the very efficient and satisfactory manner in which he performed his services.

His Children.

Last Saturday was the first time in our lives that we were ashamed of the clothes we wore. We were in a nearby city and saw a robust mother walking along the street with her daughter, a girl about twelve years of age, who was wearing rolled-down stockings and dress above her knees, showing her bare limbs. It was a very cold day and a sharp wind was blowing that almost cut your jo-joes. To stem this severe weather we were dressed in heavy underclothes, heavy suit and overcoat, and were none too warm at that. It made us believe that the humane society was asleep at the main office--Falmouth Outlook.

PETERSBURG.

The teachers of the grade school gave an entertainment at the school last Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was good and the exercises were enjoyed by all present, and the parents feel well pleased with the able manner in which the children performed. The numbers were all good and the teachers deserve much credit. "The Tiny Tot Wedding," was especially enjoyed. The cast included little Miss Mary Bell Cropper, the bride, Master Boyd Mayhan, the groom; Marguerite McCord, Pauline White, Robert Lee Christy and Ralph Bradburn, attendants; Jane Walton flower girl, Margaret Hensley and Ira McGuire the parents and Geo. Burton Yates, minister. All were attired in suitable costumes, with pink and white cranshums. For this the children had received excellent training under Miss Myers. The songs by the H. S. "Glee Club" under supervision of Miss Carver were quite well rendered. The Welcome Address was given by Mrs. W. H. P. Holloway. Proceeds being used for the benefit of school—Stereoscopic Set.

Chas. Ruth is building a speed boat.

Mrs. Mary Helms is quite poorly with pleurisy.

Mrs. Bud Stamper is nursing Mrs. Chester Grant.

Mrs. Chester Grant is reported no better at this writing.

Many of the tobacco growers are nearly through stripping their crops. Lyman Christie, Charles Shinkle and Hugh McMullen, are on the sick list.

Miss Nellie Stephens, daughter of Esq. Wm. Stephens, is confined to her room with a cold.

Chas. Klopp and family, of Brookville, Indiana, are here visiting their parents and relatives.

The bazaar and oyster supper given last Saturday afternoon by the ladies of the Christian church, was quite a success. The receipts netted about $110.

N. W. Carpenter and wife, of near Burlington, were present at the Bazaar and oyster supper last Saturday, given by the ladies of the Christian church.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hodge (nee Bradburn) of this place, and Norman Jones, of Indianapolis, were married at the home of the groom's daughter in Indianapolis, last week.

James Aylor, from down in the bottoms, had the misfortune to get his leg broken by falling off of his wagon last week. His team gave a sudden lurch, throwing Mr. Aylor against the wagon bed, breaking his leg.

The remains of Wm. Mahan who died at Middletown, Ohio, last Friday, were brought here Sunday. Funeral services was held at the M. E. church at 2 o'clock p. m. Interment in Petersburg cemetery.

We hope better times are coming, for the negro said when he was sentenced for two years imprisonment the judge asked him what he had to say, he said: Boss make it three years. What for asked the judge? Cause then Harding and Morrow's time would expire and he would not have to steal chickens for a living.

KENTUCKY TURF'S GREAT PROGRESS.

In the Last Three Years the Kentucky Jockey Club Has Distributed in Stakes and Purses $3,479,655.00.

THOROUGHBRED YEARLINGS INCREASE IN VALUE.

[From the Lexington (Ky.) Thoroughbred Horse.]

It will be of particular interest to the breeders of thoroughbreds in this State, and to those persons everywhere who own and raise horses to review the situation in Kentucky and to show the progress that has been made in the last seven years. As the value of stallions and broodmares depends on the quality of their produce and the ability of that produce to win stakes and purses, a comparison of the present prosperous condition of the turf with other days when prices were low and breeders and turfmen everywhere had cause for complaint will be of value at this time.

Never in the history of the turf have thoroughbreds been so valuable as they are right now. The best barometer is the public market and the auction sales at Saratoga last August showed that, despite the general prostration of business, well bred horses with individuality brought the best average in many years. The highest price of the season at Saratoga was $21,000 for the brother to The Porter. Several others were sold for more than $10,000 each and a number of highly looking colts and fillies brought from $5,000 to $7,000 each. The market generally was steady and unspoiled, which is to say it was stable.

The prices were based on the probable earning power of these colts and fillies, and if organizations like the Kentucky Jockey Club did not offer generous stakes and purses, it would not be possible to market their yearlings advantageously. Nothing would it have been possible for S. C. Hildreth to have paid $125,000 for the brother to Alan of War, $150,000 for Icecube, or for Benjamin Black to have paid on a $75,000 valuation for the mighty Morvich, or for a number of others to have paid the large prices given for horses with capacity to hold their own in contests on the turf.

Fifteen years ago it was no uncommon thing in Kentucky for turfmen to run their horses for $400 purses. This year the Kentucky Jockey Club distributed in stakes and purses an average of $12,000 a day to the turfmen; no purse at Churchill Downs or Latonia was under $1,300, and many of them reaching $1,400 and $1,500 each. In 1905 the Kentucky Derby was worth $4,550. Since the existence of the Kentucky Jockey Club, which was organized three years ago, the Kentucky Derby was worth in 1919 over $20,000; in 1920 over $20,000, and in 1921 the Kentucky Jockey Club added $50,000 to the royal stake. All the other stakes on the roster of the Kentucky Jockey Club at Lexington, Churchill Downs and Latonia have been proportionately increased.

In the three years of its existence the Kentucky Jockey Club has distributed to the turfmen $3,479,665, the greater part of which sum was paid to citizens of Kentucky who own and breed race horses.

Since the Kentucky Legislature in 1906 created the State Racing Commission, we have had cleaner and better racing than ever before, and since the organization of the Kentucky Jockey Club we have had an era of prosperity for breeders and turfmen unequalled in the turf history of this State.

Here are the official figures for the past seventeen years, from 1905 to 1921, inclusive:

1905—	Total number of racing days . . . 155	1914—	Total number of racing days . . . 104

Instead of lamenting and grumbling about the illicit liquor traffic the people who voted it out should be active in having the laws enforced. Also, they should help to secure the enactment of laws to cure the defects that have been found in the statutes after the numerous tests have been made. Decisions of the higher courts annul many laws and change many others so as to leave them ineffectual. Let not the law-loving citizens give up the fight or lag in their duty. The big battle has been won but there are smaller ones on hand and ahead of us to complete the victory. Let all "dry" men and women assert themselves and the traffic will be stamped out. Public sentiment can suppress any movement or any set of outlaws.—Louisiana News.

Automobile thieves are getting so bold in some places, that they will jump a locked car outside the town until they can monkey with the lock. But so long as they don't try to kidnap the police, their things will be overlooked.

Perhaps the decision of the disarrangement delegates to observe prohibition is not due so much to respect for the law, as a desire to know what they said the night before.

GUNPOWDER

Several in this neighborhood will butcher their hogs this week. The weather is favorable.

Billy Lambly is enlarging his shop in order to be better equipped to accommodate his customers.

Having rented his farm G. H. Ar-rowood will move to Florence where he will engage in business.

Robt. Tamber sent a truck load of hogs to market last week, and the price received was satisfactory.

Mrs. Anna Daughters and daughter, of Covington, were the guests of Mrs. H. F. Vitz and Mr. Utr. last last Sunday.

Mrs. W. P. Utr was confined to her room a few days last week on account of a cold, but we are glad to say she is improving.

Cam Kennedy moved to Latonia last week where he will make his future home. We are sorry to lose so good a neighbor, but we wish him great success in his new field of labor.

The continued wet weather is setting the farmers back very greatly with their fall work. There is considerable corn in the field yet and the ground is so soft it is impossible to go in the field to gather it.

There was a fairly good sized crowd present at the supper given by the Ladies Aid Society of Hopeful church Thanksgiving evening, and they received quite a handsome little sum for which they extend their heartfelt thanks.

During a storm last week Edward Borders had seven hogs struck by lightning, while the lightning didn't kill them they were so badly crippled he butchered them the next day, and he found them so badly mangled he has to throw nine of the hams away, which was quite a loss. During the same storm lightning struck a shock of corn on Clem Kendall's farm and burned it.

One of the most pleasant affairs of the season was the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Rouse. A bountiful dinner, which consisted of all the delicacies of the season, was prepared by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. O. Rouse, Mrs. Dr. L. E. Rouse and Mrs. Frank Rouse. The table and parlor were very appropriately decorated with flowers, which added very greatly to the cheerfulness of the occasion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Boasong, and son, of Corvally, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Galbraith and children, of Walnut Hills; Dr. L. E. Rouse and family, of Ludlow; O. Rouse and family, of near Burlington; P. J. Allen and wife, Frank Rouse and family, of Piner; J. W. Williams and wife, Miss Bessie Talbot, Miss Frances Riddell, Mr. Lee Huey and this scribe and better half.

UNION.

W. W. Conner has been confined to his bed the past week.

John Dickerson has built a new garage on Main street for his filver.

Miss Addie Conner, of Cincinnati, spent the week-end with her father, who is sick.

Sue and Emily Bristow spent Saturday night with their uncle J. L. Frazier, of Elm Tree Place.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Holtzworth entertained Warner Senour wife and daughter to dinner, Thanksgiving day.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not a very large attendance at the school entertainment Thanksgiving eve.

What is supposed to have been a mad dog, as it was acting strange and having fits, was killed on the pike not far from here last week.

Alvie Breeden and Miss Willa Moore, Ernest Runyan and Miss Hazel Moore, were married by Rev. W. T. Spears, Thanksgiving day.

Tom Bradford passed to the great beyond Friday about 10 p. m. after a lingering illness of heart trouble, caused from the flu three years ago. He leaves a wife, son mother, sister and two brothers who will greatly miss him. To them we extend our sympathy.

IDLEWILD.

Master Bobby Gibbs has pneumonia.

J. B. Berkshire is remodeling the Mark Holiday house.

A. H. Norman is spending the week with relatives in Union.

Mrs. W. O. Rector is in Milan, Indiana, where she will take treatment for rheumatism.

Stevens Bros., exhibited some of their fine corn at Lawrenceburg corn show Saturday.

Mrs. J. S. Ashby entertained a number of guests with a delightful dinner Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. Hubert Cropper, of Bullittsville, is with her daughter, Mrs. Chester Grant, who is quite ill.

Miss Maud Norman Ashby left Sunday for Paris after a brief visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ashby.

Mr. Goebel Stephens and Miss Vera Wameyer, of Dayton, Ohio, spent Thanksgiving with Miss Nell Stephens.

Mrs. William Terrell Berkshire has closed her school on Woodford for two weeks on account of illness in her family.

Miss Frances Virginia Berkshire has been sick two weeks, but now convalescent and hopes to be back in school in a short time.

350 LICENSES ISSUED.

The County Clerk has issued about 350 licenses to hunters this year. This is about the same as last year.

LEGION NOTES

An escaped leopard which terrorized Kansas City and Independence, Mo., was reported headed for Parsons. American Legion men of the city assembled in their clubrooms, cleaned up the old army Springfield used by the firing squad and prepared for a defense of the town. It was learned then, however, that a reward of $50 was offered for the capture of the leopard alive. The guns were stacked and a Texas ranger of the post set out to rope the animal. He is still after it.

The American Legion post of Lawler, Ia., has completed a trade with the city authorities whereby the ex-soldiers act as the municipal fire department and the city in turn furnishes a clubhouse and overhead expenses for the Legion men. The service men already have had several baptisms of fire.

An ex-soldier has requested the Oklahoma Legion to canvass the country for Ollie Kendall, former doughboy of the 140 Inf., 35th Div. "He was my buddy in France. I borrowed a bunch of francs from him once. Winter is coming and he is married and has two children. I know he will need the money this winter and I want to pay him, where-ever he is," the service man said.

Chauncey M. Depue shocked the American Legion of New York for the other day by appearing to ask for his war service medal. He was but a name-sake of the world's greatest after-dinner speaker, however, who was a supply sergeant in the A. E. F.

Colorado and Texas led the lists of new posts chartered by the American Legion during the week-end of November 18, according to national headquarters. Eleven posts gained during the week raised the total to 10,672. Other states to add posts were Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

More than 3,000 unemployed ex-service men of Chicago will eat Christmas dinner on "Lightnin'" this year. With Fred Stone acting as stage manager and the veteran Frank Bacon as his assistant, the American Legion of Chicago is preparing the theatrical benefit.

With national prohibition an accomplished fact, the W. C. T. U. has turned over to the American Legion the remains of a war-time fund totalling $4,000. The Legion will use the money for the immediate relief of sick and wounded service men.

The United States army has been so reduced in number that when the American Legion requested a firing squad from Ross aviation field, California, the commanding officer had to haul down a balloon to get the number of men required. The shortage of personnel is so acute that men must be taken off duty to fill such requests.

The American Legion has begun a nation-wide canvass to determine who was the last soldier killed in action. The French government will erect a monument to the last to fall. A Legion post at New Haven, Conn., has put forward the name of Thomas J. Wainwright, Jr., killed on the morning of Armistice Day in an outpost engagement.

Gamellet, the 60 pound turkey for President Harding's Thanksgiving Day dinner, was sent from Crystal Springs, Miss., in a profusely decorated crate by the American Legion of that city. The whole town turned out to bid the bird goodbye. Gammet's chaperone to Washington was M. H. Daily, prohibition director for the state of Mississippi.

Testifiers for the Spartans. The "barbaric battle" was fought Nov. 17, when a crew of Argentinians and Argives endeavored to cut off a Spartan ship, under Archibaldus III. In a narrow draw in Lacada, they were repulsed with heavy loss, and not a single Spartan was killed, whence their engagement came to be called the "barbaric battle." Literary Digest.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

This is the time of year when parsnips are at their best. Some like them cooked with vegetables in a boiled dinner; others like them cooked tender, cut in halves lengthwise and fried brown in good fat, while there are others who think a parsnip fritter is the dish of excellence. To prepare the fritters the vegetable is cooked, then skinned and mashed very fine, seasoned well and a teaspoonful of the mashed parsnip dipped into a fritter batter, then fried in deep fat. These fritters are usually served with some kind of sweet sauce like hot maple syrup.

Cheese Souffle.—Prepare a thick white sauce using one-fourth cupful of flour and fat with one cupful of milk; when cooked and thick, cool and add one-half cupful of grated cheese, three egg yolks, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice. Mix carefully and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Turn into a well-greased baking dish and set this dish into a pan of hot water; bake in a moderate oven until firm in the center.

Oysters a la Poulet.—Prepare a poulet sauce by adding one and one-fourth cupfuls of milk to six tablespoonfuls of flour, stirring and mixing well before cooking, then cool slightly and add two well-beaten eggs. Take one pint of oysters, toss in a pan until the edges curl, then drain and add to one-half cupful of mushrooms, or the same amount of celery cut in small pieces, one chopped pimiento, one hard-boiled egg also chopped, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter seasoned with salt and pepper, and serve in cream sauce, made by cutting bread into oblongs and hollowing out the centers; then brush with butter and brown in the oven or toast under the gas flame. Decorate the tops with minced parsley.

How John Dory Got His Spots.

The dory is one of the mackerel family with a highly notable ancestry. It is a name peculiar to the form and color, but some have marked the two vivid red spots on his sides. Tradition says that it was from a dory that St. Peter took the coin with which to pay the tribute, and that the two spots mark the place where he hid the fish between his thumb and finger.

Success and Genius

A common mistake among the young and inexperienced is that success in life comes only as the reward of flaming genius. The epochal events of the world, like the great accomplishments of nature, have been the result of slow but constant growth. Be thrifty with your time. Wasted hours are lost and gone forever, but the hours given to constructive labor or study will remain as faithful friends to help and strengthen you through all the years of your life.

"OLD HOME TOWN"

Remember Those Who Still Dream of Childhood Days.

Scattered through the cities and states are hundreds of former residents of this community whose hearts are still within. Their interests and their homes are in the far-away spot, but the fond recollections are of Boone county.

Does mother, does father live in the next state, or the next, or perhaps away out there on the Pacific coast? What so easy for them to meet with the friends of old—the folks they know best and love most—as to take the home paper regularly? Not a copy now and then, but a welcome visitor every week? In your next letter, give them the benefit of this suggestion; or, if you like, send in a subscription for them as a Xmas gift.

Is Bill, or Joe, or Mildred off there in the crowded city where every one is for himself and old Nick takes the hindmost. The paper from home REGULARLY EVERY WEEK will be a friend to him or her. It will call to his mind the friends, the scenes of people and joys of childhood, the better things of life. No young man or young woman in the city will go far wrong who is a regular reader of the news from the home community.

Come in and subscribe for the men and women and the boys and girls who have gone away from us, only temporarily, we hope.

If you cannot subscribe; if you think they would rather subscribe themselves, send them a copy of this paper with this article marked.

Or send us their names and we will take care of it for you.

OLD SELF A RASCAL.

Someone has said that old self was a grime old rascal when you found him out thoroughly. There was, he says, some truth in the statement however, we believe that to improve the morals and the society of the community the best place is for each individual member to begin with himself, and the rest of the neighborhood will begin to improve.

After all, there are more good people in the world than we think and there is more of a disposition to give help to a fallen brother. As a rule there is less strife between the churches today so far as the general membership is concerned, than formerly and on this side of 1920, we will see in most towns only one or two churches with a few attending services and no allusion made to creed as in the case in some sections today.

The work of reform must be done by each individual in his own life and heart and when he is discovered to be right himself the world about him will grow better.

REMEMBER 1917-18.

November was the wettest month of the year, so far. More than eight and one-half inches of rain fell during the month. The average for November is about four and one-half inches. Not only was the month a wet one, but the temperature for the month was above normal. There were no hard freezes during the month and the harder vegetation was not killed. The warm, wet weather was beneficial to grain and new grass.

Because we have had such a mild November some people are inclined to the belief that we are not going to have much winter. Still it is a little too early yet to make any predictions worth while. Remember the winter of 1917-18? Real winter began on the seventh day of December and for nearly eight weeks there were few days without zero temperatures, while 16 to 18 degrees below zero was recorded on the coldest days. The snow that fell that winter lay on the ground for weeks and traffic on the highways was almost completely blocked. It is too early yet to make any forecasts worth while, but most of us are hoping that such another winter as the one mentioned will not come this year. It is also well to remember that officially winter does not begin until the 21st day of December.

CHARLES M. RIGGS, DEAD.

Charles M. Riggs, aged 75, passed away at his home in Erlanger, on Thursday evening, Dec. 1st. He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Miss Eva, of Erlanger, and one son, Albert Riggs, of Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Riggs for several years was deputy assessor of Kenton county. Funeral services were held at the Christian church in Florence, Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Florence cemetery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Philip Telford.

Fresh mauls, sparrowbills and hawks are now on the bill of fare.

MARY A. MCCOOL.

Mrs. Mary A. McCool died at Madison hospital Nov. 22, at the age of ninety-three years, three months, twenty-eight days. She leaves four sons to mourn the loss of a dear mother, Charley and George of this city, Fred of Cincinnati, O., and John of Burlington, Ky. The remains were brought to the home of her son Charley, on Main street, where the funeral services were conducted on Thursday afternoon by Rev. C. D. Wilson of the M. E. church, of which she was a member.

The body was taken to the Petersburg cemetery and laid to rest beside her husband and son, who preceded her to the great beyond some thirty-five years ago.

She lived over forty years at Petersburg, and was at one time a resident of Lawrenceburg.

It was the privilege of seeing the wilderness blossom as a rose, from oxen-drawn vehicles to an automobile—what a transition! Still a greater awaiter on the farther shore. She had been a good, kind daughter, a faithful wife, a true loving mother and a friend and neighbor should be. She has only gone to her reward.—Lawrenceburg Press.

WILLIAM MAHAN.

William Mahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mahan, died at his home in Middletown, O., Wednesday, Nov. 23. He was born at Petersburg, Ky., Nov. 1, 1871, and lived in that vicinity for thirty-five years, when he moved to Lawrenceburg and made his home for a few years, after which he moved to Middletown, where he resided to the day of his death. His body was brought to Petersburg for burial and was buried Sunday afternoon.

FIRST THOUGHT IS FOR SCHOOLS

Kentucky's Woman Legislator Gives Her Views of Serving the State

The first woman who will sit in a Kentucky body of lawmakers has no intention of revolutionizing the government of her State. Mrs. Mary Elliott Flannery, Cattlesburg, Boyd county, a Democrat has a short and a conservative program for her part in the coming session of the Legislature.

Mrs. Flannery defeated Dan Vose, Cattlesburg, Republican, by three hundred votes in a legislative district which normally gives 1,200 Republican votes. She thinks she can repeat, and intends making such a good representative that her constituents will not regret their experiment.

Mrs. Flannery is free from the objectionable features urged against women in politics by anti-suffragists. She is cautious, slow to express an opinion on a subject new to her, and when she has decided she is able to support her decision with as good an argument and as much logic as the men legislators.

Schools Her Hobby.

Her first interest and the question near her heart is Kentucky schools. With her the need of the schools is a tragedy; to supply that need is the biggest question in Kentucky. She tells why she holds so dear the early training of the school days. She has four children of her own, three of whom have finished, and one in his second year at high school.

Mrs. Flannery is not a candidate for office before the Legislature. The speakership does not attract her. "I realize I am but one of a hundred, and because I am a woman I have no desire to 'hog' the game, or any idea that I deserve additional honors."

Her victory in a district normally Republican came as a result of hard work. She did not speak during the campaign, but used advertising in the papers, and made a personal contact campaign. "I don't know why they voted for me, unless they liked me and believed in me," she said.

Mrs. Flannery is a newspaper woman, having served as social correspondent for the Ashland Daily Independent for several years. This work, she explained had been carried on in connection with her home work, "for my home has always come first."

ELECTED OFFICERS

Boone County Chapter of the American Red Cross held a meeting at the court house last Saturday afternoon, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: B. F. Bedinger, of Union, Chairman; Miss Eugenia Riley, of Union, Secretary; and C. S. Kelly, of Burlington, Treasurer. Members of Walton, Richmond, Beaver, Burlington and Bellevue Auxiliaries were the only ones present at the meeting.

MUCH CORN LOST.

On account of high water many thousands of bushels of corn have been lost by the farmers on the Indiana side of the river. It is claimed that it has been twenty years since the Ohio reached as high a stage during the month of November.

BURLEY GROWERS GET CHARTER IN N. C.

Largest Co-operative in America Incorporated in North Carolina.—Sapiro Will Return To Kentucky About December 9th.

Lexington, Ky.—The Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, controlling nearly 100,000,000 pounds of burley tobacco and with 50,000 members, the largest Co-operative association ever organized in America, has been incorporated in the State of North Carolina.

News of the incorporation of the association was received from New York in a telegram to Organization Manager Joseph Passonneau from Aaron Sapiro, attorney, who drew the marketing contract. The incorporation was effected at Raleigh, North Carolina, and under the laws of that State, which is expected to be at the coming session of the general assembly, the Association will be re-incorporated in Kentucky.

Mr. Sapiro will return to Kentucky Dec. 9th, to advise in other matters of detail in connection with the period of his organization and the election which will be followed by the district meetings of delegates, which will choose directors for the twenty-two districts. These directors will handle the affairs of the 50,000 members of the association and the sale of their tobacco. Mr. Sapiro probably will remain in Kentucky until the association has named its directors and is actually ready for business.

Notice has gone out to every tobacco grower who signed the contract that the association had been "duly and legally incorporated" and "each grower would receive instructions in due course telling him where to deliver his tobacco to the association. The notice is signed by Robert W. Bingham, chairman of the organization committee, and Joseph Passonneau, organization manager.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

You are hereby notified that the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association has been duly and legally incorporated, and you will receive instructions in due course, telling you where to deliver your tobacco to the Association.

Dated at Lexington, Ky., this 30th day of November, 1921.

Robert Passonneau, Organization Manager.

Joseph Bingham, Chairman of Organization Committee.

HIS WORK APPRECIATED.

Hon. A. B. Rouse is in receipt of the following letter from Mr. Gray Washington representative of Farm Bureau Federation:

Hon. Arthur B. Rouse, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: The American Farm Bureau Federation wishes to express the appreciation of farmers for your support of the 50 percent surtax provision of the tax bill.

Our farmers are confident that their Representatives realize the importance of considering these questions from the farmer's viewpoint and that by united action they can greatly hasten the return of a more happy situation in the farm communities and thereby restore national prosperity more quickly.

WHY CHILDREN PLAY HOCKEY.

Formerly children who "played hockey" as the old phrase goes, were up to go fishing, or do some stunt outside of their daily lives. But nowadays truancy is mostly the result of neglect. The Cincinnati school authorities have made a careful study of this subject, establishing a special school for children of this type.

Such absences from school, according to their investigations are very apt to occur where the mothers have to work outside the home. A woman will leave early in the morning to do a day's work of washing or cleaning, and before she goes she makes the child promise to go to school.

But frequently the child will break his promise and play truant, mostly as the result of a spirit of indifference and dislike of discipline. This Cincinnati school gets good results with these children by developing a sense of honor. It finds that once the former truants acquire the habit of constant attendance, they enjoy coming and make no further trouble.

At least 20 poultry raisers in Crittenden county are expected to attend the demonstration during the coming year in connection with the County Agent John R. Spencer and the College of Agriculture extension division. The demonstration will be designed to show the best methods of housing, feeding and managing farm birds and the increased profits which result from such a system.

LACK OF PLANT FOOD REDUCES CROP YIELDS.

Lack of available plant food, which is the greatest single factor responsible for the low average crop yields of Kentucky farms, can be remedied best by the use of farm manure and commercial phosphate coupled with the growing of legumes and the practice of green manuring, according to suggestions by crop specialists at the College of Agriculture. Supplying the necessary plant food should increase the State's present average corn yield of 26 bushels an acre to 40 or 45 bushels an acre and the average wheat yield from 13 bushels an acre to 20 or more bushels, they say.

"Either nitrogen or phosphorus, or both, are the limiting factors in determining yields on practically every farm in Kentucky," R. E. Nicholson, a member of the college agronomy department said. "Phosphorus usually must be bought in the form of superphosphate, but it is seldom profitable to do so, which is expected to be at the coming session of the general assembly, the Association will be re-incorporated in Kentucky."

"Since manure is relatively rich in nitrogen, it is an excellent form of fertilizer to use with phosphate which every farmer can purchase on an economical basis. Manure and phosphate, when used together on soils needing both phosphorus and nitrogen, will give greater returns than either is used alone."

"Aside from its fertility value, manure has other qualities which give it an important place in improving soils. Chief among these is its ability to improve the physical qualities of soils. This can be noticed in the amount of tillage necessary to put a field in condition for planting before and after it has been well manured. The organic matter it supplies loosens the tight soil and gives it the desired granular structure. In addition to this manure stimulates the activity of soil bacteria and aids them in making plant food available."

SURVEY

Covering Three Years in Corn Belt, Shows Best Feeding Pays Better Than Selling Grain.

Washington.—An investigation into methods and costs of best feeding in the corn belt, conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture, covering three years, and 906 farms, shows interesting facts concerning the present status of the industry. The man who feeds his corn, marking his crops as he feeds them, and therefore, justified in expecting a return equivalent to average market prices for the feeds. Even if he sometimes falls short of such a return he has not necessarily experienced a loss.

The corn belt farmer who sells grain sometimes receives more for his crop than the one who feeds it to cattle, but on the average, for a period of years except in certain limited areas, the man who puts the feed into steers and returns the manure to the land is the one who comes out ahead. The conclusion is based on feeding in Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska and Missouri.

The figures which contain the results of this investigation were obtained from a large number of farms and from several agricultural experiment stations in the Middle West.

One phase of the work deals with the cost of maintaining a herd of breeding cows for producing feeder cattle. It was found that feed represented 69 per cent of the cost of keeping a cow for one year, while the other 31 per cent was for interest, labor, equipment and incidentals.

BOTH AMENDMENTS LOST

No. 1 Lost by Majority of 52,123 and No. 2 Swamped by 36,526.

Frankfort, Ky.—Constitutional amendment No. 1 to take the office of State Superintendent of Schools out of politics, was defeated by a majority of 52,123 in a total vote of 224,537, and amendment No. 2 by 36,526 in a total vote of 222,020.

All of the counties except Casey, where the amendments were omitted from the ballot by the County Clerk, had reported to Secretary of State Fred M. Vaughn, returning 86,297 votes for the first amendment and 138,330 against it, 91,717 for the second amendment and 128,573 against it.

Feeding is receiving increased attention from Crittenden county, a report from County Agent J. R. Spencer states. Several farmers in the county are planning to stage a poultry raising contest, and are planning to stage a poultry raising contest, and are planning to stage a poultry raising contest.

EUGENE ELBERT KELLY

Passes Away After a Long Illness at His Home in Burlington, Sunday.

Eugene Elbert Kelly, the youngest child of James E. and Lucinda Kelly, was born near Waterloo, Boone county, Nov. 23, 1873. He was of a family of thirteen children, four of whom are living. He was married to Bessie Walton, Nov. 7th, 1891. To this union three children were born, Mrs. Earl Smith and Misses Alberta and Kathryn. Mr. Kelly engaged in the mercantile business in Bellevue for several years, and about thirteen years ago he purchased the stock of general merchandise from Clutier & Bros., in Burlington, and conducted that business until failing health compelled him to sell the store and retire, which he did in June, 1920. His spirit returned to him and he gave it Sunday afternoon, Dec. 4th, 1921 at 2:15. He is survived by his widow, three children and a number of friends and relatives to mourn his death.

He was a kind and devoted husband and father, and at all times looked to the happiness and pleasure of his family. He had been in failing health for some time, but his health was not so bad as it appeared, and while his death was not unexpected yet when it was announced a pall of sorrow spread over his home town.

Mr. Kelly was a member of the K. of P. and I. O. O. F. orders. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Baptist church, of which he was a member, and had been Superintendent of the Sunday school, by Rev. R. F. DeMoisey, his pastor, and Rev. J. W. Campbell, after which the remains were interred in the I. O. O. F. cemetery just east of town.

Frank C. S., Courtney and Howell Kelly, Kirby and L. T. Clow, nephews of the deceased, were pallbearers. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral which was conducted faultlessly. E. E. Kelly will be remembered by his friends and associates, and all extend to the family their heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of sadness and distress. The floral remembrances were beautiful and showed the esteem in which the deceased was held by his friends.

UNPOPULAR WINTER.

Not many poets have written verses in praise of winter. The season of snow and cold rain and high winds and leafless trees is not popular. And yet the community's best work is done in the winter. In summer the churches close up, or hold sessions with a small attendance. Schools and colleges shut down for nearly three months, often more. Civic enterprises are suspended. But when the chill days of late fall bring winter's tonic into the air, the enterprises of progress, education, and development reach their climax. People can work better and study harder in cool weather, and they have more surplus energy with which to take hold of community projects. The good old summer time may inspire the sentimentalists and the song writers, but if you want to get good things done, you must look to plain, homely, rugged and frequently surly old winter.

Developing Public Beauty.

There are many cities in which individual property owners have done much to improve their places, and which are on the whole attractive cities. But where there has been no concerted effort to develop beautiful features, such places are not to be lacking in park places. No one has had the foresight to take naturally attractive pieces of land, and develop their pleasing features, and plant more trees and shrubbery and create beauty spots.

Also a great deal needs to be done in most towns toward tree planting along the streets. Railroad lines in most towns pass through a region of poorly kept back yards, which should be beautified. Most towns have ugly and tumble down buildings on main lines of motor travel that should be removed.

WILL HAVE A SALE.

Owen Bethel has advertised in this issue a sale of a number of cows, horses, hogs, corn, oats, wheat, farming implements and a large amount of other personal property. The sale will be held at the Henry Snyder farm near Buellville, on Tuesday, Dec. 20th, 1921, beginning at 12 o'clock noon. Mr. Bethel will have to Walton so that his children may attend the high school at that place.

FIRST WINTER WEATHER

The chances on awakening from their slumber on a Sunday morning were confronted with two inches of snow that covered old Mother Earth. The first serious touch of wintery weather of the year.

MANY HOGS KILLED

If the weather is favorable there will be many hogs slaughtered during the next two weeks.

I DETEST A QUITTER.

Shelbyville, Ky., Nov. 29.—A mass meeting of tobacco growers in the burley co-operative association was held at the court house this afternoon, with more than 300 members present, to determine the method of nominating the ten delegates to which Shelby county is entitled. It was voted to hold precinct mass meetings Saturday afternoon, December 3, at 2 o'clock. Each precinct meeting will nominate one delegate. The names of the twenty delegates thus nominated will be printed on ballots which will be mailed from the Lexington Headquarters to each member, who will vote for the ten he prefers and then mail his ballot to County Headquarters in Shelbyville not later than December 12. These ten delegates will then meet and elect a County Director, who will be a member of the district organization.

The names of the delegates elected Saturday must be sent to Chairman C. L. Walton at Shelbyville not later than 5 o'clock the same afternoon, in order to get his name on the ballot.

The man who acted as precinct chairman in the recent campaign will serve in the capacity at the precinct mass meetings, which will be held at the regular voting places, or in the school houses in each precinct.

The above plan, although I had not seen it at the time of meeting, was what I earnestly contended for at our convention upon last Tuesday, but the convention declared me out of order as the meeting was called to nominate delegates and not to discuss the better plan of electing. And that they were taking this short cut because of the lack of time. Shelby, a much larger county, had the time to elect in a true democratic way by the suffrage of the people.

Let me represent our seven delegates by A. B. C. D. E. F. and G. A being the best man fully equipped to fill the position but from a small precinct, and G. not so good. A man from the larger precinct receives the majority, where elected by precincts the best man in each precinct is elected, and then they in their election recognizing A to be a man of ability, he is nominated though he may live in a small precinct. I am not writing in a spirit of criticism but out of a heart of love for the best interest of the association. I was in the old pool and I am in this association and expect to stay until the last shell from the last cannon is fired. If this association fails I will join to meet next. I know we are on the right track. No doubt there will be mistakes made and because of that fact we should stick the closer and work the harder to rectify the mistakes. Organization is our only salvation from starvation prices. So I urge all to support the plan offered. Although it may not be just in accord with your opinion, until we can formulate a better plan. So I urge every voter to vote for the men best qualified to fill the place regardless of your personal friendships. The organization is above personal friendships or even personal interest. So let everything else be subservient to the success of our organization, and those who have not yet signed the contract I earnestly entreat you to sign at once these positions of trust and get a living price for our tobacco.

Respectfully,

C. C. SLEET.

CARE OF PUBLIC PROPERTY.

The tendency of children to commit acts of depredation and mischief on public property is noted in many places. The West Chicago park commissioners have recently been fighting this habit, noting the destruction to trees, shrubs, flowers, lawns, buildings, park furniture, etc.

They addressed a letter to all schools, churches, and other organizations located near their parks, asking these agencies to try to instill into their children a love for the beautiful, and to promote the feeling that they should give to public property the same care that they would give to objects in their homes. As a result that kind of damage has greatly declined, and the children seem more careful and watchful.

A RECORD BREAKER.

Editor Recorder: Dec. 3, 1921.

The weather during November was a record breaker. More thunderstorms with lightning damage than during the last twenty-eight November. Slightly warmer than the average, with the smallest amount of ice. A fall during different days. There was 10 1/2 inches of rain fall, with very little snow.

TERMED MOTHER OF STATES.

Virginia was termed the mother of states from the great number of states which were carved out of the territory originally included under the name Virginia, and also as being the first settled and oldest of the original 13 states of the Union. The states created out of what was once Virginia territory are Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. During the Civil War the northern part of the seceded state, which part remained loyal to the Union, was separated from Virginia and admitted into the Union as a separate state under the name of West Virginia.

RICHWOOD.

(Too Late For Last Week.)

Hog killings are now due. Rabbits and quail are scarce now.

A great many have been killed. Walter Grubbs and George Burkett took a bird hunt with Omer Cleek, Jr., last Tuesday.

Mrs. Jane Belle Northcutt has returned to her home after several weeks visit at Erlanger.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills, of the Grand Hotel, Cincinnati, spent Sunday with Mrs. P. P. Hunter.

Rev. Lee and son, of Owenton, spent several days with Mr. Gray, on Dixie Highway, last week. While there Mr. Lee lost a valuable black hind puppy.

Jack Hauer, of Erlanger, was shot last week by some hunting companions on the D. B. Robbins farm. He was shot in the arm, hand and leg, but not seriously.

Carey Carpenter was taken seriously ill Friday and was taken to Speers Hospital Saturday, where it was found he had appendicitis, but by quick treatment it is thought no operation will be necessary.

GUNPOWDER

The tobacco crop is beginning to move.

Mrs. Media Tanner was confined to her room a few days last week on account of illness.

Mr. George Arrowood is now a resident of Florence, having moved the first of last week.

Harve Rouse, who is here looking after his farm and other interests, will leave in a few days for his home in Spring Place, Ga.

One attraction last Sunday was an airplane which landed on Butler Carpenter's farm near Florence. Quite a number of people went to see it.

J. C. Hankins and wife, Charles Riley and family, of Hebron, and this scribe and wife, broke bread with Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Allen, last Sunday.

Robert Rouse, of Big Bone neighborhood, passed here on Thursday of last week enroute to the Cincinnati stock yards where he purchased a truck load of cattle.

Last Sunday had very much the appearance of winter. About 2 inches of snow fell Saturday night and the thermometer registered about 28 above Sunday morning.

L. T. Utz, who is seriously ill, was taken to Christ Hospital last Saturday where he will have a surgical operation performed. On account of the exposure he underwent while in France his trouble has gradually been growing worse ever since he came home. He went over the top twice and would have gone over again if the Armistice had not been signed. We wish him a successful operation and a speedy recovery.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

He that has character need have no fear of his condition. Character will wear condition after it. — H. W. Beecher.

SOME MAIN DISHES.

Here are a few dishes, some of which may be used as the main dish for the meal.

Mexican - Ham.

—Take a slice of ham cut twice as thick as that used for ordinary frying, rub a small teaspoonful of mustard into its surface with a tablespoonful of brown sugar. Lay this in the bottom of a large casserole or baking pan. Pare and slice thin sufficient potatoes for the family. Cover the ham to the depth of two or three inches. Dot with bits of butter unless the ham has plenty of fat on the edges. Sprinkle with pepper and cover with milk as you would prepare escalloped potatoes. Bake in a moderate oven for two hours. The ham will be tender and delicious and can be cut with a fork; the potatoes will be seasoned to a turn and the family has a one-dish dinner which will serve, if the family is small, for two meals.

Those who have prepared them say that dried fruits make more delicious butters than the fresh fruit. For apple butter take the dried apples, washed and soaked over night in cider or water, then cook them in the same liquid until tender. A fireless cooker is a good place to cook it in. Add about one-third of the bulk in sugar. Cook as thick as desired; more sugar may be added if liked sweeter. A delightful change is made in blending different flavors such as apricots and apples, using two-thirds the quantity of apple to one-third of apricots.

Cottage Cheese Pie.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; in it cook two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add two-thirds of a cupful of honey or sugar, one cupful of cottage cheese pressed through a ricer, the yolks of three eggs beaten light, the grated rind of a lemon or orange; mix thoroughly and turn into a pastry lined plate in the same manner as for custard pie. Bake until firm. Beat the whites of three eggs light, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar and spread the meringue over the pie. Dredge with a teaspoonful of sugar and let cool in a moderate oven until the meringue is lightly tinted. Serve the same day it is made.

WEEK'S NEWS.

Anyway if the farmers burn their corn they aren't going to make any whisky out of it.

Allopathic, homopathic, and osteopathic physicians are not in so much demand now as the beeropathic school.

The people who fail to replace the cap on their gasoline tank, are apt to wish later that they had put their thinking cap on.

Among those who complain about the price of coal are those who forget to buy the same until the price reaches the highest point.

The Congressmen deny that they neglect their duty by taking a recess, as they had to go home to shake hands with their constituents.

Receptions are now being given to the successful football players, but the prize winning students are mostly sitting up in their rooms alone.

So far none if the Congressmen has put up any claim to be enrolled in the Hall of Fame as the result of his work in framing the new tax law.

There are many people, who if called upon by their country, will sacrifice their neighbor's sons in order to maintain the open door in Asia.

Don't hurry about buying your Christmas gifts. On the day before the holiday there are always some left over that everybody else has rejected.

Everybody has to help pay the $75,000,000 federal appropriation for highways, but as no one knows when he is taxed for it, everyone favors the tax.

The autumn is claimed to be a good time to paint, and the looks of many of the girls on the city streets indicate that a good many fall coats have been put on.

After taxing business so heavily that people shut down factories and tie up their money in government bonds, many folks think it is queer they are out of work.

It is claimed that men should not marry until they can support a family in good shape, but others have more confidence in the earning capacity of their wives.

The farmers complain that they are nearly bankrupt, and yet the price of their land has been so high that a young man can buy a farm only with great difficulty.

A lot of people will kick about the cost of shoes, and then go into some store and buy the latest novelties which cost some manufacturers thousands of dollars to fit up for.

Formerly a doctor had to show up his certificates of graduation from medical schools and hospitals before he could get practice but now there is a large element that is more interested to know how he feels about medicinal liquor.

The 50 acres of land owned by the Rankin heirs on the Dixie Highway, was sold last Monday at the court house door to one of the heirs for $8,000. This same land sold for $8,250 about two months ago.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

"Young man," said the elderly gentleman sternly, "this is a day-old paper you've sold me. Do you know what may happen to you if you happen to cultivate habits of deception?"

"Can dat stuff," retorted the newboy. "Dis is a ten-year-old nickel you handed me, but I'm a sport and I ain't kickin'."—American Legion Weekly.

THE AUTOMOBILE CLUBS.

The Automobile Association of America is making an effort to increase the membership of existing automobile clubs and to start new ones in many small cities and counties. Certain lines of work are likely to be neglected unless automobile owners combine to push them.

Theoretically everyone believes in improving the highways. But practically a great deal of popular inertia has to be overcome. Extravagant road building never pays, but it does not pay to put up with a miserable road for heavy traffic, when the interest and sinking fund charges on a better issue would be far less than the savings made in hauling products over a good road.

Automobile clubs are needed to study the road situation in every county, to investigate what roads would pay for improvement and what would not. And when such a survey has been made, they should carry on a constant campaign of organization to educate the voters up to the advantage of a practical and prudent scheme of development.

Automobile speeders can be curbed only by co-operation of other automobilists. There will never be police forces sufficient to get after all the speed fiends. Motorists, for the protection of their own lives and property, should unite to report offenders and create an influence in favor of punishing reckless driving.

The automobile clubs have been useful in protecting motorists from oppressive and burdensome requirements which some people have tried to put through the legislatures of Kentucky and other states. This does not mean that motorists should avoid their just responsibilities. The economical and safe use of cars and trucks depends upon the condition of the roads and the way the public use them, so it is well worth putting in a little time and money to protect this important interest.

MRS. NOAH CLORE, DEAD.

Mrs. Noah Clore, aged 84 years, passed away Sunday Dec. 4th, at the home of her daughter Mrs. John Lewis, No. 77 Oak Street, Ludlow. Funeral services were held at the late residence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning Dec. 6th, after which the remains were taken to the Florence cemetery for interment by Undertaker Philip Taliaferro. She is survived by two sons, Morgan and Joe, of Erlanger, and two daughters Mrs. E. H. Rigs, of Erlanger and Mrs. John Lewis, of Ludlow, all by her first marriage with H. P. Mitchell. Later in life she was married to Noah Clore.

ODD BELIEF STILL EXISTS.

In good old times some people love to talk about there was an established custom and belief that backward children would be cured by making an incision in certain parts of their ears if the operation was made at the right time of the moon, and the belief persists in some parts of rural England.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Clements and son David, of Hathaway neighborhood, motored through to Danville, Ky., Friday, Dec. 1st, and spent several days with their son Edward, who is attending school there. This is his fifth year and is doing nicely, and is well and happy.

Misses Elma Allen, Maple Moore, Polly Bean, of Lexington, and Mr. Robt. Brockway, of New York, spent the week-end with Miss Ruth Kelly. They were also the guests of Miss Nell Martin Sunday. They made the trip from Lexington in an automobile.

W. Lee Cropper and family are now residents of Burlington, having moved to the property he purchased recently of D. R. Blythe. Mr. Cropper and family are welcomed as citizens and we hope his residence in Burlington will be permanent.

Philip Taliaferro, the Erlanger Undertaker, was in Burlington, one day last week, and left a series of advertisements with the Recorder—read his ad. in another column.

LEGION NOTES

The biggest potatoes of the year, weighing from two to five pounds each, were grown on the Farm American Legion Special, from Minneapolis, Minn., to the Pacific coast. The "spuds" were so big that they required an hour and a half in the baking.

USPS

Training allowances for sick and wounded ex-service men will not be reduced twenty per cent according to C. E. Forges, director of the Veterans Bureau, who has informed the American Legion that this move never has been considered. Ninety per cent of the 400,000 disabled men now being trained receive $100 a month.

USPS

Three French brides confronted Marshal Foch when the American Legion Special stopped in St. Maries, Idaho. They were crying. "We love America, but oh how we are lonesome for France," they sobbed.

"Never forget France," Foch replied, "but you must love your new home and honor your husbands."

But the Marshal had to blow his nose hard.

USPS

Ex-service men of the World War who want to be first, second or third class U. S. postmasters are to be given a five per cent advance on their civil service ratings and credit for time spent in service. Harding's executive order putting the provision into effect was recently promulgated at the instance of the American Legion.

USPS

The high school graduate with the best athletic record in Elkhorn, Wisconsin, will receive annually an American Legion medal, gift of the local Legion post.

USPS

Fifteen cents buys a meal for the needy ex-service men and families at the American Legion restaurant, Toledo. The menu includes steak or chops, potatoes, bread, butter and coffee. The difference between the cost of the food and the price at the counter is made up by employed Legionnaires.

USPS

When Marshal Foch, now on a tour of the country with the American Legion, returns to New York Dec. 14 to sail for France on the liner "Paris," he will have traveled 16,000 miles, visited 42 states, and stopped at 200 cities and towns. He made his 245th speech at Richmond, Va., before starting West and had received the degree of LL. D. from 21 American universities.

USPS

"If pardon is granted to Dobs or others fairly convicted of treason or sedition during a time when the nation's very life was at stake, the lives of those boys who lie on the fields of France and those who lie broken in hospitals have indeed been sacrificed in vain," Hanford MacNider, commander of the American Legion, has telegraphed President Harding, requesting that "no leniency be shown those traitors who stabbed us in the back while we were giving our all to this country."

USPS

Following a series of shooting scrapes in and near Wichita, in which two men were shot to death and four others dangerously wounded, 500 members of the American Legion volunteered to aid in preserving order in case of emergency. The Legionnaires will be available for police duty immediately if the trouble with the gangsters becomes acute.

USPS

Kansas City is soon to have a municipal airport as a result of the interest in aviation aroused by the recent successful air meet, held in connection with the American Legion convention. Action is now being taken by a committee of members of the Flying Club of Kansas City to find a suitable field.

STATION WINNINGS ARE REGARDED AS ADVANCE.

Lexington, Ky.—Winnings of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station at the recent International Livestock Exposition represent one of the major accomplishments of the institution in its program for improved livestock in the State, according to E. S. Good, head of the animal husbandry department.

More than 20 awards, including the championship on a Hampshire wether and the first prize on a pen of three junior yearling Berkshire barrows, all of which were won in large classes containing animals from the most prominent professional breeders and exhibitors from all parts of the United States, are regarded as a distinct accomplishment by station animal husbandrymen.

The pen of three Berkshire barrows which were awarded the blue ribbon is a product of the station work in breeding and feeding swine, all three of them having been bred and raised on the station farm. In winning the first prize the animals defeated those from some of the most successful exhibitors and breeders in the United States.

The Hampshire wether, which was awarded the championship for wethers of his breed, was declared to be one of the most evenly covered and best fitted Hampshires at the Exposition by livestock authorities who viewed him.

Among the prizes captured by livestock from the station farm were the following ones:

Eighth in senior yearling Shorthorn steers, third and fourth in junior yearling Berkshire barrows, first on a pen of three junior yearling Berkshire barrows, second and sixth on senior Berkshire pigs, third and sixth on junior Berkshire pigs, second on a pen of senior Berkshire pigs, second and seventh on the offspring of one sire, first, fifth, eighth and ninth on yearling Hampshire wethers, 4th and 8th on Hampshire lambs, third on a pen of three Hampshire lambs, champion Hampshire wether, 7th on Cheviot wether and third in the mutation improvement class.

THE AMERICAN VALUATION PLAN.

The worst feature of the Fordney tariff bill, over which this procrastinating and factional Congress will spend most of its time this winter, is the so-called American valuation plan. Here is a scheme that proposes to do away with the method of assessing tariff treaties that has been in force for 100 years, and which long ago reached a point where it worked smoothly and secured substantial justice.

The proposed plan of taxing imported goods by a duty based on the valuation at which similar and competing products are sold in this country, will to a large extent permit manufacturers to fix the rates of duty which imported merchandise must pay. Manufacturers should combine to raise prices, and imported goods would consequently pay a higher duty.

Importers could not tell what duties they must pay until they got their goods into this country, which would make it a very risky adventure to import anything. These tendencies would largely cut off imports, thus keeping American producers to seek the people whatever they saw fit.

If you stop importing goods, you kill your export trade. Goods sent abroad must be paid for either in gold or merchandise. They have no gold to give us, and if we refuse to buy their merchandise, they have no recourse but to stop buying American goods.

Thus our export trade would be ruined, bringing disaster to manufacturing and agricultural industries that depend largely on foreign trade and throwing great numbers of people out of employment.

At a time when the welfare of the country depends upon reducing the cost of living, this law would greatly increase the price of everything imported, of everything that formerly came into competition with imported goods. It seems incredible that Congress should perpetrate such an act of inconceivable folly, but it may do so, unless the people rise in protest.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

What is expected to be one of the best junior agricultural calf clubs in Kentucky is being developed in Marion county by County Agent H. J. Childress and Assistant County Agent L. C. Brewer. Members of the club will develop a purebred heifer of one of the best breeds as their start in raising cattle.

Has started a movement looking to a substantial reduction in the state tax rate on real estate. Has recommended to County Bureaus that they appoint a Committee to investigate local tax conditions to find out why County Tax Rates have been increased, while assessments of farm lands has been sick two weeks, but is now on the mend.

The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation appeals to all farmers to assist them in remedying the above conditions by joining their local Farm Bureaus.

Do your Christmas shopping early while there is a good stock of everything to pick from.

WASTE STRAW AND STOVER ARE RICH IN PLANT FOOD

Fertility contained in straw, corn stover and other crop residues will benefit soils as much as that purchased in the form of commercial fertilizers provided careful attention is given to these materials and care taken to see that they are placed on the soil where the plant food may be utilized, soils and crops specialists say. Nearly 1,000,000 tons of straw and 1,500,000 tons of waste corn stover which are not consumed as feed become a part of the manure produced and constitute an important factor in keeping up the yields on Kentucky farms, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist at the College of Agriculture.

That the abundant use of these materials as bedding does not reduce the value of the manure produced is shown by the fact that a ton of straw contains as much nitrogen, nearly as much phosphorus and more than twice as much potash as a ton of manure. Stover is even richer, containing one and three-fourths times as much nitrogen and twice as much potash as manure. Stems of legumes such as clover and soybeans which sometimes go back into the manure contain four times as much nitrogen, two to three times as much phosphorus and about four times as much potash as manure. Similar things are true in regard to the high manurial value of residues of these various crops left in the field at harvest time.

Using commercial fertilizer valuations for plant food a ton of corn stover contains a little more than $5 worth of plant food, a ton of clover more than $7 worth, a ton of straw almost $5 and a ton of average farm manure nearly $3 worth. In view of these it is important in keeping up the fertility of the farm to conserve these residues rather than burn them in the field or otherwise allow them to go to waste, and lose all of the organic matter together with most of the nitrogen which they contain, according to Mr. Stephenson. When everything is plowed under the smallest loss in plant food takes place and much needed organic matter is added to the soil.

STATE NEWS.

19 IN GRAVEYARD MURDERED.

(Vanceburg Sun.)

We were informed last week that there is a little country graveyard in Lewis county in which are buried nineteen persons who met violent deaths. Nine of these were murdered and ten were returned. Is there another such cemetery in the State?

BIG CORN YIELD.

(Mt. Olivet Tribune.)

Among those who raised a large acreage of corn which yielded abundantly is Esq. John Owens, of Abigail, who had thirty acres planted in corn on his North Fork lands that yielded an average of fully eighty bushels to the acre. And it is corn, too, very large ear and of unusual length, some ears measuring fourteen inches.

OLD SLAVE PASSES.

(Stanford Journal.)

Clathorne Pennington, one of the oldest colored men, died at his home at Hall's Gap aged 88. He was owned by Ephraim Pennington, Sr., and afterward by Ephraim Pennington, Jr., the father of Mrs. Hugh Reid. A large crowd attended his funeral, which was preached by his lifelong friend and neighbor, the Rev. Harrison Graham. He is survived by his wife and forty-seven descendants. The verdict of his neighbors, both white and colored, was that he was an honorable man and had lived a Christian life.

A REGRETTED KICK.

(Harrodsburg Herald.)

A young man whom everyone knows is telling a good one on himself to some of his intimates. The situation is so unusual that the story is worth repeating. One night he was disturbed by something on the foot of his bed, and looking down he saw a small animal. Supposing it was the little family dog he gave it a kick and landed it on the floor. A second later a fight started and in the uproar he heard the battle cry of the dog. Hopping hastily from the cot he beat an undignified retreat. But it was too late. The next day he buried his bedding and his pajamas in the same grave.

AN ELECTRIC BATH.

(Glasgow Times.)

The electrician had finished up his work and the plumber had just made his money—closing the connection near where he had knocked the insulation off the wire as his last act. And then the head of the house appeared for his first bath in the new tub. The water was turned on, towels were laid, and with a sigh of contentment he stepped into the bath. Right there the trouble began, for the plumber had made an electric connection, which, coupled with the water, gave the astonished bather a good stiff shock and started him on a three-day stretch of cursing.

After leaving their high cost automobiles standing in the streets unlocked, a lot of people wonder why the automobile thieving business flourishes so prosperously.

TAILORED STYLES

With lines that follow those of the natural figure, with becoming new style points in its sleeves and collar, and just enough of rich decoration in its embroidery and sash, this tailored frock for fall and winter is destined to be beloved of its wearer.

STRAWS SHOW.

Straws show which way the wind is blowing, and the elections of this year, have afforded a clear idea of political trend. While local issues more or less affected the results of this year, yet the Democratic drift shown in almost every city and state that cast votes on November 8, has been a significant political manifestation.

Republican leaders at once became alarmed. Some of them thought the trouble was that President Harding had not rewarded his political workers sufficiently. That is an idea that might have been held by some folks fifty years ago, but it is obsolete today.

These elections furnish a revelation of the point of view of the mass of the people. A large body of voters had become weary with the burdens that are inevitable when a nation goes to war and tumbled over each other to vote the Republican ticket in 1920, as a method of expressing their impatience with the sacrifices that war makes necessary. But after watching the Republican Congress perform, they have made up their minds that it is incompetent to do anything to lift their burdens, also that they can not be wholly lifted by any human power, but just must be carried for a time until conditions right themselves. Consequently these multitudes of voters have returned to their normal point of view, and when that happens, there is a close balance between the two parties in this country.

What has happened now is that the pendulum, which receding from an extreme swing to the Republican side, has now reached a point just about midway between the two extremes. But when the pendulum starts swinging, momentum always carries it nearly as far in the opposite direction as it went on its first swing the other way. According to all psychology and human nature, that means a big Democratic victory in the congressional elections of 1922.

Some folks who never before were interested in culinary problems, are now observing Raisin day with careful attention.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Only sixteen days until Christmas.

A very small crowd attended court Monday.

Quite a number of farmers butchered their hogs last week.

Several in this community killed hogs the latter part of last week.

The month of November has passed into history as a very wet month.

The December term of the Boone circuit court will convene next Monday.

Dr. Yelton's house is nearing completion. He will have a handsome home when completed.

Lloyd Weaver was on the cattle market one day last week and purchased a few feeding steers.

C. H. Youell, who has been working on the Burlington and Waterloo pike, has quit work for the winter.

Many foreign countries are clamoring for Tanlac. Its fame is worldwide. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

L. H. Voshell and J. L. Frazier, two of Union's prominent citizens, were transacting business at the county seat, last Friday.

Trappers in the county are reporting good success so far this season, and quite a number of big catches have been made by some.

The Ohio river reached the stage of 50 feet last Saturday, and much damage was done in the low lands along the Big Miami river.

John Dickerson, of Union, one of the Recorder's good friends, of Union neighborhood, made this office a pleasant call last Thursday.

It is astonishing how quickly Tanlac will produce results. You usually feel better from the very first dose. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

"We have sold 97,000 bottles of Tanlac and have never had a single complaint."—Jacobus Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.—Sold by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Depositions were taken last Friday in the case of T. H. Sandford against Tom Craddock. The case will be for trial at the next December term of the Boone circuit court.

Mr. and Mrs. Furnish Penn after a week's visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Penn and family, returned to their home at Sadieville, Scott county, last Saturday.

Miss Aileen Riggs, who is attending school at Rushville, Ind., is at home for the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Riggs, of Ft. Pleasant neighborhood.

A large part of the public will not do their Christmas buying early, as they prefer to wait until the week before the holiday and get their toes trampled on by the crowd.

Some of the farmers of Boone county are preparing to buy up enough cheap corn to run them next season. This should be done now as corn will advance in the spring.

Mrs. C. G. Smith, of the Hebron neighborhood, and her daughter, Barkhorst, of Price Hill, Ohio, were visitors to Burlington, last Thursday. They made this office a pleasant call.

Mike Holtzworth, one of our good friends from Union precinct, was in attendance at court Monday, and while in town called at this office and had the date of his subscription moved up another year.

Greyer Bledsoe, who sold his business in Florence, was transacting business in Burlington, Monday. He will open up a stand in Exchange—grand opening Saturday night, December 10. See ad. in another column.

Mr. Cain Kennedy, who resided near Hopeful church for several years, has moved to Latonia, Ky. He was among the crowd in attendance at court Monday and made this office a pleasant call renewing his subscription and having it changed to the above address. We are sorry to lose Mr. Kennedy and his good wife as citizens of the county, but what is the county's loss is Latonia's gain.

BEARDS BACK IN POLITICS.

Beards are in again. Surely it is no mere coincidence that simultaneously with the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as secretary of state comes the information that Sir Joseph Cook is to be high commissioner for Australia in London. Sir Joseph's beard is the pride of the Antipodes. Or again, in South Africa, the electorate rejected General Hertzog, who has nothing but a mustache, for the bearded, Smuts. And Lenin imperturbably holds his own, with a beard, while the smooth and smooth-shaven Kerensky is not merely out, but outside. Venizelos, they say, was never so popular as since his withdrawal, and the Italian press insists that when he makes a move Constantine is doomed. His is the finest beard in Europe, as Mr. Shaw will admit. Then look at Briand and the precarious foothold he has in the French premiership—lacking a beard. The lesson is obvious, says Detroit News. The world realizes it has had a close shave and intends to do its own trimming in future.

In so far as one can generalize from the experience of the last few years, women are taking all their new civic duties with commendable thoroughness. The widespread activities of the women's citizen associations have done much to arouse the female voter to the realities, and more especially the responsibilities of civic life. And these excellent bodies have worked on likely material, for those women who have thrown themselves into public affairs have not erred on the side of under-rating the value of hard work, says Manchester Guardian. Women who have to teach adult students of both sexes have rarely been able to censure women students for lack of industry.

Many a man has sacrificed everything for the dollar. He has abandoned his friends, turned his back on recreation and turned his every thought and ambition toward the accumulation of jingling silver and clinking gold. And when he has reached his goal, and has achieved what he set out to do, he has found himself friendless and alone. Social isolation is his. He no longer knows how to play. Simple pleasures are beyond him. Life holds nothing more in store than the mere accumulation of more money. That, it seems to us, is real poverty.

After a man gets to be about fifty-six, he will suspend work that is paying him $20 an hour to listen to some earnest talk about new snap beans, turnip greens, spring onions, radishes and fusious strawberries, and, remarks Houston Post, if you mention fried spring chicken he'll walk out of the office and leave his safe unlocked.

The body of Le Cid, the famous Spanish hero, has been disinterred to be buried in the cathedral at Madrid with full honors. It ought to be some incentive to heroic deeds for one's country that merit will be recognized even if it takes about ten centuries or so to do it.

The Frenchman who wants to start a school in the United States to teach kissing probably thinks people kiss a la mode in real life. You can't standardize it, anyway. And gracefulness is not the vital part of it, either. Besides, we prefer the American plan.

Columns of gas, some more than 700 yards high, are rising from the Mexican volcano of Popocatepetl. It is hard to see the vaunted economy of nature in making it impossible to commercialize so much good material now going to waste.

Composers of modern jazz music are insisting that hotel orchestras must pay them royalties for playing their stuff. Wouldn't it be dreadful if the orchestras had to fall back on some real music whose copyright has run out?

Austria is suing for possession of the crown jewels, sent to Switzerland for safe keeping. They are worth 100,000,000 gold francs, and what that amounts to in Austrian paper money we haven't the space to state.

The baby daughter of the Chinese minister in London is said to have spoken both Chinese and English when she was eighteen months old. At that age the average American baby speaks only Chinese.

It is reported that Finland uses street cars made in the United States. Now we know where all those old cold storage boxes on four wheels have gone.

American women spent $50,000,000 for face powder last year, and a glance at the average crowd assures you that $25,000,000 would have been ample.

Next summer an attempt will be made to fire a rocket to the moon. There ought to be a law against it—suppose it spoils the moonlight!

Be careful about regarding this man or that as your enemy. You may be guilty of self-flattery, which is awful.

GUINEA FOWL IN GREATER DEMAND

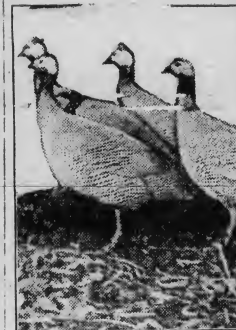

Of Big Value in Various Sections as Substitute for Many Game Birds.

MAKES GOOD AS POLICEMAN

Hotels and Restaurants in Large Cities Eager to Secure Young Birds Which Are Tender, and of Fine Flavor.

The great majority of guinea fowl are raised in small flocks of from 10 to 25 upon farms in the Middle West and in the South, but a few of the large poultry raisers, particularly those who are within easy reach of the large Eastern markets, make a practice of raising a hundred or so guineas each year. Many farmers keep a pair or a trio of guineas more as a novelty than for profit, and from these a small flock is raised.

Warns of Marauders. The guinea fowl doubtless would be more popular on farms were it not for its harsh and, at times, seemingly never-ending cry, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Peculiar Cry of Guinea Gives Warning of Marauding in Poultry Yard.

Agriculture. However, some people look on this cry as an argument in the guinea's favor, as it gives warning of marauders in the poultry yard. Similarly, their pugnacious disposition while sometimes causing disturbances among the other poultry also makes them show fight against hawks and other common enemies, so that guineas sometimes are kept as guards over the poultry yard. Often a few guineas are raised with a flock of turkeys and allowed to roost in the same tree, where they can give warning if any theft is attempted during the night.

Used as Substitute.

The value of the guinea fowl as a substitute for game birds such as grouse, partridge, quail and pheasant is becoming more and more recognized by those who are fond of this class of meat and the demand for these fowls is increasing steadily. Many hotels and restaurants in the large cities are eager to secure prime young guineas, and often they are served at banquets and high dinners as a special delicacy. When well cooked, guineas are attractive in appearance, although darker than common fowls, and the flesh of young birds is tender and of especially fine flavor, resembling that of wild game. Like all other fowl, old guineas are very likely to be tough and rather dry.

RIDGING HENHOUSE OF MITES

Cleanliness and Disinfection Required to Destroy Parasites That Live on Fowls.

To rid the henhouse of the little red mite that stunts the hens so much requires cleanliness and disinfecting. The fifth must be cleaned up, the house ventilated and the sunlight let in. Removable roosts and drop boards will help clean up the house. To disinfect the roosts and house everything should be painted or sprayed with a solution of two parts of oil and one part of stock dip. Applications should be made in pairs about five or six days apart in order to kill the mites that have hatched since the last spraying.

GREAT ASSISTANCE OF BIRDS

Little Feathered Songsters Do Much Toward Good Crop of Fruit by Devouring Insects.

A good crop of birds goes a long way toward a good crop of fruit. Encourage the children to feed the birds during the cold, stormy weather and in spring they will pay you a hundred-fold by clearing the orchards of insect pests.

SQUEALING PIG BEST

The pig that squeals the most will run a squire. Maybe so, but we have observed that the hungry porker who is always complaining to high heaven about his appetite usually proves a growler, thrifter, and consequently more profitable individual than his tongue-tied brother.

SLUMP IN MARKET.

Hart County Growers Refuse to Accept Offer For Crops And Seek Membership in New Co-operative.

Lexington, Ky.—The bottom has dropped out of the burley tobacco market at Horse Cave, according to information received at the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association headquarters on South Broadway from a Hart county member of the association. A warehouse unfriendly to the association has been open and selling burley tobacco for a few days. Today prices dropped generally about ten cents per pound.

Many of the growers refused to accept the prices offered and hauled their tobacco back to the barns. Others stored it in Horse Cave and applied for membership in the Association, leaving their tobacco stored until the Association is ready to receive it.

Burley tobacco growers, members of the new Co-operative Marketing Association, are going forward with their plans for the election of district delegates December 12th, and so far as reported the county organizations have named some of their strongest men.

HOW TO SELL YOUR WARES.

(Belgrade (Mont.) Journal.) A business man gave as his reason for not advertising that he preferred to go out and interview the farmers personally as to their needs in his line. That may work very well for one or two, but suppose we'd all try to do that. The farmer would have time to work at all and he'd soon get so sick of seeing cars drive up to his place that he would either leave them off with a shotgun or leave this country.

The up-to-date and only satisfactory way to present your case to the public is through the printed page. Then the prospective customer can get just what you have to say just at the moment he is most willing to listen to it. There is no gas or "hot air" wasted and nobody sore.

STATE NEWS.

PECAN CROP MOVING

(Hickman Courier.) The pecan crop has been moving now for the past few weeks at a good rate and is proving to be a good one this fall, although it was predicted early in the summer that the crop would be light. The pecan crop, although an uncultivated one in this section, proves very lucrative to those who happen to possess a goodly number of trees, especially since the price has soared during the past few years. They are now selling at 20 cents a pound, whereas ten years ago they sold for 5 and 8 cents a pound. Nutting parties used to go to the woods and gather these nuts at their will but everyone now has his woods and fields posted and the crop is gathered and sold in most instances.

OLD KIT KICKS OUT.

(Nebo Cor. Madisonville Hustler.) We hate to record the sad death of a much loved landmark of our town, but after suffering a day of agony, Kit, the mail carrier of our town, passed away in the dark hours of the night. Poor old Kit, she was only 25 years of age and as good and trusted old nag as ever went between the shafts of a one-horse wagon or drew a plow. She was the property of W. E. Taylor, our mail carrier. She has gone where the good horses go. Peace to her ashes.

PROFITABLE FLOCK.

(Mt. Olivet Tribune.) W. S. Paul, of Abigail, has a profitable flock of hens. He has forty-two, young and old, and from these the past season he has sold 500 dozen eggs and had plenty for home use.

HURT SAWING WOOD.

(Clayville Cor. Cynthiana Democrat.)

James French had quite a serious accident while sawing wood. The saw in some way struck his arm below the elbow, cutting through his sleeves. Several stitches were required to close the wound. He is doing nicely.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND RABBITS.

(Harradburg Herald.) Ed. Burton, of this city, was in Owensboro Wednesday, and while there saw the novel sight of 16,000 dead rabbits in one pile, ready for shipping. The meat of many of them was to be canned.

NEVER LOST HIS RELIGION

(Hopkinsville New Era.)

"It was at a revival meeting and Br'er Jones was giving his testimony."

"Brother and sisters," he said in an ecstasy of piety, "you know and I know that I ain't allus lived right, I have robbed a hen roost or two, I've lied a good deal and cheated a pascal. I have gambled some and drunk right smart white mule, I've beat my wife and done a lot of things too low down to mention, but, thank the Lawd, I ain't never lost my religion."

BELIEVED IN CIDER.

(Mayfield Messenger.)

F. M. Tucker, who passed away at his home south of the city, early yesterday morning, was noted for the fine quality of cider he produced. He had been making it for the past sixty years, and it is said none other had the genuine taste and the sparkle as did "Uncle Rabbit's" as he was familiarly known. He has often declared that he owed his life to the drinking of this beverage, and said that if a person would drink it freely each day during the spring and summer months he would never be bothered with chills and malaria. He believed in it as a medicine.

SCREAMS OF WILDCAT.

It seems almost incredible that it was only 45 years ago that the telephone was invented. Since then, in less than a life time, the telephone industry has been developed and expanded to such a remarkable extent that it now provides a service of national scope for the 107,000,000 people living in the United States. This has required the stringing of enough wire to span the distance from the earth to the moon more than 100 times; the erection of pole lines which would reach nearly 15 times around the world; the installation of dirt space for carrying cables underground of sufficient length to reach more than six times thru the center of the earth from pole to pole, and the construction of buildings enough, if brought together, to form a city as large as Ft. Wayne, Indiana. Over 33,000,000 telephone conversations take place every day.

DEVON

(Too Late For Last Week.) The remains of Miss Nellie Schader were laid to rest in the Independence cemetery last Wednesday week. The family have our deepest sympathy in the death of this dear young girl.

Miss Marie Carpenter was shopping in the city Saturday week. Miss Agnes Parker, of Bank Lick, was the guest Sunday of Miss Lucy Schader.

FAMOUS OLD HOME.

(Glasgow Times.)

The Spottwood old home in Glasgow was built more than 125 years ago for Colonel Alexander Spottwood, of Revolutionary War fame, and is in an excellent state of preservation. The house is now occupied by the Hon. J. M. Richardson and family.

Jet the Blackest Substance.

Jet is the blackest substance known. It is a species of petrified wood or charcoal and first was produced from pieces of rock and shale washed up on the coast near Whitley, England. Now, however, it is obtained almost entirely by mining. The finest quality of jet comes from the Yorkshire coast near Whitley. The industry there furnishes employment for many. Jet is found also in Bavaria, Bohemia, France, Germany and Spain. Some jet is found in the United States but not much attention has been given to its production.

For Holding Pins

The baby will be served and his mother delighted at Christmas time with little gifts convenient for holding safety pins. A doll and a basket are shown in the picture each suspended by ribbons for hanging them. Little rings attached to the feet, hands and belt of the doll accommodate pins of several sizes. There are assorted pins in the basket.

TOBACCO MARKET

Transactions in the leaf tobacco market of Louisville, Ky., for the week ending December 3, 1921, are as follows:

Price quotations ranged from 5c to 35c per lb. for old crop burley in the dark reds; and from 6c to 35c for bright reds, and from 7c to 55c for colory stock. Dark manufacturing tobacco sold from 4c to 25c according to grade. New crop burley commanded prices from 3c to 48c per lb., with the average at $19.66 per 100 lbs., for the week.

(Cornell Extension Service.) There are several kinds of health insurance. One of them is a pair of good over shoes for every member of the family.

Housewives who invested in a pressure cooker for preserving vegetables and fruits are finding they can use it for canning meat.

Aunt Ada's Axioms—A family is a partnership for everybody in it, and the child's school work is as important as mother's home work or father's business tasks.

Have you discovered that kerosene will clean the kitchen sink twice as quickly as will scouring powder? Moreover, kerosene mild soap and hot water will never injure the porcelain.

Housewives who transplanted parsley and mint from the garden are finding them not only useful as garnishes and flavorings, but also that they make the kitchen more attractive during the winter months.

WON'T YOU GIRLS?

Now that cold weather is coming and girls will wear high shoes they can use the stockings with holes in the heels that they laid away last summer.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES.

The progress that is being made at Washington in getting rid of superfluous government clerks can hardly be described as meteoric. Before the war 37,000 clerks were employed there, and a year ago the number stood at 85,000; it now stands at something over 83,000.

Ten thousand clerks were dismissed shortly after the Harding administration came in as a result of closing certain departments, but over 6,000 were immediately added as a result of the opening of new departments. The tendency at Washington is now upward, and if Congress decides to go into the business of subsidizing maternity subsidies and subsidizing local education, another great army will have to be put to work.

The truth is that we will not reduce the number of government employees nor make any impression upon government expenses until we come closer than we are doing now to putting into operation Grover Cleveland's dictum that it is the duty of the people to support the government, and not of the government to support the people.

KIPLING'S BEREAVEMENT

The British War Department announces that its efforts to ascertain the fate of John Kipling, son of the poet and writer, Rudyard Kipling, have definitely failed and that young Kipling must be written down "among thousands of soldiers who vanished in the war without leaving a clue as to their fate."

The last seen of young Kipling was when he was on a transport ship bound for the Dardanelles. Whether he was lost at sea or was killed in the first day's fighting at Gallipoli will probably forever remain a mystery. The only thing definite is that he is now rated as "officially dead."

VERONA

On Thursday Nov. 24 at 9 o'clock a very pretty wedding took place at St. Patrick's church when Margaret Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bailey, of Beaver Lick, became the bride of Jerry L. Unpuck. The Rev. Father Bankemper performing the ceremony. The bride wore a brown coat suit with hat to match and carried bouquet. Agnes Faral was bridesmaid and wore blue with hat to match, and carried a bouquet. The groom was attired in a suit of blue. Leslie Code acted as best man and wore a blue suit. After the Nuptial High Mass the bridal party returned to the home of the brides sister where a wedding dinner was served to a large number of relatives and friends. They received many nice and useful presents. After a few days visit in Louisville and with his sister at Nazareth, Ky., they will return and make their home on his farm near here. We wish them a long, happy and prosperous life together.

"Blue Goose" Turns Turtle

Geo. Hewett met with what might have been a serious accident Tuesday morning. He was carrying the mail for Elijah Stephens on U. D. 3, and was driving Alfred Jones' Ford, the "Blue Goose" that he uses on his mail route, and when near the residence of Dr. Yelton on the Florence pike, he lost control of the machine and ran over the fill, which is about 16 feet high, the auto tumbled, the machine was damaged very little. The steering going wrong is what caused Mr. Hewett to lose control of the machine.

LIQUOR AT FLOOD TIDE.

We are having a great flood on our creek in the form of that filthy, poisonous fluid which people mildly call "moonshine." If ever a community needed protection it is evident that we do. Drunken men are numerous. We think if we have any law at all that some real prohibition officer with little difficulty could come to our creek and by following the trail of broken Mason jars and torn sacks which are highly perfumed with moonshine which are scattered on our roads, he would soon be able to find headquarters.—(Doughton Cor. Louisa News.)

GATHERING CORN AT 83.

Old "Granny" Troop, Walter Troop's mother, who is 83 years old, came in with him from the country and voted, then went home and gathered a load of corn. Not because she had to, but because she wanted to. All honor to such a woman.—Nebor Cor. Madisonville Hustler.

THE WASTE BASKET
(By GEORGE.)

"The Old Gray Mare" may not be "what she used to be," but white mule improves with age.

There are 2,000,000 more men than women in this country. But you'd never know it by watching the crowds come out of church.

Most publications claim five readers to each copy. But it's different with the Congressional Record.

Many a girl these days wears what she fondly imagines is a skunk fur. But as a matter of fact the original occupant of the fur used to yowl on her back fence nights.

Some men desire to live to ripe old age; others carry a cocked gun while hunting.

The old-fashioned woman who let nature place her waistline now has a daughter who never knows where hers is until she has looked up the fashions.

And what's become of the old-fashioned man who, somewhere between the fifth and tenth drink, used to start to tell total strangers what a "Goo 'll wife" he had?

There are two sure ways to make a girl mad. One is to kiss her when she doesn't want to be kissed; the other is not to kiss her when she wants to be kissed.

After listening to some of the latest "jazz" music we have come to the conclusion that its composers must live near a vacant lot frequented by large yellow tom cats.

FISCAL COURT NEWS

The Fiscal Court was in session Tuesday and an order of the Gallatin Fiscal Court was filed asking this court to join with the Gallatin court in the construction of a bridge across South Fork. If this bridge is constructed under the present law Boone county would pay over four fifths of the cost, as the cost would be apportioned between the counties according to their assessed value. The Boone fiscal court offered to join with the Gallatin court at that point, the cost to be equally divided between the counties, but this proposition was rejected by Gallatin county. If the courts can not agree Gallatin county will attempt to compel Boone county to join in the construction of the bridge.

Hon. C. C. Sleeth, Justice-elect from the Beaver-Union district, and Hon. B. C. Kirtley, Justice-elect from the Carlton-Hamilton district, attended the session of the fiscal court Tuesday. These gentlemen were succeeded by Hon. N. C. Tanner and Hon. Chas. Wilson, two men who have served their constituents as Justices for several years, and retired of their own accord.

County Attorney Ward Yeager and Road Engineer Maddin, of Gallatin county, were transacting business before the fiscal court Tuesday. Mr. Maddin is a Boone county boy and is making a good road engineer for Gallatin county.

SLUMP IN MARKET.

Hart County Growers Refuse to Accept Offer For Crops And Seek Membership in New Co-operative.

Lexington, Ky.—The bottom has dropped out of the burley tobacco market at Horse Cave, according to information received at the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association headquarters on South Broadway from a Hart county member of the association. A warehouse unfriendly to the association has been open and selling burley tobacco for a few days. Today prices dropped generally about ten cents per pound.

Many of the growers refused to accept the prices offered and hauled their tobacco back to the barns. Others stored it in Horse Cave and applied for membership in the Association, leaving their tobacco stored until the Association is ready to receive it.

Burley tobacco growers, members of the new Co-operative Marketing Association, are going forward with their plans for the election of district delegates December 12th, and so far as reported the county organizations have named some of their strongest men.

HOW TO SELL YOUR WARES.

(Belgrade (Mont.) Journal.)
A business man gave as his reason for not advertising that he preferred to go out and interview the farmers personally as to their needs in his line. That may work very well for one or two, but suppose we'd all try to do that. The farmer would not have time to work at all and he'd soon get so sick of seeing cars drive up to his place that he would either hold them off with a shotgun or leave this country.

The up-to-date and only satisfactory way to present your case to the public is through the printed page. Then the prospective customer can get just what you have to say just at the moment he is most willing to listen to it. There is no "hot air" wasted and nobody sore.

STATE NEWS.

PECAN CROP MOVING

(Hickman Courier.)
The pecan crop has been moving now for the past few weeks at a good rate and is proving to be a good one this fall, although it was predicted early in the summer that the crop would be light. The pecan crop, although an uncultivated one in this section, proves very lucrative to those who happen to possess a goodly number of trees, especially since the price has soared during the past few years. They are now selling at 20 cents a pound, whereas ten years ago they sold for 5 and 8 cents a pound. Nutting parties used to go to the woods and gather these nuts at their will but everyone now has his woods and fields posted and the crop is gathered and sold in most instances.

OLD KIT KICKS OUT.

(Nebo Cor. Madisonville Hustler.)
We hate to record the sad death of a much loved landmark of our town, but after suffering a day of agony, Kit, the mail carrier of our town, passed away in the dark hours of the night. Poor old Kit, she was only 25 years of age and as good and trusting old nag as ever went between the shafts of a one-horse wagon or drew a plow. She was the property of W. E. Taylor, our mail carrier. She has gone where the good horses go. Peace to her ashes.

PROFITABLE FLOCK.

(Mt. Olivet Tribune.)
W. S. Paul, of Abigail, has a profitable flock of hens. He has forty-two, young and old, and from these the past season he has sold 500 dozen eggs and had plenty for home use.

HURT SAWING WOOD.

(Claysville Cor. Cynthia Demo.)
James French had quite a serious accident while sawing wood. The saw in some way struck his arm below the elbow, cutting through his sleeves. Several stitches were required to close the wound. He is doing nicely.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND RABBITS.

(Harrisburg Herald.)
Ed. Burton, of this city, was in Owenton Wednesday, and while there saw the novel sight of 16,000 dead rabbits in one pile, ready for shipping. The meat of many of them was to be canned.

NEVER LOST HIS RELIGION

(Hopkinsville New Era.)
"It was at a revival meeting and Br'er Jones was giving his testimony."

"Brother and sisters," he said in an ecstasy of piety, "you know and I know that I ain't allus lived right, I have robbed a hen roost or two, I've lied a good deal and cheated a pascal; I have gambled some and drunk right smart white mule, I've beat my wife and done a lot of things to my low down to mention, but, thank the Lawd, I ain't never lost my religion."

BELIEVED IN CIDER.

(Mayfield Messenger.)
F. M. Tucker, who passed away at his home south of the city, early yesterday morning, was noted for the fine quality of cider he produced. He had been making it for the past sixty years, and it is said none other had the genuine taste and the sparkle as did "Uncle Rabbit's" as he was familiarly known. He has often declared that he owed his life to the drinking of this beverage, and said that if a person would drink it freely each day during the spring and summer months he would never be bothered with chills and malaria. He believed in it as a medicine.

It seems almost incredible that it was only 45 years ago that the telephone was invented. Since then, in less than a life time, the telephone industry has been developed and expanded to such a remarkable extent that it now provides a service of national scope for the 107,000,000 people living in the United States. This has required the stringing of enough wire to span the distance from the earth to the moon more than 100 times; the erection of pole lines which would reach nearly 15 times around the world; the installation of dirt space for carrying cables underground of sufficient length to reach more than six times thru the center of the earth from pole to pole, and the construction of buildings enough, if brought together, to form a city as large as Ft. Wayne, Indiana. Over 33,000,000 telephone conversations take place every day.

Jet the Blackest Substance.

Jet is the blackest substance known. It is a species of petrified wood or charcoal and first was produced from pieces of rock and slate washed up on the coast near Whitby, England. Now, however, it is obtained almost entirely by mining. The finest quality of Jet comes from the Yorkshires coast near Whitby. The industry there furnishes employment for many. Jet is found also in Bavaria, Bohemia, France, Germany and Spain. Some Jet is found in the United States but not much attention has been given to its production.

For Holding Pins

The baby will be served and his mother delighted at Christmas time with little gifts convenient for holding safety pins. A doll and a basket are shown on the picture each suspended by ribbons for hanging them. Little rings attached to the feet, hands and belt of the doll accommodate pins of several sizes. There are assorted pins in the basket.

TOBACCO MARKET

Transactions in the leaf tobacco market of Louisville, Ky., for the week ending December 3, 1921, are as follows:

Price quotations ranged from 5c to 35c per lb. for old crop burley in the dark reds; from 6c to 35c for bright reds, and from 7c to 55c for colory stock. Dark manufacturing tobacco sold from 4c to 25c according to grade. New crop burley commanded prices from 3c to 48c per lb., with the average at $19.66 per 100 lbs., for the week.

COOPERATION LOWERS COSTS OF MARKETING

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 5.—Cooperative shipping associations are furnishing one of the cheapest methods whereby farmers of the State can market livestock, according to reports received from organizations in different counties by D. G. Card, marketing specialist at the College of Agriculture. Not only have the associations saved their members money in placing stock on the market but also they have had a tendency to improve the class of livestock raised in the territory covered by the associations and have developed a spirit of cooperation among farmers of the community. Cooperative livestock shipping associations are among the most simple of cooperative marketing organizations and constitute one of the easiest methods by which farmers may undertake this form of work, according to Mr. Card.

During the past year members of the association in Ballard county have made an average saving of approximately $89 on each of the 77 cars of stock which they have shipped, a report from R. B. Wilford, manager of the association, states. The total saving on 77 cars when 16,000 pounds was taken as an average car load was more than $6,000. It cost members of the association an average of about 85 cents a hundred pounds to ship cooperatively whereas it had cost them from $1.35 to $1.75 to ship through a local buyer before the association was formed.

Similar results are being obtained by an association recently organized in Union county, the cost of shipping having been reduced about 30 cents on the hundred pounds by means of the cooperative plan. This association has shipped five car loads up to the present time at a cost of from 35 to 45 cents a hundred pounds. Marketing through a local buyer cost farmers in the county from 65 to 75 cents a hundred pounds.

The Onton Livestock Shipping Association in Webster county, one of the newest ones to be organized already has obtained results which indicate that the association is to be successful in reducing marketing costs. Fifty-nine hogs were shipped in the first car load at a cost of 33 cents a hundred pounds.

SHELLED CORN IS NO ADVANTAGE TO STEERS

Lexington, Ky.—Feeding tests conducted by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for the purpose of comparing the value of broken ear and shelled corn in fattening steers indicate that shelled corn has no advantages over broken ear corn in producing beef when silage is fed, according to results of the trials given in a circular which has just been issued by the station. One lot of ten steers each, which were fed for 140 days, made an average daily gain of 1.95 pounds on a ration containing shelled corn, while a similar lot of steers, fed for the same length of time on a ration containing broken ear corn instead of shelled corn, made an average daily gain of 1.89 pounds, according to the results.

The object of the tests was to obtain definite information on the relative feeding value of broken ear and shelled corn for fattening the steers where corn silage is used in the ration and corn allowed during the latter part of the feeding period.

For some time, many cattle feeders of the state have believed that shelled corn produced larger and more economical gains than did ear corn under these conditions, according to the circular. Some steer feeders in Kentucky sell their ear corn and buy shelled corn to replace it, paying five cents a bushel for the shelling in addition to hauling the corn to and from the elevator, the circular states.

Each steer fed shelled corn consumed an average of 10.11 pounds of corn during the last 80 days of the feeding trial and 3.45 pounds of cottonseed meal, 35.37 pounds of silage and 47 pounds of straw during each day of the test. Those fed the broken ear corn each consumed an average of 12.41 pounds of corn during the last 80 days of the experiment and 3.45 pounds of cottonseed meal, 33.63 pounds of silage and 35 pounds of straw during each day of the trial.

The steers which received the shelled corn made their gains at a cost of $14.23 a hundred pounds while those fed the broken ear corn put on beef at a cost of $14.21 a hundred pounds. Detailed results of the tests are given in the circular which is No. 26. It is being distributed free to interested persons.

Lack of Enthusiasm in Schools.
Something is wrong with our public school system and we think it is the lack of school sentiment or enthusiasm.

The old trustee system may have been bad, occasionally you would find three trustees, and a teacher who would get up lots of excitement over the class work done in school and you could hear it said that the school was humming, but that was long years ago.

The pupils now do but very little studying at night and seem to be very little interested in their studies.

SUBSTANTIAL FLOOR
FOR POULTRY HOUSESpecialists Say There Is No
One Best Kind.

Everything Depends on Soil and Use of Structure as to Which Is to Be Preferred—Cement Is Most Sanitary.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cement floors for poultry houses are championed by some poultry growers, while others declare a good dirt floor is the only kind to use. The fact is, poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say, that there is no one best kind of floor. It all depends on the soil, and the use of the house as to which type is to be preferred.

On light, sandy, well-drained soils a dirt floor is satisfactory, especially for small or colony hen houses. Such floors should be from 2 to 6 inches higher than the outside ground surface, and it is advisable to renew them every year by removing the contaminated surface down to clean soil, and to refill with fresh sand or fine gravel and earth.

A board floor is generally used where the level of the floor in the house is from 1 to 3 feet above the ground surface, and in portable houses on land which is not well drained. Board floors harbor rats, and rot quickly, and should be raised some distance off the ground so that cats or dogs can get under them, and also to allow a free circulation of air to prevent the wood from rotting.

Cement floors are adapted to permanent laying houses, to brooder houses, incubator cellars, and to all permanent houses where an artificial floor is required, and can be built on the ground level. These floors are easy to clean, very sanitary, rat proof, and comparatively inexpensive, if one has a cheap supply of gravel or sharp sand.

BROWN-TAIL MOTH IMPORTED

Inspection of French Nursery Stocks Results in Uncovering Many Nests of Insects.

Federal and state inspection of French fruit and rose stocks during recent months has resulted in the interception of 85 nests of the brown-tail moth in 32 shipments, in contrast with 63 infested French shipments which have arrived in this country during the last nine years. The finding of so many nests in such a brief period indicates that the French inspection service is much below the standard of previous years. To meet this situation, all French shipments of rose and fruit stocks are being fumigated at the port of entry under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, as well as inspected at destination by state inspectors. Furthermore, a warning has been sent to the French nurserymen and the French inspection service to the effect that if shipments continue to arrive infested with nests of this injurious insect, it may be necessary to cancel all existing permits to import French stocks.

Interceptions have been made by the state inspectors of Connecticut, New York, Indiana, Iowa, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Maryland and federal inspectors in New York city, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C.

COWPEA HARVESTER.

The bean harvester, of which several types are commonly employed in harvesting field beans, will work well with cowpeas planted in rows, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The most successful of these harvesters are constructed so that the long knives run under the vines, cutting off the stems beneath the surface of the ground.

CONTROL OF BLISTER MITE

Very Thorough Spraying, Covering Every Part of Tree, Is Recommended as Satisfactory.

Early spraying will control the blister mite on apple trees. The trees should be sprayed when the trees are dormant or when the leaf buds are swelling with lime sulphur spray in about the proportion of one gallon of the concentrated lime sulphur to nine gallons of water. The spraying must be very thoroughly done, covering every part of the tree. Unless the spraying is done early the result will not be satisfactory.

The Open Door and American Business.

The American people may look at this question of the open door in China as something remote. Yet it affects the welfare of every man, woman and child in this country.

The United States exported to China last year, a great quantity of merchandise valued at $119,143,000. That in itself is a large business. But the possibilities of Chinese trade are seen in the fact that we also exported to Japan last year, the vast amount of $453,000,000 worth of goods. China has a population seven times as great as Japan.

If China could be modernized to the same extent as Japan, it would amount to about $3,000,000,000. This would furnish a tide of prosperity for our farms and factories that would raise the average wage earner far above his present standard of comfort and welfare.

Of course China is a slow moving country, and will not during this generation achieve any such advance as Japan has now accomplished. But it is awaking fast. If its government could be given financial and educational assistance, if it could be helped to organize such efficient armies as to put down insurgent chieftains and establish the rule of an enlightened central government it would go ahead by leaps and bounds.

The problem is now before the Washington conference, of such adjustments with Japan and the European nations as would give American business an equal chance in promoting Chinese trade. The United States will not go to war to get trade. But it must insist that it can not look with approbation and friendliness on any power that fails to give our interests a fair opportunity in this great undeveloped field.

AKINS ELECTED HEAD OF CLARK SCHOOLS

Madison County Educator is Chosen By Clark Board of Education As Superintendent.

Paris B. Akin, for the past two and a half years principal of the Union City High School, this county, was elected County Superintendent of Schools of Clark County at Winchester Saturday.

Prof. Akin will remain at Union City until January 1st, next, however, and will then go to Winchester to take up his work. Prof. Akin is one of the most prominent school men in Madison county and has wide experience in teaching and school administration since coming here. He is a native of Boone county, graduated from the Eastern Kentucky State Normal here and has taught at Corbin, Bedford, Campton, Kirksville and Union City. His many friends feel confident that he will make good in his new work in Clark county. He has had much experience in county school supervision, having served on the County Board of Examiners and in other places of responsibility in the Madison county school administration during the past several years.

ACCEPTED

Proposition Submitted by Fiscal Court to Resurface Pike Florence to Walton.

The State Road Commission has accepted the proposition submitted by the Boone County Fiscal Court to resurface the Covington and Lexington pike from Florence to Walton, and it is now necessary for those interested in this road to raise the sum of $15,000. When this sum has been subscribed and paid then the contract will be let and you will be able to drive from Covington to Walton over a concrete road before the snow flies in the fall of 1922. Get busy those who are interested in the permanent improvement of the Dixie Highway through Boone county. The improvement of this road will benefit every other road in the county as the road will be maintained, not out of the road fund of Boone county, but by Federal and State aid and will be no further expense to Boone county, thus leaving the fund that was expended on that road to be used on other roads in the county. The Covington and Lexington pike can not be maintained and kept in repair out of the limited road fund of Boone county. This fund should be subscribed within the next 10 days and deposited to the credit of the State Road Commission in any or all of the banks of the county, so that the paying of the road can be advertised for bids and the contract let in time for the contractors to begin work in the spring, just as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Let old Boone have at least one concrete road within her borders by the fall of 1922.

DIED SUDDENLY

Sebern Berkshire, 86, Passes Away At His Home In Bellevue.

Sebern Berkshire died suddenly, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Smith, in Bellevue, last Monday evening, Dec. 12th, 1921, at seven o'clock. He was born Oct. 20th, 1835, and had been in feeble health for some time, but had seemed much improved, as he had walked from his home to the stores in Bellevue Monday, and was resting in his room when on account of bad breathing he went to the adjoining room to him, but the end had come before they reached him. He was one of the oldest and most respected citizens in the Bellevue neighborhood where he had resided for so many years, and had been respected by all who knew him. One by one we are passing down the valley and in a short time new faces will be filling the stations of life now occupied by us. Mr. Berkshire had fulfilled his duties to his friends and neighbors and was enjoying the sunset of life with those he loved and were near and dear to him.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Bellevue Wednesday at 2 p. m., after which the remains were laid to rest in the old cemetery at that place. He is survived by two children Cadmus Berkshire and Mrs. Lizzie Smith and a number of other relatives to mourn the loss of one who had spent so many years among them. It can be said but few that our journey here has been so long as that of Mr. Berkshire, 86 years, 1 month and 22 days.

OBITUARY—UTZ

Susan Maria Coffman was born in Covington, Ky., Feb. 22nd, 1834, and died at Valley Falls, Kansas, November 21st, 1921, aged 87 years, 9 months and 29 days. She was the eldest daughter of Elias and Jennet Coffman. At the age of 14 she taught her first school in a little log cabin in northern Kentucky. After completing the same her parents sent her to Newark, Ohio to complete her education. She afterwards returned to Kentucky and again took up teaching.

November 9, 1855, she married Robert N. Utz of Burlington, Kentucky. In the spring of 1854 the young couple took up their residence near Pattersonburg, Davies county, Mo., where they lived two years. Her parents having moved to Kansas Territory near Grasshopper Falls (now Valley Falls) she with her husband visited them in the fall of 1858. Being well pleased with the country, they sold their home in Missouri, returned to Kansas, the following spring and purchased land adjoining her parents, which the family still holds.

Having united with the Baptist church in Ohio in 1852, she and her husband became charter members of the Valley Falls Baptist church, organized in 1873.

She was the mother of eleven children, four having died in infancy; one daughter, Mrs. Olive Spence, and one son, Arthur E., in later life. Her husband preceded her eleven years, having died in 1910. She is survived by two brothers and two sisters, Lafayette Coffman, Penrose Colorado; Noah Coffman, Los Angeles, California; Mrs. E. J. Keim, Mildred, Kansas; Mrs. George Hosler, Beloit, Kansas; five children, Harvey, K. C.; Edwin, Topeka; Mrs. Mary Alcock, Mrs. Carrie Housh, Irbie B. Valley Falls; also sixteen grandchildren and five great grand children.

The funeral services held from the First Baptist church were conducted by Rev. G. A. Marvel assisted by Rev. Floyd Evans. The music was furnished by ladies quartette consisting of Misses Maud Bruton, Melbie Dornblaser and Mesdames Lou Hauck and Braden, with Mrs. Harry Fletcher accompanying. The pall bearers were grandsons: Curtis Utz, Earl Housh, Lewis Alcock, Ross Ellis, Leon Counts and Ross Norton.

Burial in Rose Hill cemetery. Her great wish that her two sisters would be with her at the last was gratified. Her patience was remarkable. Her company always met the many friends who called daily, although her suffering was plainly discernible. She was firm in her convictions of what was right. Her ready hand was always extended to the weak, her generosity without limit. A true friend, a loving mother has gone to receive her reward. Verily it could be said "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

HOLIDAY WARNINGS

For Stores, Churches, Bazaars-- It Is Better to Be Safe Than Sorry.

Holiday fires in these places while filled with people, are usually holocausts. Light inflammable decorations make fires easy to start and easy to spread. A match, a gas flame, or an electrical defect, may do it.

Watch gas jets, decorations may be blown against them and a fire started.

Watch smokers; do not permit them to light cigars, pipes, or cigarettes, while inside the building filled with holiday shoppers, or while around decorations, etc.

Do not make any changes in electric wires, devices, or appliances, without consulting a competent electrician.

See that the fire extinguishers are in good order and in proper places. Do not allow fire extinguishers to be placed on the floor, in closets, or in out-of-the-way places. Hang them on the wall in easy reach.

See that the hose, nozzles, etc., to fire-fighting appliances, are in good condition and in working order.

Do not pile boxes, crates, etc., on stairways or in front of windows, exits, or on fire escapes. Keep the aisles clear of obstruction. Before closing the store, shop, mill or factory at night, go over the entire building to see that everything is safe from fire.

Provide for the disposal of waste paper, trash, etc., in non-combustible receptacles.

Protect floors under and about the stoves and furnaces, with brick, cement, or sheet metal. Be careful not to have stoves and furnaces close to woodwork.

Spillings should be of metal, or other non-combustible material, and should never contain kerosene.

Gasoline and other volatile oils should never be kept in buildings, except in small quantities in approved metal safety cans, and should NEVER be kept in open receptacles.

WARNINGS FOR THE HOME

Every year in America many children are burned to death by fire from Christmas candles.

I Likes You, Santa

CHRISTMAS MORNING

At Christmas time, many people are so engrossed with the idea of entertainment and amusement for their children, that they are forgetful of the dangers that accompany these entertainments.

Picture the family reunion—Gathered around the annual Christmas tree—children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, cousins and all the tree with its many decorations, its lighting effects, its imitation snow, tinsel, the presents for all—and Santa Claus with his white locks and flowing beard—When suddenly a flash, and the Fiend—Fire appears. Someone has been careless and the accident occurs. Some little fellow hopelessly scared for life—or maybe the loss of life. The happy scene is changed without warning to one of sorrow, misery and despair. There is a Christmas, the horror of which is forever burned into the memory and hearts of those who but a short time before were so gay and care-free. A family reunion that will never be forgotten. But always the darkness of death or accident in the ascendant. The family with a home gone, a loved one buried that scene that began so happily, changed in a moment to one of horror and distress.

Lighted candles, on trees in connection with paper tinsel and celluloid decorations, the same on electric lights or light wires, dried hol-ly or mistletoe on gas light, or electric light fixtures, and their wires, any of these might be the cause of the above picture.

These Christmas time pleasures and programs may be so arranged as to preclude the possibility of any such tragedy occurring in the home. Proper supervision of the children and a little care in preparing the decorations will accomplish this result.

BUYERS TO TAKE POOLED BURLEY

Co-operation Rather Than Bias Manufacturers' Plan, Says James C. Stone of the Association.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 7.—There will be no trouble in selling the tobacco pledged to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, in the opinion of Jas. C. Stone, chairman of the committee on temporary operations of the association, who returned today from a trip on which he conferred with the leading manufacturers of the country as to their attitude.

He said that as a result of his visits and talks with the manufacturers he was convinced that there was no reason why the relations between the manufacturers and the representatives of the association should not be mutually satisfactory.

"As chairman and representative of the committee on temporary operations," said Mr. Stone, "I went to see the officials of the principal tobacco manufacturers to learn what their attitudes would be toward the association. I am authorized to say to them that we wanted to co-operate with them, as our best customers, and that the association desired to learn what their attitude toward the co-operative marketing movement was going to be."

"I found generally a very friendly co-operative spirit among the manufacturers. They seemed disposed to co-operate with us fully. I assured them that the association would be conducted on sound business principles and that all the manufacturers would be treated alike by the association. Their position, generally, was that they would buy Burley wherever it might be offered for sale, but that they would not discriminate against the association."

"I am convinced that there will be no trouble at all in selling the tobacco pledged to the association and I believe that the manufacturers will take every pound of tobacco we have and be better satisfied with the system of buying it than the old public auction plan. I did not and am not unfriendly spirit anywhere. I went and was greatly pleased to find that the manufacturers intend to treat the association just as they would any other holder of tobacco and that there is nowhere any disposition to assume an attitude of resentment against the organized growers. As the manufacturers have their own drying plants, I found that most of them desire to purchase their requirements in winter orders.

"You can say for the association," said Mr. Stone, "that there is no disposition on our part to get at cross-purposes with our best customers and that, so far as I was able to observe and learn through my talks with them, no tendency on their part to do anything other than to give us all the consideration to which we are entitled when the time comes to market our tobacco."

MONEY AND MARKETS.

Business is better and sentiment throughout the country reflects courage. Such progress as has been made by the business community toward normal conditions results from a realization that artificial levels of activity will not again be reached in any period near enough to affect the problems of today, and from a determination to practise economies of operation more rigid than heretofore thought possible. The need of personal economy is also being increasingly recognized in giving a day's work for a day's pay and in care as to personal expenditure. Business men and executives now recognize that henceforth they must give the most thorough personal attention and application to their enterprises.

Some part of the recent gain in business is unquestionably a result of seasonal demand. Permanent improvement depends to a large extent on foreign buying power, and even more on the adjustment of conditions under which the farmer operates. The last three years have clearly shown that the European situation can be stabilized only by the political and economic efforts of the countries concerned. Domestic conditions can be bettered by steady determination on the part of corporations and individuals to secure greater efficiency and to practise greater economy. This will result in gradual readjustment of the burden of price inequalities now resting on the farmer.

The unsatisfactory situation in agriculture dominates the business outlook. In the cotton states the relatively high price of cotton has encouraged the farmer, but uncertainty both as to demand for cotton goods and as to the size of the admittedly small crop has minimized the beneficial effects of better prices. Farmers in the grain states will hardly break even on 1921 operations at current prices of corn and wheat. While it is true that the prices of raw cotton for farmers have fallen they are still well above the 1914 level. Grains are all close to or below prewar prices. In the face of these conditions, the renton is not well founded that the farmer is willfully refusing to buy, thereby delaying the return of better times.

The farmer represents about half the consuming power of the United States. The prices of crops are determined in the international market, and there are no reasonable grounds for an expectation of marked increases in those prices at any time in the immediate future. Reduction in the prices of what farmers buy would have exactly the same effect as higher prices for agricultural products. It is futile to contend that because of high labor and transportation costs the prices of other articles and commodities cannot decline to the level of agricultural prices. About 60 per cent of the farmers of the United States own the land which they cultivate. Another large proportion are competent share tenants. These farmers are not discouraged. Although they have little money to spend, they know that they are in a position of greater security than the city laborer or the salaried man whose job depends on prosperity.

Agricultural communities have been but temporarily depressed by the artificial extravagant standards of recent years. Farmers and their families have habits of industry and thrift. Curtailment of expenditures carries no social stigma. Throughout the north, the greater part of the food of farm families and farm animals is produced on the farm, and food production is rapidly increasing in the south. Agriculture is not planning to use the weapon of restricted output. Farmers are preparing to fill their fields well, even though they must use old implements and less fertilizer than usual. Unless natural conditions beyond their control prevail, they will produce an abundant food supply in 1922 as they did in 1921 and the years before. They are expecting to work hard, spend little, and if possible, again be able to save. If ways are not found to lower the prices of all classes of goods which they need, and would like to buy, by means of lower wages, higher labor efficiency, cheaper transportation and lessened distribution costs, the farmers themselves will not suffer greatly, but business of all kinds will be forced to operate on a restricted basis.

BOONE CIRCUIT COURT

The December term of the Boone Circuit Court began promptly at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Hon. Sidney Gaines Judge presiding with Charles Maurer as Clerk, L. A. Conner Sheriff, B. B. Hume and Harold Corner Deputies, with Jailer Fowler on the job.

Commonwealths Atty., John J. Howe and County Attorney B. H. Riley were on hand to look after the interest of the Commonwealth.

The Grand Jury for the term is composed of the following gentlemen:

- Bernard Rogers, Chas. Beemon, F. F. Ratcliff, E. O. Rouze, T. W. Rice, M. L. Jones, Clinton Riddell, Harmon Jones, Grover Ransom, E. H. Surface, R. E. Grant, Earl Walton.

E. H. Surface was appointed foreman. Judge Gaines instructed the jury as to their duties and called their attention to a number of statutes, the violation of which would be investigated.

Circuit Clerk elect Robt. H. Berkshire is attending court in order to familiarize himself with the duties of his office, which he will assume Jan. 1, 1922.

Petit Juries were empaneled as follows:

- Jury No. 1—C. L. Kelly, W. W. Rector, Elijah Hodges, A. L. Nichols, Edward Maxwell, Ralph Canon, Everett Hickman, Vernon Pope, James Skeet, Perry Mahan, H. J. Stephens, Wilber Brien.

- Jury No. 2—Thadus Ryle, J. D. Cloud, Edward Hankinson, C. H. Baker, Bernard Seebree, Lee Masters, Ransom Ryle, T. J. Dinn, C. W. Myers, Jno. S. Ryle, Marion Scott, F. M. Voshell.

The following Attorneys were present Monday:

- O. M. Rogers, Covington. Maurice Lyons, Covington. Elmer P. Ware, Covington. Jno. L. Vest, Walton. Jno. H. Howe, Carrollton. S. W. Tolin, Burlington. G. W. Tolin, Burlington. B. H. Riley, Burlington. N. E. Riddell, Burlington.

Hon. Edgar C. Riley of Lexington, attended circuit court.

Miss Letitia Wilhoit, of Lexington, is acting as official stenographer for the circuit court.

Just after the petit juries were empaneled the case of the Commonwealth vs. Maude Sternberg was called for trial Monday morning with Jno. J. Howe and B. H. Riley representing the Commonwealth of Ky., and O. M. Rogers representing the defendant, who is charged with obtaining unlawfully money from another by false pretenses.

The jury before whom the case was tried was composed of the following:

- T. J. Dinn, Marion Scott, Ralph Canon, Bernard Seebree, Vernon Pope, C. H. Baker, Wilbur Rice, Everett Hickman, Chas. L. Kelly, Thadus Ryle, Ed. Hankinson, Jno. S. Ryle.

The jury after hearing the evidence were instructed by the Court, and hearing the arguments of the attorney for the defendant, returned about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and as we go to press had failed reach a verdict.

GEO. M. WHITAKER, DEAD.

Geo. M. Whitaker, aged 76 years, passed away suddenly Saturday, December 10th, of cerebral hemorrhage at his home in Crescent Springs. Mr. Whitaker is survived by his widow and one son F. M. Whitaker, who is Vice President of the C. & O. Railroad, with offices in Cincinnati. Funeral services were held from the residence of his son, No. 2620 Highland Ave., Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Interment being in Spring Grove cemetery. Undertaker Philip Taliferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

A LUCKY HUNTER.

Martin Williams while hunting one day last week found a fox that had been shot by some hunter a few days before. He also has been having good luck shooting ducks.

Raymond Ernst, who graduated from the Boone County High School last year, has opened up a grocery store at Hebron, where he will be glad to have all of his friends call on him. See his ad. in another column of this issue.

WALTON.

Rev. and Mrs. D. E. Bedinger left last week for Orlando, Fla., to spend the winter.

John C. Miller and C. Scott Chambers spent Monday at Burlington, having business in the circuit court.

The supper given by the Walton Christian church Saturday night was a fine success socially and financially.

S. W. Beavly, the popular agent of the L. & N. Railway at Worthville, spent Monday here with his many friends.

Married—Robert R. Aylor and Mrs. Lizzie Fields-Carpenter, Dec. 9th. The happy couple will make their home at Walton.

Miss Jeanette Sasher, formerly of Elliston, who is attending the State University at Lexington, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Wallace.

Jno. L. Vest and Chas. Strother, our local attorneys, spent the week at Burlington attending the Boone Circuit Court in which they had a number of cases.

McClure Chapter, No. 48, Royal Arch Masons, at a special session last Saturday night, conferred the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master and Most Excellent Master on Rev. Dwight Willett, pastor of the Walton Baptist church, and the Most Excellent Master degree on Bro. A. Records Johnson and Bro. J. L. Reeves. Arrangements are being made to confer the Royal Arch degree on these three brethren at an early date.

One of the recommendations of President Harding in his message to Congress is of considerable interest to the rural communities, more so than the surface indications would warrant. He suggests to Congress that a law should be passed forbidding any more tax exemption bonds or notes on the part of Nation, State or Municipality. It seems that it would be only fair that all should bear their part of the taxable burden, and as it is there is a gross discrimination. It does not appear to be equitable that a farmer owning ten thousand dollars worth of real estate and producing the greatest percent of the values that contribute to the general prosperity of the country should pay taxes of every kind for the upkeep of the country on eighty-five per cent. of taxable values owned by him, while the man who produces nothing invests ten thousand dollars in non-taxable securities and does not pay a cent of any kind of tax on that amount for school, road, county, town or state.

But it does not stop there, but most of the surplus funds, even in the country banks are drawn out by the owners to invest in these non-taxable securities, and the present hard times in the country districts have been produced by the withdrawal of the funds for such investments. Boone county alone has lost nearly a half million dollars in these investments within the past year, and the disposition on the part of the general public to take over such investments is growing because the average person revolts at paying any kind of taxes and aims to dodge the payment of all taxes he can. The taxes on such securities should be reasonable, along the line of the taxes collected from the banks on their deposits, being ten cents on the hundred dollars, and it does seem that even on a U. S. Government bond paying four and a quarter per cent. that ten cents out of that amount for taxation would not be burdensome, yet in the aggregate it would mean a great lot of money.

Take the farming class at the present time so hard pressed for funds, and they being the producers of most of the wealth of the country, are hardly able to borrow a hundred dollars at a country bank because all of the surplus funds have been absorbed in the field of non-taxable securities. At the last meeting of Group Six of the Kentucky Bankers Association, held at Mayville, D. B. Wallace who was Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, prepared a resolution declaring against the further issuance of non-taxable securities, but the members of the committee who were in part from the city and interested in such securities, refused to permit the resolution to be reported, and the chairman would have made a minority report on the floor of the meeting but for the fact that time was limited and it would have precipitated a debate that would have interfered with the general business. And now the President of this Good Old United States says that he believes that the issuance of non-taxable securities should be put a stop to. If the bankers of the rural districts do not lend their voice to abolishment of this injustice to those who pay the taxes of the country they are unfaithful to their own interests. It is only fair to all to make every form investment pay its part of every tax until they reach the exemption bond for it is this named investment that most of the people of money are finding an avenue by which they can escape the payment of every tax until they reach the surtax scale, and that of itself is an indication that they are better able to carry a part of the taxable burden than the average man.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. O. R. Porter is on the sick list.

The powers bind poor old China hand and foot, and then find fault because she can't walk.

There are still 1,200,000 homes short in this country, but plenty of garages are being provided.

Mr. Love Tanner, of Madisonville, Ohio, was the guest of relatives in Burlington, several days last week.

Formerly they used to have shooting irons in their hip pockets, and now they carry the equally deadly home brew.

Mr. Francis Kenney, of Devon, and Miss Mary Gordon, of Walton attended the dance at Florence, last Friday night.

The people who object to gum chewers should reflect that when these folks are chewing their cud, they are not talking.

The government is making a splendid fight against farm pests, but the pests that visit newspaper offices still remain uncontrollable.

Claimed the housewives should take more interest in politics. But anyway the politicians take much interest in the housewives.

Willis Grant, of Gunpowder, killed an O. I. C. hog one day last week that tipped the scales at 700 lbs., gross, and made 30 gallons of lard. Some hog.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Shearer, of Newport, and Mrs. J. Q. Elstun, of San Antonio, Texas, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall, Saturday night and Sunday.

W. F. Tupman, one of our good friends from Erlanger R. D. was a caller at this office, last Saturday, and had the date on his paper moved up another year.

John Hogan and wife have purchased a handsome residence at 92 Park Ave., Ludlow, Ky., where they will be at home to their friends after Dec. 20th, 1921.

The brick layers completed their part of the work on Dr. Yelton's residence. Klingenhoff Bros., of Aurora, did the brick work and they are fine men as well as mechanics.

A very large crowd attended A. L. Nichol's sale of personal property last Saturday, and everything sold at satisfactory prices. Don't forget Owen Bethel's sale near Bullittsville, next Tuesday.

Ernest Walton and wife, of Plymouth, Illinois, who have been visiting relatives in the county for several days, were the guests of his sister, Mrs. Gene Kelly and family, the latter part of last week.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Alice Stafford-Black and Mr. Alvin Steger, which took place in Covington in July and which they kept a secret until last week. Mr. Steger, a former resident of Owen county, during the administration of former Gov. A. O. Stanley was Assistant State Examiner and Inspector. Mr. and Mrs. Steger have been the guests of relatives here for a week and will go to Coopers, Henry county where they will make their home. Mr. Steger will open a bank there.—Owen Co. Democrat.

Seven pages of this issue of the Recorder carry attractive display advertisements which are well worth reading. The Recorder has not previously put out an edition containing as large a display of Xmas ads as is shown in this week's issue. Read these ads carefully and make notes of the advertised articles which interest you and the firms that offer them. This plan makes Christmas shopping easy. And bear in mind that you should not fail to patronize those firms which spend their money for newspaper space in which to invite you to call at their place of business. Just nine days between now and Christmas. Better get busy.

The Store of the Christmas Spirit*SUBSTITUTE CORN PRODUCTS FOR BEANS, POTATOES, RICE

In view of a serious shortage this year in potatoes, beans, and rice, other starchy foods will be needed to take their place on the table. The United States Department of Agriculture points out in connection with this situation that there is an abundance of corn and that not enough of it is being used for human food, although it may, to a large extent, take the place of the other three products in the diet. Corn products are not exact equivalents for potatoes, beans or rice, but many be used in combination with vegetables to supply a maximum of nourishment at a low price.

There is opportunity, particularly in the Northern States, for an increased use of such products as hominy grits and corn meal. Specialists in corn utilization state that one reason corn meal is used more in the Southern States than in the North is that it is made only from sound grain properly cared for, and has a fine flavor which justifies its popularity. If those who save corn for grinding at home, or who send it to be milled, would see that it is promptly dried and stored in rat-proof dry rooms or cribs, the finished product would come into far greater demand as an inexpensive and suitable food to serve as the starchy element in a meal.

The potato crop for 1921 is estimated by the department at 15,000,000 bushels less than the average for the five years immediately preceding, according to the November 1 forecast, and 72,000,000 bushels less than the 1920 crop. This year's crop is estimated to be 355,074,000 bushels; the 5-year average from 1915 to 1920 was 371,283,000 bushels, and the 1920 crop was 428,368,000 bushels, estimated on December 1, 1920.

To offset this shortage of potatoes there is a surplus of 21,092,000 bushels of sweet potatoes over the 5-year average. The sweet potato surplus is unlikely to displace the potato shortage completely in spite of the encouragement by the department of the proper conservation of sweet potatoes, because the transportation charges on watery products are heavy in comparison with grains. The freight transportation costs of rice and beans are fairly comparable with corn, but the rice crop for 1921 is 4,169,000 bushels below the 5-year average, and the bean crop is also about 4,000,000 bushels short. Corn is abundant, cheap, nourishing, palatable, and transportable; it covers the best means of meeting these short ages in other crops.

THREE WATERMELON SEEDS.

An incident in a Land Near Galilee. A gentleman who has but recently returned from Armenia writes:

"A few weeks ago on the Eriwan Plain, Armenia, I saw a little boy who had no parents, no friends, no home—nothing but the open streets of a mud village and a wall to lean upon and a pile of straw to share with the dogs at night."

"I saw him standing heedless of the red dust cloud, his head against the wall, his only garment just enough to hide his nakedness. He had eaten of clay and grass to satisfy the gnawing of the everlasting hunger."

"In one hand he held three watermelon seeds. With the other he feebly plucked at them to extract a meager and miserable nourishment. All the hopelessness of the Near East was in that desolate little figure. Had he been the only one, he might not have seemed so dreadful. But in this one small hamlet there were ten or twelve like him. In the countryside round about were thousands in a similar appalling state."

"I was told he had been a waif for two years. Two years of mud and dust, of rain and hail, of running sores upon his head and body, and of insects that fed upon them. I saw him wave a hand at them, too weak to drive them away."

WHAT SHALL WE DO FOR HIM AND THE MANY OTHER CHILDREN LIKE HIM?

If we expect to look our Christianity in the face, we must do our utmost to save Armenia. In so doing we shall save America. Don't stop at contributing yourself, but interest others.

Suppose that a little boy of yours, terribly deformed by starvation, too weak to do anything, was found hoarding three dried seeds—three watermelon seeds—the only food left for him in all the world.

Would you say that civilization had failed? Would you not feel that the heart of humanity had died—that something was tragically wrong with a world that could not help your child?

Some folks excuse themselves by saying that very little of the money reaches these destitute people. These people are murderers at heart as well as murderers in fact, because they influence others to deny those children the right to live.

Near East Relief is incorporated by a special act of Congress. Sending your money to us is as safe as your Liberty Bonds. Our books are audited the same as any other corporation, and less than five per cent is allowed for running expenses. Ninety-five per cent. buys food for the starving. Isn't that your money's worth?

Do not postpone making first payment on your pledge, and, if possible, pay a few months in advance. You will be surprised at the satisfaction that will come to you from helping to save little children who so love their Christ they prefer to die for Him rather than live and deny Him.

In a little while America will be celebrating the feast of Christmas, and there will be joy in our hearts for the blessings that have come to us during the year, but it is simply enough to make them holidays for feasting and family reunions without really taking inventory of ourselves to ascertain if we fully appreciate what God has done for us? Do we ever think how He made the flowers, the trees, the woods and streams, the sunlight and moonlight, sunshine and rain, springtime and harvest, winter and summer, the hills and the valleys, the rivers and lakes and the majestic ocean, all for you and for me?

Do we really thank God for all these beautiful things, or simply take them as a matter of course? Let's see what side of the fence we've been on. If we have been recent in our appreciation, it is not too late to mend.

Five dollars a month will keep a child alive.

John H. Leathers, Treasurer Near East Relief, 401 Louisville Trust Building, Louisville, Ky.

Like a Letter From Home.

In renewing her subscription to the Recorder Mrs. Bettie Snyder, of Radnor, Indiana, writes:

"Enclosed you will find a money order for $1.50 for the Recorder for the coming year 1922. I can not do without the Recorder as it is like a letter every week from my old Ky. home. Many good wishes for you and yours and all my old Ky. friends and a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. As ever a true friend."

BROKE HIS ARM.

Jesse Eddins while attempting to crank his Ford car last Monday morning broke his arm. Mr. Eddins had driven the car from his home out on the East Bend road to Burlington, and when he attempted to start the engine after being in town some time, the engine "kicked back" and the crank broke his arm.

SOME RABBIT.

C. C. Pike, of Verona neighborhood, was in town Tuesday and had with him a rabbit that had been killed the day before. It was the largest ever seen in this part of the country and was as large as an ordinary dog. It weighed 5 pounds and 11 ounces.

STATE NEWS.

A man over at Paris has invented a machine which he claims will come as near to perpetual motion as ever will be arrived at by human efforts. We have a similar machine, but he is some four years old and wears out a pair of shoes a month.—Carlsruhe Mercury.

California has started in earnest to clean up the "dope" evil, at San Francisco and all over the State. For instance, the chief of police at Sacramento says he will wipe the evil off the map in his town or throw up his job to somebody who can. That's the way to talk. If everybody would brace up and talk that way about liquor, that evil, also, would soon be abolished.—Vanceburg Sun.

It has not been so long ago that the press gave out a statement that 75 per cent of the inmates of the Frankfort penitentiary were illiterate. Now Supt. Bastin shows, out of 1,153 prisoners only 16 were illiterate when received. Sixteen were college graduates, 57 high school graduates, 378 had common school education to the sixth and eighth grades, 508 had had schooling from the second grade to the fifth grade. All of which is very encouraging, and shows that by studying hard almost any boy may fit himself for the penitentiary.—Cynthiana Democrat.

A man from the country went into a local bank one day last week with a one dollar bill which looked as though it had been through a sausage mill, and he wanted a good bill for it. The bank developed the fact that the man was an inveterate chewer of long green tobacco. A few days later while busily engaged at some work on the farm he began to crave a chew and reaching into his pocket pulled out what he thought was a doubled up leaf of the weed and chucked it into his mouth. After he had worked his grinners on it awhile he noticed the peculiar flavor and took out the cud to investigate, when he found he had been chewing a dollar bill. You wouldn't call this chewing the rag, but rather chewing the long green.—Flemingsburg Gazette.

PENDELTON COUNTY.

(Falmouth Outlook.)

The organized trades in the cities are striking to maintain a wage scale of $1.00, per hour. The unorganized farmers are getting twenty-five cents per day for their labor and will never get any more until they organize. The organized milk dealers in the city get 60 cents per gallon for their milk, buying it from the unorganized milk producers at 10 cents per gallon. It will not always be thus!

West Virginia tobacco growers were told to remain out of the pool and they will receive an average of $3.00 for their weed. Three days after the market opened the price went down to $19.00 and is still on the toboggan. Many baskets have been selling at 2, 3 and 4 cents per pound. This is a fair sample of how the trust takes care of the man who remains out of the pool.

The tobacco pool is now an assured success. The trust producers will follow in its footsteps, and every indication is now pointing to the fact that it will not be long until the farmers will be the dictators, and not the middlemen. Everyone is welcoming the coming of this change. The men who toil and produce the food that feeds the world should reap the benefits, and not the men who lay in the shade all summer waiting for harvest time. The tables are turning, so adjust your affairs to the new order that is coming.

A representative of the Levy Pants Company of Cincinnati, was here last Friday and received ninety-four applications from women and girls for positions in the proposed plant. The representative was highly pleased with the response, and he is sure that all the help that will be needed can be secured. The factory will employ from 75 to 100 women and girls. A committee from the Industrial Club is now in negotiation with officials of the concern, and the factory is practically assured. The city will grant to this industry some special inducements, and the business men are using their influence to get the factory here.

GLOOMY WEDDING FORECAST. The local forecast for weddings about Christmas is three, two runarounds and one church wedding. I am of the opinion that unless a person has got his most pretentious well feathered this is a very perilous time to embark on the sea of matrimony. (Kirkwood Cor., Harrodsburg Herald.)

In any case, the fur is soft, silky and becoming.

POULTRY STANDARDIZATION IDEA SPREADING SOUTHWARD.

Poultry standardization work as being carried on in Kentucky under the direction of the extension division of the College of Agriculture is gradually spreading to other Southern states, three counties in Alabama being the latest ones to consider the plan, according to A. S. Chapin, poultry extension specialist of the college. Miss Bennie Frank King, home demonstration agent at Tusculum, Ala., under whose direction the work will be conducted, recently completed a visit to Simpson, Warren and Barren counties where she studied the methods being used in these counties to place purebred White Plymouth Rocks on every farm. According to Miss King, steps will be taken to start similar work in the three counties surrounding Tusculum.

The Sin That Includes
All Other Sins

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.

Extension Department, Moody

Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—He shall convict the world of sin because they believe not on Me.—John 16:9.

That is inclusive—"the world." That is specific—"sin." That is assertive—"I do." That is direct—"Me."

The sin question is not left to the whim or fancy of those who are more mysteriously than rationally inclined. There is a "because" to it.
Men are saying "give us a reason."
Here the reason is given.
The claim is that humanity has sin.
The reason for the claim is because men believe not on Jesus Christ. This fact is not only a truth, or an arousing truth, or an undeniable truth; it is a convicting truth. Bold claims these may seem to be, but there they are. And their right to be accepted is guaranteed by the authority of God Almighty.

The Ten Commandments are not mentioned. Neither are the good deeds men do. There is a thousand dead apple trees are not worth as much for fruit raising as one live tree. So a thousand commandments would not count for so much as the living Jesus; and a thousand good deeds (dead at best) could not equal the living Jesus. Place all commandments and all good deeds in one side of your scales and weigh them against Jesus, they will kick the beam. He was born under the law, He fulfilled the law. He was put to death under the law; His deeds are not only many, they are without an exception good even to perfection. We must deal with Him. Refusal to accept what He has done, that is the sin. That sin holds in its grasp all others. It is His Cross that stands at the forks in the road where we must make the eternal choice. Sinning against that includes all the rest.

With one, it is Jesus or work. Have not I done all these good things, or am I not willing to do these right acts? But I did and what I am about to do, that is the condemnation.
But over against it all is Jesus. There is what He did and what He offers to do. What could a dead violin do towards making music? Absolutely nothing. But is there a skilled violinist into whose hands it has been given? Who will produce the music.
What can a man "dead in trespasses and sins" do to make himself right?
Ah, he cannot practice the real right until he has the righteousness to practice with; and that is in Jesus.

With another it is Jesus or harmlessness. "Why, what harm have I done?" Well, if there had been no other harm done than that alone by neglect, then that is startling. Like fields neglected, like bridges neglected, like debts neglected so is the soul's neglect; it always carries with it disaster. But here is something to which you may have been blinded, you have neglected Him. All other neglects even if they extended into ages upon ages instead of only for a few years cannot weigh as much as this. What He represents to us is duty so great that if we neglect Him we are lost by it.

"With another" it is Jesus or how much can I pay? But we cannot pay for the rejection of Him. He is not to be marketed. How could one pay for such when the very substance or money he might bring would be, not the smallest fraction of it, originally produced by men? "Who hath made all these things?" "What hast thou that thou didst not receive?" If it were a matter of barter then we are utterly defeated. Our price would be so devalued by the rate of exchange that it would equal simply nothing.

But "Believe on ME," that is the condition. The paying, He has done that. "Ye are bought with a price."
"Redeemed not with silver and gold but with the precious blood of Christ."

Believe on Him, that is to put the whole weight of all the past, all the future and all of now upon Him. He saves. He is the elevator that takes us up. It is dangerous even to put forth the hand as if to increase its power to lift us.
Not believing on Him, sin follows.
Believing on Him, sin is defeated.
Search the whole field from end to end, and through every part, and it is defeated unless we believe on Him.
Likewise search it most thoroughly, and the defilement is gone if we believe on Him. It is a wonderful word of life this, that "the gift of God is eternal life." When the little girl was asked to explain how sweet the honey was in the jar she carried, she tried several times to find an answer and then reached the church by lifting the jar up in her hands and saying, "Here, put your finger in, taste and see." The proof was in the taking.
And drunkards and moral men, scholars and uneducated men, prosperous and poor men, stand forth to declare that to believe on Jesus Christ is to be saved. Why not be one among them?

KENTUCKY LEAF CROP TAKES OFF FERTILITY WORTH SIX MILLIONS.

Lexington, Ky. — Approximately $6,000,000 worth of plant food is removed from Kentucky farms when the 500,000,000 pounds of tobacco which the State produces as an average annual crop, is placed on the market, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist at the College of Agriculture. This is probably one reason for the exhausted soils and low average crop yields in many sections of the State. Further destruction of the State's soil fertility without considerable expense for commercial fertilizers can be prevented largely by careful use of the tobacco stalks which should be scattered over the fields, the specialist declares.

"The average yield of tobacco in Kentucky, which is about 800 lbs., an acre, contains $8.40 worth of nitrogen, $3.20 worth of potassium and about 25 cents worth of phosphorus. The marketable leaf, therefore, removes nearly 10 worth of plant food from each acre of soil.
From four to five tons of farm manure would be required to replace the plant food removed from an acre of soil by an average tobacco crop.
More than this amount would be required if the stalks were not returned."

"In many cases, the average farmer either fails to spread the stalks on the fields or they are spread too thickly with the result that there is much waste of plant food, particularly nitrogen. In order to get the most good from them, they should be used at the rate of not more than 600 to 1,000 pounds an acre.
The stalks from one acre containing plant food worth about $3.75, the total value of the stalks produced in the State reaches a value of more than $1,800,000 or an amount equal to one-half the value of fertilizers purchased in one year by Kentucky farmers. Careful use of these stalks, which are already on the farm, to eliminate the necessity of purchasing commercial fertilizer, which must be brought to the farm, is worthy of consideration from every farmer in the State."

Wm. Edwards.....	1

Delegates elected at Walton in each of the organized counties of the Burley tobacco district in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio met at Lexington, Wednesday and elected the Directors who will have charge of the affairs of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association.

The Directors elected Wednesday will meet in Lexington at the offices of the association and will take the necessary steps to start the organization in business as a going concern. The association will have a President, a Secretary and a general manager, who will be selected by the Directors and the 22 men elected will also elect three others as members of the board, who will be Directors at large.

No man not even a tobacco grower can be a member of the Board of Directors except the three Directors at large.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Louisville, Ky.—Whooping cough again has begun to assume serious proportions in Kentucky, the State Board of Health declares in a bulletin just issued, and there are certain things that parents should know about the disease. Though ordinarily regarded as relatively harmless, it causes deaths in Kentucky every year.

It is more fatal to children under 3 years of age than to others. After 5 years of age the fatality rate decreases rapidly and for that reason young children should be kept away from the disease as much as possible.

If the child has been exposed to a cough that persists after the fifth or sixth day, whooping cough should be suspected and the child who has been exposed kept away from other children.

Whooping cough vaccine, the bulletin of the State Board of Health states, now is being made in the board's laboratories for free distribution and may be had on application. This vaccine has been used successfully both as a preventative and curative measure.

"Of 574 children who had been exposed to whooping cough," the bulletin continues, "only twenty-two who had received the vaccine developed the disease. Of 100 children who had been exposed to the disease without being given the vaccine, 534 developed whooping cough. Most observers who have used the vaccine as a curative measure agree that it moderates the severity of the disease and shortens its duration, having a special influence upon the severity of the coughing paroxysms."

A BIG SALE.

A live stock sale held by Walter Adams last Thursday was well attended, the crowd numbering about 600. Weather conditions were favorable in the early part of the day, but there was a decided improvement before noon and the balance of the day was ideal. In all, ninety-four head of stock was sold. The stock was in the best of condition and cattlemen declare the collection as having been one of the best ever assembled in this section. At noon a first-class lunch was served by Mrs. Adams, who was assisted by her neighbors.—Ohio County News.

THE GIVING SPIRIT.

Many people feel that the custom of Christmas has been carried to a great excess, and that a vast amount of money is wasted each year on useless presents. While there is a lot of this foolish expenditure, yet a great deal of it would be put into equally senseless uses if the custom were abolished. The majority of people make useful gifts that add to the comfort and satisfaction of families and friends, and often save the recipients from spending money for the same purpose.

The splendid side of the custom is that it makes people think of the happiness of others. During most of the year people go driving ahead on their own affairs, never thinking much of the welfare and the happiness of others. But once a year, old Christmas comes along and tells people to quit this self centered life, and think a bit on what they can do for others. The world needs more of the giving spirit not less.

AN IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFT

How about a year's subscription to the Recorder as a Christmas gift to your relative or friend?

It is a gift that will hold good throughout the year.

It is a gift that will be a pleasing reminder of the giver just fifty-two times within that year.

It is an acceptable gift from parents to children—just the thing to give the newly-weds.

No better selection of a gift could be made for that friend or relative who is located far from the old home county and who is hungry for news concerning the loved ones "back home."

Several Christmas orders have been booked already.

May we have YOURS?

Orders may be left at the office, sent by mail or phone.

The people who mail their Christmas packages about four days before the holidays will say usual be kicking about the delays in the mails.

John E. Slayback, who resides on Elm street, this city, died at Christ's hospital, Cincinnati, early yesterday morning, where he had been taken last Friday for an operation, but was in such a serious condition that an operation could not save him.

He was the son of Abraham and Mary Slayback, and was born in Boone county, Ky., May 14, 1873, where the days of his early life were lived. From Boone county he moved to Rising Sun, where he married and lived several years. He came to Lawrenceburg several years ago, where he has since resided. After the death of his former wife he was married to Hester Savage McCracken Jan. 17, 1920.

He had been in the employ of the Lawrenceburg Roller Mills Co., for about five years.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Christian church, of which he was a member, by his pastor, Elder N. E. Florence. Interment at Greendale cemetery.

THE HOLIDAY TRADE

The stores are now splendidly stocked with the holiday and winter goods, and it is a pleasure to look them over and see how complete their supplies are. Every year Xmas trade is a big feature in modern merchandising, and our merchants plan many months ahead the lines and features that they will present for this occasion.

The people can feel confident that everything that they need for gifts or for the needs of the winter period, can be had right here at home. The merchants that advertise in the Recorder provide a directory of thoroughly up-to-date firms who furnish everything that anyone can need for this season.

The stores in our community regard Christmas not merely as an occasion when folks exchange trinkets in a superficial show of sentiment, but as a time when people think of the real needs of their family and their friends, and try to anticipate those needs. It is a time for beautifying homes with articles that will last many years, and serve useful purposes, as well as providing mere adornment for a temporary period. It is also a time when sensible people give many articles of clothing and personal use that serve the immediate needs of their friends.

The stores conceive that Christmas is looked at in this light by our people, and they provide these substantial, useful and attractive gifts that meet this kind of need.

You would have to travel a long distance to find exactly as good or pleasing lines of stock. And prices have undergone so much reduction, that the Christmas shoppers can make a limited amount of money go a great deal further than was the case last Christmas.

FORCES WORKING AGAINST PEACE.

The nations seemed almost taken off their feet three weeks ago, when Secretary Hughes made his proposition for limitation of armament. The sincere and frank desire of the American people for a permanent peace of justice and concord, is so different from the old time spirit of international grab, that old fashioned diplomats hardly know what to make of it. They felt disarmed by the sincerity of the American attitude.

As the Washington conference goes on the jealousies and rivalries of nations come to the front, and the problem of reconciling them is seen to be no easy one.

The fundamental reason for friction over far eastern questions, is the weakness of China. And for that weakness, the nations of Europe with Japan, are responsible. The U. S. has some share in the blame, but on the whole its relations with China have been honorable.

One thing that has promoted the weakness of China, is the understanding which she was forced to accept, that she could not levy a customs tariff in excess of five percent. That was a death stroke to the country. It takes money to run a government, and if you take away its chief source of revenue, of course the government will be a poor one.

The powers have said it was necessary for them to interfere in China because of the weakness of the government. But the powers are responsible for this weakness themselves, as the result of taking away China's chief source of revenue. Then as the result of the weakness for which they were the chief cause, they get to quarrelling over their respective aggressions in Chinese territory. If they would permit China to manage its own affairs, it would be able to support itself with its own resources. The weakness of which they complain would cease, and one great disturbing factor that threatens world peace would be removed.

FIRE-PROOF PANICS.

The fatal fire in a New Haven, Conn., picture theater, in which 125 persons lost their lives and 125 were injured, is another reminder of the peril that exists where people gather in crowded places of amusement and other halls.

Human fear is the worst danger in such exigencies. Usually the audiences could get out if they would go calmly and promptly. But if some fool yells fire, and all start to tumble over each other to get to the doors, you could have a panic in almost any crowded building even if well provided with exits. The managements and helpers in all such places should have careful plans laid in advance, as to what should be done in case of fire.

While there have not been so many catastrophes of this kind recently as in former years, conditions in all public gatherings places, should be carefully studied so as to avoid the fire peril.

There should be a generous provision of conspicuously marked exits. Fireproof curtains help a lot to retard the spread of a blaze starting on a stage. Fire escapes should be of substantial construction, and not too steep, otherwise this means of exit may be more dangerous in a moment of panic than the regular stairways.

In many cities, buildings of a very inflammable character are conducted as theaters or public halls. Places that constitute a fire peril should be required to close up or provide safeguards. In erecting such buildings, the authorities should see to it that the construction is such to assure public safety.

Managers of amusement enterprises will find it pays to provide liberal measures of safety, and the laws and enforcement thereof should be strict upon these points. There is a tendency in many cities to enforce these provisions strenuously for some time after such a catastrophe, and then later to become lax about it.

THE NEW TAX LAW.

Senator Smoot, called by many people the leading financial expert on the Republican side of Congress, made some refreshingly frank remarks about the new tax law the day that Congress adjourned. He told his associates that the American people are not satisfied with the new law, and will soon demand its repeal.

It is a singular thing that Congress should spend most of its time for the past four months digging away on this measure and then pass a bill that is denounced by leaders of the party that is responsible for it.

It is also significant that Senate leaders have to admit that this result of such intense effort is not likely to last more than a few months, when Congress must again take up the weary grind of taxation legislation.

The Republicans have had control of both branches of Congress by a tremendous majority. Yet when they themselves feel dissatisfied with their own product, it indicates a singular lack of leadership. The tax bill looks more like the work of politicians than of business men. It appears like the product of a personal white fire concern in their personal re-election, and who will please those first concern in their own interests of the country as a whole.

During the life of the first three Congresses under the Wilson administration, a different spirit was noticeable. Mr. Wilson left his followers along a higher path. He urged them to do what was right for the benefit of the country as a whole, regardless of their own personal fortunes. As a result it proved possible to hold the democratic party together for a program of progressive measures, in a way neither the previous Congresses, nor the two succeeding bodies controlled by the Republicans, have been able to match.

BEAVER LICK

Elizabeth Gordon Ambrose, daughter of Matthew and Elizabeth Gordon was born April 14, 1853 in Boone county and departed this life Dec. 5, 1921.

On March 30th, 1887, she united in marriage to J. C. Ambrose and to this union was born one son, Sidney, who with her daughter, Mrs. Oatney Ross and devoted husband survive.

She also leaves four sisters and one brother, Mrs. Henry Lilly, of Cammellsburg, Ky., F. M. Cleek of Verona, Mrs. Dr. V. C. Ambrose of Cumberland, Ind., Mrs. Emanuel Richardson of Napoleon and F. M. Gordon of Indiana.

She united with the South Fork Christian church at the early age of fifteen, later transferring her membership to the Beaver Lick Christian church of Boone county, where she was a devoted member at the time of her death.

The funeral service was conducted at Beaver Lick Christian church Dec. 7 at 11 o'clock a. m., by Rev. Hampton Adams, of Covington, Ky., and burial conducted by undertaker Jesse Hampton of Verona in the church cemetery at Beaver Lick. A large number of relatives and friends were present to pay their respects to this good family and deceased one.

DEVON

We are glad to hear that L. T. Utz is improving.

Mrs. Frank McCoy was the guest of Mrs. Ben Bristow, Wednesday.

Mrs. T. J. Hutsell was the guest of Mrs. Lawrence Kenney, Monday.

Quite a number of hogs were killed in this neighborhood last week.

Mr. Nelson, of Sadieville, purchased the farm of Aubrey Mulberry.

Mrs. Morton Perry and children spent Saturday with friends in Erlanger.

Miss Lucy Schadler was the guest Sunday of Miss Agnes Parker near Bank Lick.

Mrs. Joseph Schadler was the guest of Mrs. Blanche Bagby, Sunday afternoon.

We learn with much regret that Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bassett's son, Emil, is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCoy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Bassett near Mt. Zion.

Little Stella Elizabeth Miller is in school after several days' absence from a thorn in her finger.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cook and Mr. Fred Reichenow were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Colby.

Aubrey Mulberry was here last week preparing for his sale Saturday. Stock brought good prices.

Misses Clara, Louise and Willie Wulfeck spent Sunday afternoon with Misses Bertha and Myrtle Perry.

Misses Mary and Virginia Dixon and Mrs. Lawrence Kenney were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hutsell, Wednesday.

Mr. Frank McCoy killed 3 hogs which were March pigs, that weighed 375 pounds each on foot. That was making hogs of pigs rapidly.

Dr. Simpson, Mrs. Simpson and son James, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woodward and son Robert, Friday night before leaving for their home in Louisiana.

Mrs. Howard Edwards was appointed by the Kings Daughters in Covington to solicit food and clothing for the poor of that city. She was very thankful for the way her neighbors responded to this cause.

Dr. Simpson and family left Saturday morning for Louisiana. We wish them health and prosperity in their new home, but we regret to have them leave our neighborhood. They were esteemed by all who knew them.

Mrs. T. J. Hutsell had a letter from Mrs. Maria Kucher, formerly of this place but now of Versailles, Ohio, stating she is having a delightful visit there. She is the guest of her sister Mrs. Singleton, of that city. This will be of interest to her many friends.

HOME-GROWN SEED MAKES BEST CROPS.

Kentucky farmers who will need clover, alfalfa, grass soybean or cowpea for planting their crops next spring have been advised by crops specialists at the College of Agriculture to make plans now to obtain that grown in this State. Home-grown seed is an advantage in that it is usually better acclimated and of the proper variety. Purchasing seed in this State is to be recommended since it not only supplies a market for a home-grown product but also makes it possible for the farmer to obtain the best seed possible at what is probably the lowest cost, the specialists say.

"The purchasing of soybean and cowpea seed within the State is of special importance in view of the fact that a large acreage of these two crops, was grown during the past year for seed, large quantities of which are now available," Ralph Kenney, one of the specialists said. "Kentucky growers will profit to hold most of their seed until after February in order to let prospective growers in the State buy theirs at home. On the other hand, farmers who plan to grow these crops next year will profit by buying their seed early within the State since they can save from 20 to 30 per cent on the purchase price and at the same time provide a market within the State for the seed grown here."

Increasing use is being made of the service rendered by the county agents and extension specialists in bringing seed buyer and grower together, according to Mr. Kenney. By means of the plan, farmers desiring to purchase seed can receive information from the college while farmers living in communities having good home-grown seed list it with their county agents and in this way secure their assistance in locating a market close to home.

BETTER FEEDING AND CARE WILL MAKE FALL PIGS PAY.

Better feeding and housing of fall pigs after weaning time are suggested by animal husbandrymen at the College of Agriculture as two means whereby the raising of the fall litter may be made profitable on more Kentucky farms. Liberal feeding of tankage, skim milk or buttermilk at this time of the year makes an excellent substitute for the beneficial effects of green pastures while the quarters in which the animals are housed should be dry, although they need not be warm. A wet, chilled pig is never a profitable producer of pork, the specialists say.

One ration which has given good results at the college farm in fall pig feeding is composed of 50 lbs. of corn, 50 pounds of middlings and 10 pounds of tankage. Another used successfully is made up of 10 parts of corn and one of tankage. Fifty pounds of corn, 50 pounds of shins and 10 pounds of tankage also makes a good ration while eight parts of corn and one part of soybeans may be used for a fourth.

Each year many pigs die from pneumonia contracted by their sleeping in wet houses where they are exposed to draughts, the specialists say. This can be prevented by being sure that the roof to the house is made water-proof and that no water is allowed to run into the house from the outside ground. The floor of the house may be raised by throwing the dirt inside when ditching around the outside of the house to carry the water away.

A Winter Catastrophe.

Little Howard had been accustomed to going for milk to a neighbor who kept a cow. One winter day he was told that the cow had gone dry and he could not go more milk until spring. The little fellow just sat to time in waiting home and explaining to his mother: "Oh, never, the cow's gone dry and he won't have no more milk till spring!"

LEGION NOTES

"If General Robert E. Lee was a traitor, Napoleon Bonaparte was a coward."

The statement was made by an admirer of both the great military leaders, Ferdinand Foch of France, while he was visiting Harrisonburg, Va., according to "a man who heard it," who has written national headquarters of the American Legion. During a ceremony the marshal was handed a telegram. "Lee is the greatest traitor America ever has known," it read, signed by "An American Patriot." Foch read the telegram, smiled, showing it to his aides said: "If General Lee was a traitor, I wish France had more of them. He was one of the greatest military leaders the world has ever known. This surely is a joke." The generalissimo kept the telegram, however.

If President Harding grants a pardon to ex-Private Thomas G. Jones of the A. E. F., Harry Haley, Canadian who served Jones' sentence for army desertion in Leavenworth prison, will deliver the pardon to his buddy "in the wilds of Canada," according to R. P. Dickerson, of Springfield, Mo., Haley's benefactor, who has enlisted the aid of the American Legion to obtain executive clemency. Jones is hiding out in Canada, Dickerson has informed the Legion, but Haley will take him and his little family to a "small Canadian town" to his aged mother if the president grants the pardon.

Critically ill in a New York hospital because of overwork while he was director of the bureau of war risk insurance, R. G. Chimeley-Jones has received from the American Legion through Hanford MacNider, its commander, "sincere wishes for the speedy recovery from disability brought on by service to your country and your comrades." Mr. Jones was twice rejected for the army because of physical disability, but served overseas as chief of the war risk bureau.

A lasting tie between the American mothers whose sons were killed in France and the gold star mothers of England has been established with the entrance into the American Legion Auxiliary of Mrs. Amelia McChesin, Britain's official gold star mother. Mrs. McCudden was sent to represent the English war mothers at Arlington and joined the Legion's women's auxiliary before she sailed back for England.

No reinstatements of government insurance can be made after Dec. 31, according to word received at national headquarters of the American Legion. All ex-service men can reinstate their government insurance except those who have a disability not traceable to service. The yearly renewable term insurance may be reinstated by the payment of two monthly premiums. The applicant must state that he is in good health and provide a report of full medical examination substantiating that statement.

COUNTRY BANKS INCREASE BORROWINGS; DEPOSITS OFF.

The demand for accommodations from country banks, members of the Federal Reserve system, during the past month has continued to fluctuate. There was a slight rise of city bank borrowing from October 20 to October 22 followed by a gradual recession until about the last of the month. Another increase in the demand followed and this lasted until near the middle of November. Since that time another slight decrease is in evidence. Summing up the month ending November 18, there has been a slight decrease in the volume of loans to city banks.

There was a gradual increase in the demand for accommodations from country banks from October 20 until the middle of November. This was followed by slackening demand. During the month ending November 18 there was a noticeable increase in the volume of loans to country banks. The demand from farmers on the country banks for funds to buy stock to fatten cattle, continues heavy.

Indications are that there has been little liquidation of agricultural credits from the sale of this year's crops. There are more country banks borrowing from the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank than ever before. While there is less money being borrowed than last May, the demand has switched around. At the time the call was coming from the larger city banks, while at present it is coming from an increasing number of the smaller country banks.

THE SALOON AND CHEMICALIZED BOOZE ARE DEAD

Nothing is funnier than the antics of the wets and their allies in the effort to make prohibition appear as a failure. People should survey the spectacle with attention because it offers this generation a vivid comment on the historical and moral fact that evil kills itself. The liquor business, as typified by the saloon, killed itself; it doped its goods with poison, thus maddening and murdering its customers. The distilling of whisky in the old-fashioned manner which required skill and consumed 10 years of time and produced an article which had no delirium tremens accompaniment, gave way to the 10-day method of juggling poisons together and selling them under the name of whisky. Liquor making toward the end of the saloon era was not the industry it was in its former days, because a certain gang had taken hold of it and changed it for quick profit, thus outlawing the business in the minds of all right-thinking people.

The same gang saw legal prohibition approaching but, underterred by its threat, turned their agile minds to the problem of making even prohibition profitable. This they did by a national organization of bootleggers—a national organization—the directors and big profitakers of which are all of one class. They are playing the game wildly, and not without the connivance of government officers. Fortunes are being made and lost, but even the lost fortunes go to swell the winnings of a certain gang.

Well, there is to be an end to that also—an end that the jugglers will not be able to juggle. "Whom the gods would destroy that first make mad," and madness has marked the liquor business ever since it ceased to be the purveyor of an honestly made product. Its own poison killed it. And its own poison will put an end to the bootleg rebellion against the Constitution of the U. S.

It is fortunate for the country, of course, that there are militant persons who go out to do battle against the bootleg evil. But there is also need that they keep their sense of proportion. This is the way the giant dies, with prodigious thrashings which make fearful folk fancy he is recovering his strength. The saloon and chemicalized liquor were never so dead as they are today. That which is still in circulation probably has a mission in the world—a mission to finish off quickly the unconstructive bootleggers who insist on making their exit by the booze route. At least 95 per cent of former drink victims have been saved. The other five per cent cannot hold out very long—especially on bootleg liquor.—Dearborn Independent.

AT LOUISVILLE LAST WEEK

Prices for the new crop of burley tobacco ranged from $2.10 to $5.50 per 100 lbs. The average for the week was $2.94 per 100 lbs. Dark tobacco ranged from $2.65 to $17.75 averaging $11.07 per 100 lbs. for the week. Old crop stock was steady at unchanged quotations.

The loose leaf tobacco market of Covington, Ky., opened yesterday with a sale of unusually large proportions at the new Kenton warehouse. There was a representative attendance of buyers for leading manufacturing interests and the bidding throughout the sale was marked by spirited competition. The new crop of tobacco for the most part ran to high-grade stock, all in the pink of condition. The result was noted in the steadily rising quotations, the market closing stronger than it opened by several bids on the various grades. The aggregate offerings yesterday amounted to 128,425 pounds. There were no rejections. The cash value of the tobacco sold was $39,689.13, representing an average of $30.91 per 100 pounds. The market was topped for the day at $62 per 100 pounds, with nondescripts selling as low as $1.

Remarkable Family.
A woman with six young "hopefuls" in assorted ages entered the day coach. She selected a double seat and occupied one-half herself. The oldest child sat down on the opposite seat and the other five sat on his prostrate body. By and by the conductor appeared, and upon being handed one full fare ticket he stood up the little group and said: "You'll have to pay for some of these children. What is the age of the eldest?" To which the lady answered tartly: "On an with 75; the oldest one is under 50."

THE DIXIE HIGHWAY

The People of Boone County
Should Not Turn Down
This Proposition.

Judge N. E. Riddle,
Burlington, Ky.,

Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of yours of the 9th inst., and would advise that the State Highway Commission on yesterday elected to accept the contribution tendered by Boone county for the payment of 25 per cent of the cost of the concrete road between Florence and Walton. I will forward you the provisions in regard to this acceptance as soon as the minutes of the Commission have been prepared.

It is my understanding that the road will cost not less than $300,000 and that it will necessitate the raising of some twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars in cash beyond the relinquishment of your State Aid debt, so as to enable Boone county to pay 25 per cent of the cost.

It will be understood of course that as cash funds that are raised either be turned over to the Treasurer or placed in a local bank to the credit of the State Highway Commission before this work is placed under construction.

I will communicate with you further in a few days.

Yours very truly,

JOE S. BOGGS,
State Highway Engineer.

If the citizens subscribe for the reconstruction of the Covington and Lexington pike from Florence to Walton as they should, then one of the greatest improvements that ever been made within the borders of Boone county will be a reality before the snow flies in the fall of 1924. The reconstruction of this road will cost about $300,000, and after the completion of the road it will be maintained at State and Government expense, and this all can be done for Boone county provided the sum of $20,000 is raised and deposited in banks in Boone county subject to the call of the State Road Department. Will the people of Boone county refuse to subscribe and raise a fund to insure an improvement that will be made within the county at a cost of $300,000? Would anyone refuse to make an investment of $20,000 when they could get in return an improvement of $300,000? Certainly not one would be so short sighted not to participate in a proposition of that kind. This sum should be raised and deposited in bank in a very short time. If this proposition is not accepted by our citizens then it can be said that we do not want any kind of road work in the county, but this is not the fact and we believe that the citizens will respond and raise this fund without delay. This pike can not be maintained with any kind of reconstruction other than concrete and if the proposition now before the people is rejected there can be no hope of any of the roads in Boone county being permanently improved. This proposition must be accepted and all must rally to the support of the project.

THE SEASON FOR CHARITY.

Kind hearted people need to remember that there is special need for charity at this time of year. Living costs more in winter, as the cheap supplies of vegetables and fruit have gone, and fuel has to be bought. Some people who do farm and garden work in summer are always out of employment in winter, and owing to business conditions there is more idleness than usual now.

People who have done their best in life, but who can't get by these tight pinches without help, ought to have generous assistance. Comfortable people ought to offer help to such folks among their own acquaintances and distribute liberally to the charitable agencies that look after cases of need in this city and vicinity.

ENOUGH SAID.

A member of the stock exchange was not in a good temper when he rang the bell to dictate his letters. One communication had annoyed him, and this is how he replied to it: "Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your letter of yesterday's date. My typist being a lady, cannot take down what I would wish to say to you; I being a gentleman, must not say it; you being neither, will probably realize what I mean."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

MAIL DELAYED.

Something went wrong with the Recorder's mail last week. Letters mailed Monday the 12th inst., in Florence did not reach the Recorder until Wednesday after the paper was on the press. Several communications for the Recorder were in this delayed mail.

To-day (Thursday) is the first day of winter.

Our Greetings

In the Meaning of Christmas

IN THE true spirit of the occasion and with due appreciation of all it implies, we extend Christmas greetings to the readers of this publication. Christmas has a meaning possessed by no other holiday throughout the world. America has its national and special days, other countries have theirs; Christmas is the only one alike in spirit and celebrated in all Christian lands. So pure is its principle that it commands respect and admiration among people who worship their Creator in different ways from ours.

Christmas typifies all that is best in mankind. It is the culmination of the human mind throughout the ages dwelling upon the wonders and mysteries of existence, turning to a reverence for God and His representative on earth. It expresses the ascendancy of spirit, the realization of men of their interdependency and their duty to one another; and so it is marked by the bestowal of gifts and other sentiments of benevolence and well wishing.

The makers of newspapers, concerned as they are with the doings, manifestations and thoughts of their respective communities and the world at large, and recording them in their more important aspects for the information, mayhap the education of readers, are brought into an intimate sense of the spirit and meaning of Christmas. Would that we could express to you all the good that we see in the hearts of men and the increased brilliancy behind a few shadows of the light which has upheld the world for so many centuries. In the happy auguries we see for the future, there is every reason to be merry.

Our Yuletide thoughts go out to the people of this community and our thanks are due the patrons and kind friends who have given us practical support or extended encouragement during the year. May this be the best Christmas you have ever spent, is our wish to all.

FOCH BIDS FAREWELL.

New York, Dec. 14.—Marshal Foch, before sailing for France on the liner Paris transmitted through the American Legion Weekly, official organ of the ex-service men's organization, a farewell to the people of America. The translation follows:

"With deep regret I bid you goodbye. For almost seven weeks the legion has entertained me marvelously in your splendid country. My experience here leads to two thoughts.

"When first I met you and came to admire you as fighters, cheerful, subject to discipline under your splendid leader, General Pershing, the days were dark indeed. Yet you smiled then as you fought, and your cheerfulness and bravery helped much to bring us victory and peace.

"When next I met you it was in your country. The alarms of war were over. You were engaged actively in those pursuits of peace which are so essential to happiness and prosperity—hard work. I have come to love all Americans for their spirit of diligence, for their generous heartedness. France and the U. S. are indeed close together, as they always have been.

"These two thoughts—of the Americans abroad at war, of the Americans at home and at peace—lead to only one conclusion—that the Americans are young, sturdy, honorable, God-fearing, full of faith and hope; that they are to be admired, respected and trusted by all peoples everywhere.

"And of what type is the representative American of today? The type you find in the American Legion. He is the man who sacrificed all to fight for his flag and world freedom. He is the man who now will see to it that we have 'peace on earth, good will toward men.'

"We in France are doing our share to keep ourselves worthy of the victory we have won. We know you are doing yours. Long live the American people! Long live the American Legion!"

BIT OF A MYSTERY.

They were seated beneath a tree in the park, and the moon was shining to make one's thoughts turn to love.

Presently the girl said: "Oh, James, dear, I can't understand why you lavish your affections on me above all the other girls in the world. Do tell me why it is?"

"Blowed if I know, Jenny," he replied, "and all my pals say they're blowed if they can make out, either!"—London Telegraph.

Christmas day, commemorating one of the greatest events known to history viz: the birthday anniversary of the Blessed Savior, is now but a little way off—3 days. You are just about now confronted with the momentous question as to what your duties are toward your Creator and fellowman, or perhaps we should say, "toward children." The sweet, innocent prattle of the little child will greet your ears, morning, noon and night from now until after Christmas, as the little ones tell over and over again the things they want the mysterious "Santa Claus" to bring them. But, why dwell at length upon discussing a duty you have known from childhood? The only question for you to decide is whether or not you have a heart.

A large number of people have got jobs during the last month, but not all of 'em have gone to work.

COMPLETED HIS WORK

H. W. Riley, who has served the county for the past four years as Tax Commissioner, with his sister, Miss Eugenia, as deputy, finished their work in making up the books of the assessable property in Boone county for the year 1921, last Saturday evening, and left for their home at Union Sunday morning. During the four years Mr. Riley and his sister have made their home in Burlington about six months in each year, and have made many friends here who were sorry to see them leave. Mr. Riley made a splendid official and was prompt during his time in office in reporting the assessment to the State Auditor and the neatness and accuracy of these reports. The State Board of Equalization has never raised Boone's assessment over Mr. Riley's figures, (excepting the first year) which speaks well for the manner in which he conducted the office. Mr. Riley retires from office the first of the year, but will assist the County Board of Equalization in going over the books when they meet in March.

ONLY 98 HAVE APPLIED.

There are between 900 and 1,000 persons in the county who own automobiles and trucks, and of this number 98 have applied for their 1922 licenses. These licenses must be obtained by January 1st, or the owners will be violating the law if they run their machines after that date without the new 1922 tags.

The people who put off Christmas buying until the last minute will complain because they do not get any service.

BIG DECREASE

Assessment of County Shows Falling Off of Nearly Two Million.

According to the 1921 books of the Tax Commissioner Boone county's assessment has decreased about two million dollars from the year 1920. Last year the county showed an assessment of $14,066,170; this year the books showed only $12,238,615, a falling off of $1,827,555. The assessment of the county by precincts is as follows:

Constance	$652,695
Florence	$1,549,795
Beaver	$511,510
Union	$1,151,570
Carlton	$571,000
Hamilton	$549,985
Verona	$748,725
Walton	$1,942,325
Bullittsville	$1,232,975
Burlington	$1,868,855
Petersburg	$932,485
Belleview	$526,665.

The decrease, no doubt, is due to the depreciation in farm lands from wartime prices, and the shortage of live stock and other farm products.

THE REWARDS OF HONESTY.

The pretty story comes from New York that a crippled boy who waited long to see Dr. Lorenz, the famous Austrian surgeon, at last got his chance in an unexpected way. He picked up a bag containing $700 worth of rings and turned it over to the hospital, and as a result was given preference in the list awaiting the surgeon.

Some people who have always been scrupulously honest, will say such cases are very unusual and that in ordinary life no special reward is given for honesty. This may be true as far as handling money goes, since fraud in that field is soon discovered.

But in buying and selling goods, in working for and employing other people, there are plenty of chances for trickery. The world is so full of those methods that those who prove themselves square and reliable do win special attention and confidence. They may not get ahead temporarily so fast as those who take the short cuts of crookedness, but whatever gains they make are permanent. The tricky folks soon lose their chances by their yellow records.

CHRISTMAS CARDS.

When the idea of picture and motto cards came in some years ago, and some people thought they would be just a passing fad. But many people, particularly women, send off a lot of them at Christmas and other times. Some people overdo the idea, yet the custom springs from the desire of friends to keep up old ties. Life is a changing thing nowadays, people move around rapidly from place to place. Some folks quickly drop all their old comrades, and make a lot of new friends at once, and scarcely think of those who once filled large places in their lives. Others have hearts so big that while making new associates, they mourn over any old friendship that seems to be at all weakened by time and distance.

Many people live such busy lives, that they feel they have not seen much lately of their friends in their old community. To keep alive all of these ties and strengthen them, is the reason that has made the greeting cards so popular. The people who receive them should not look at them as a perfunctory act, but as expressing a desire for the cherishing of valued associations and memories.

CRIME IN AMERICA.

The dispatches that come in to the newspapers fairly teem with news of crime, and, although lawbreakers have been very active in our own city, it is obvious that conditions in Louisville are not unusual; the whole country is wrestling with a veritable crime wave—a crime wave that began to show itself as much as two years ago, and still continues unabated.

If there is anyone who believes that the newspapers take any satisfaction in printing all this news of crime, such people are much mistaken. It is infinitely more agreeable to print good news than bad, and many of the criminal episodes of this era are sordid and brutal, without a touch of that mystery that makes a criminal affair interesting. But the newspapers have no option when it comes to printing this news. It is a part of the phenomena of an unusual and perhaps very important period in American history. We who are living in the midst of it may realize but dimly the importance of what is taking place, but unless all the facts are given to the public there may be no hope of betterment. That in the end the whole thing will lead to a determined and successful movement for the improvement of criminal justice in America, these Evening Post believes and hopes.—Louisville Post.

CIRCUIT COURT NEWS

In the case of the Commonwealth against Maud Sternberg, charged with obtaining money unlawfully, which was in the hands of the jury when we went to press last week, returned a verdict of not guilty about noon Wednesday. The jury stood 11 to 1 for acquittal, when court adjourned Tuesday evening.

A jury in the Boone circuit court rendered a verdict in favor of the Plaintiff in the case of Minnie Belleau against Henry L. Souther, for the sum of $7,000. Souther killed William Belleau, with a shot gun on the farm of Souther and he was tried on the criminal charge but was found not guilty, but on the civil charge the jury rendered a verdict in a very short time. Souther's defense was that Belleau was trying to get a pitchfork and while doing so he fired the shot that entered the head of Belleau just above the ear and ranged downward. The theory of the plaintiff was that Souther could not have fired the shot from the position he stated, but that it was fired from the loft and fresh mud tracks were found on the floor of the loft. No one witnessed the killing and all of the evidence was circumstantial. The jury trying the case was composed of the following:

Edward Maxwell,
W. W. Rector,
Marion Seatt,
Joseph Sleat,
Thaddeus Ryle,
A. L. Nichols,
Ralph Cason,
Edward Hankinson,
Ransom Ryle,
Charles L. Kelly,
Vernon Pope,
Van Hill.

The case of J. L. Reed against H. S. Frazier Co., was tried last Friday before a jury who found in favor of the Plaintiff, J. L. Reed. Mr. Reed claimed that he had a contract to travel for Frazier & Co., upon a salary and a bonus of $600; $250 to be paid July 1st and the remaining $250 to be paid January 1st, 1921. The first $250 was paid by Frazier & Co., but they refused to pay the balance, claiming that under the contract the sum was not to be paid to Mr. Reed unless the business made money and it was shown that a loss of over $10,000 was sustained, the jury, however, sustained Reed's contention.

The William Flinn Machinery Co., of Cincinnati, sued the Farmers Tobacco Warehouse Co., for the price of an engine sold to that company and the company defended on the ground that the engine would not do the work for which it was purchased and for which Flinn guaranteed it. After a short while the engine would overheat and stop, the company bought another engine and held the engine purchased from Flinn subject to his order. The Flinn company contended that the engine would do all work it was represented to do and that the only trouble was that the engine was put in charge of persons who were incompetent and did not know how to run an engine, but that there was no trouble with the engine but in the way and manner in which it was operated. The jury found in favor of the Flinn Co.

It has been many years since a Boone county grand jury was granted additional time in which to investigate crimes within the county, a large number of the indictments are for betting on the result of the last primary election. It appears that there was more betting on the result of the last election than ever before, and that those who made the bets proclaimed the fact so openly that it was a challenge to the grand jury to indict for that violation of the law.

1336 DOGS LISTED.

The tax books show that 1336 dogs were listed in the county for the year 1921, and of this number only about 150 owners of dogs have applied at the county clerk's office for license, which the law says shall be procured by Jan. 1st, 1922.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The Florence Moving Picture Theater will have special features Saturday, Dec. 31st.

And now the kids get their allowances increased so they can give Dad and Ma nice presents.

Apparently the open door is going to be necessary to ventilate the doings of the Japs in China.

Commonwealth's Atty. elect Orie S. Ware, of Covington, attended the Boone circuit court, last week.

The Klu Klux should be reminded that night gowns were superseded by pajamas a number of years ago.

The folks who won't work are profoundly discontented because they do not get their full share of prosperity.

Some of these people with aching heads the day after, have concluded that home brew is about the same as home rule.

Every time the government economisers save a dollar, the pork seekers plan out a dozen different ways of spending it.

The eloquent automobile salesmen in their estimates of the cost of running a car, never say anything about fines.

The "Save China" movement should also consider the case of the hired girl when she gets slinging around the dinner dishes.

The football teams are being given lucious complimentary dinners, while the prize students are sitting on stools at lunch counters.

Some of these powers are willing to stop building warships if they are allowed to keep on building for awhile after the others stop.

While the fathers used to spend their Christmas vacations sawing up the family wood, many of the sons make music on jazz instruments.

When people get a job, they are said to "accept a position." Likewise the hoboes accept a term in jail when they get sent up for 30 days.

It is claimed that the dogs of war have served some uses in the past, but they have got so big and hungry that they eat up all the children's meat.

The nation accepted "in principle" Secretary Hughes' plan of disarmament, much as the kids accept in principle the announcement of the teacher that they ought to behave themselves.

The old timers who get grouchy because the carol singers wake them up Christmas morning, are about the same ones who 60 years ago used to get up at 4 a. m., to see what Santa Claus left in their stockings.

FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE BURLEY TOBACCO SOCIETY.

One of the questions that has frequently been discussed in organization of the Burley Tobacco Growers Association is the price that should be asked for the present crop, and the opinion on this subject was of a varied nature, some thinking that it would be better to sell this crop at a very conservative figure to insure a quick sale and an assured success, others were of the opinion that the crop was short and that they should take heed to the old question of supply and demand and price the crop accordingly and the proposed prices in these discussions ranged from 20 to 30 cents. Now it seems that the tobacco manufacturers have solved the problem for them. They have gone in the loose leaf markets and are paying around an average of 20c for the tobacco on the outside, so it seems that the organized would be foolish to ask less than 25c for the crop in winter order and from 32 to 35c if the weed is held over. This is only reasonable, as the purpose of the organization is to secure a better price for their product than under the old plan, besides they will be saving the Manufacturers considerable in the cost of buying the crop.

From all information obtainable the manufacturers feel very friendly toward the plan and are willing to consider proposals at any time. They realize that the new organization is conducted on a sound business like basis and expect to do business with them in a business like manner. The farmer of today looks upon the big manufacturers of his product as his best customer and not as some mighty power seeking to crush him. At the same time he realizes that they are organized and are making every effort to buy his product as cheaply as they can and keep up the production. A realization of this fact gave birth to organized selling upon the part of the producer, and the man that stands in his own light and refuses to join in this movement will find himself in the same position as the small manufacturer, at a disadvantage in marketing of his product. It is a question that every man has a perfect right to decide for himself and no matter what his decision may be it will not affect the success of the plan because it is of such strength that there is no question of the outcome and the outsider will find that while he will not create the same feeling as the old pool, he will lose money and maybe find it hard to secure membership in the future. —Warsaw Independent.

PENDLETON COUNTY. (Outlook.)

The pooling of 90 per cent of the white burley tobacco is the direct cause of the higher price remaining bringing a high price. Every man who has pooled his tobacco knows the reason for the present high prices. They also know that every dog has his day, and the trust will also have to come across when it gets thrifty to chew the other 90 per cent of the crop.

At the most there is only 30,000,000 pounds of tobacco outside the pool. The crop is 40 per cent short and the tobacco trust will necessarily be compelled to buy the pooled tobacco. "Stick, brother, stick," and avoid another calamity like the one enacted last January when the buyers left the market and the growers had to pay the buyers to bid on their tobacco.

Eighteen States in the Union have passed a law which provides a bonus for soldiers, since the World War. A bill will be introduced at the coming session of the Kentucky Legislature to give the boys a lift in the way of a bonus. The boys were drafted and sent away they were promised almost anything in reason on their return. Kentucky is big and rich enough to treat the soldier boys as well as Ohio or any other State.

For the first time in history the Kentucky Legislature will be dominated by the farmers, as they will be the majority when the session meets in January. In the past the lawyers have been the dictators. The farmers now have the chance of their lives to equalize taxation, cut out all useless offices and pass legislation that will benefit the farmer, who just now is in a strained circumstance owing to the low prices being received for all kinds of farm produce. It is about time the farmer should have some voice in making the laws. The farmer feeds the world, but is getting very little returns for his labor.

T. C. Bonar, who first opened his eyes in Boone county of Pendleton, near Peach Grove, the home of sweet clover and pretty milk maids who will smile at you across the back of a Jersey or Holstein, came up from the county of Boone, the land of big animals of the past, to kill a few cotton tails of a different flavor from the ones that loaf around Big Bone Springs. The last he heard of him was he was inquiring the way to Blind Buck, and if it was not a good thing to see Pinkie Smalley's striped stockings on the clothes line. —Falmouth Outlook.

FARM MANURE VALUABLE AS ACTIVE FERTILIZER.

The fact that almost one-half of the large amount of plant food which it contains is readily available and can be used at once by young plants makes farm manure one of the most effective fertilizers which farmers can use, soils specialists say. About one-half the nitrogen, one-sixth of the phosphorus and one-half of the potash in manure is soluble or in a condition which will permit it to be used at once by growing crops. This quality makes farm manure an excellent top dressing for such crops as wheat, young clover or grass. The remainder of the plant food becomes available gradually, thus making the material a highly valuable source of plant food.

"In contrast to manure, straw and stover are slow fertilizers partly because they are of a woody nature," George Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture said. "In actual plant food, however, straw, together with the various crop residues, is as rich and sometimes even richer than average stable manure. The chief difference between manure and residues is the fact that the latter give up their fertility more slowly when turned back to the soil.

A part of the difficulty in making these slow fertilizers active is overcome by using them as bedding. When used in this manner, the coarse material is broken up mechanically, mixed with the solid manure and saturated with liquid manure in which the plant food is readily available. Animal manure also contains a large amount of bacteria which act upon the straw and coarse material to make the plant food more readily available.

PROPERLY STORED SEED BOOSTS YIELD OF CORN.

Lexington, Ky.—Proper storage of seed corn is of greater importance in boosting the corn yields on Kentucky farms than the careful selection of it in the field, specialists on the crop say. Experimental results cited by Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist at the College of Agricultural in pointing out the value of proper storage, show that seed which was given proper care during the winter months produced yields which were from 12 to 27 per cent higher than did seed which was improperly stored.

In the experiment, 400 ears were divided into two equal lots, one lot being well cared for and the other placed in a barn where corn is ordinarily cribbed. The seed which was properly stored produced yields 12 per cent higher on poor soil than did the seed which was stored in the barn while the yields from the properly stored seed were 27 per cent higher on good soil than were those of the improperly stored seed. These results were obtained in spite of the fact that both lots of seed had germinated equally well.

The farm kitchen and furnace room probably are the best places to store small amounts of seed while it is being dried out. An attic which can be ventilated, which has a chimney passing through it or which is located directly over a heated room so that it can be kept at a fairly uniform temperature, is a good place to cure corn. Other places which can be used to advantage are a special corn curing house, a heated spare room, the tool or wagon shed or any dry and well-ventilated building. By using some of the simple hanging devices, farmers should have little difficulty in properly curing the seed for their next year's crop, the specialists say.

After it has remained in one of the suggested places for about two months, the seed should be "dry as bone" and contain less than 10 per cent of moisture. In this condition, it is free from any danger of being damaged by freezing during the remainder of the winter. The seed may be allowed to remain in these places or it can be stored in mouse-proof barrels, boxes or crates until time for planting. The important point to remember is that the seed will be injured if it is exposed to a damp atmosphere in which it absorbs moisture.

DEVELOPING HOME TALENT.

Some people always complain that their city or town does not have enough fine concerts, lectures and plays. They may give it as a reason for locating in some big city that they desire the chance to hear noted actors, musicians and other celebrities. But the inhabitants of large cities pay high for such privileges. The great majority of people get more out of life to live in smaller places. If the right effort is made to develop home talent, they can enjoy many fine advantages.

There is latent ability in any place that could do interesting things if properly brought out. In many places there are dramatic clubs that compare favorably with high grade professional companies. There are in every community people who have the gift of mimicry. If you could gather such people together and put them under a competent coach, you can produce good dramatic performances anywhere.

Similarly there are in most neighborhoods people who can sing and play musical instruments with great skill. A concert of home talent can render the work of the finest composers. Bands and orchestras comparing favorably with the best organizations of their state, are often organized in small cities and country towns.

Any section has men who have had interesting experiences, who can give able and informing lectures. If the people would only develop the resources of their own communities, instead of going long distances and paying high prices once in a while to hear the so called stars they could have fine opportunities right in their own neighborhoods. This of course presupposes that people having talents in some form of art are willing to work to develop the same, but usually they are only too glad to do so if people will support the undertakings of home talent.

THE ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS

In the early days of the Christian church, no special date was observed to celebrate the birth of Christ. The exact date of the nativity was not known, and it was not until the 14th century that December 25 was finally selected.

The winter solstice was regarded by the native tribes of Europe as the beginning of renewed life in all nature. The return of the sun signified to them the revival of divine power. A date near the period when the sun begins his march northward, seemed to them a fitting time to observe the revival of religion and humane feeling brought about by the coming of Christ.

In primitive times these observances were marred by drunken revels but the coming of Christianity brought a pure and sober observance. Singing, gift giving, and a spirit of love and charity took the place of the heathen orgies. So in our life today, the Christmas spirit attains over the more selfish and egotistic tendencies of daily life.

LEGION NOTES

A nation wide scheme for the sale of articles made by sick and wounded soldiers through their own stores has been proposed to the American Legion Auxiliary by Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Boston, Mass., wife of the commander of the 26th Division, A. E. F. The plan will be discussed at a meeting of Auxiliary executives in Indianapolis January 18, 19 and 20.

In three plan, the handiwork of the disabled would be sold in principal towns and cities in stores established and operated along lines of women's exchanges. Women dependents of the disabled also would there dispose of their home products. The plan would make the disabled self supporting and not patronized by charity, its backers declare.

American Education Week will be observed annually, with programs similar to those of December 4-10, according to the Americanism commission of the American Legion. The commission, with the National Educational Association, directed the initial movement.

Roused over the report of relatives that a soldier's body had been so jammed into a cheap casket that it was with difficulty removed for proper burial, the American Legion of New Jersey is making a thorough investigation of such practices.

A hero yesterday broke and jobless today, Sgt. Carl Naef, who made a sensational but unsuccessful attempt to capture Grover Bergdoll, draft evader in Germany, has been taken in charge by the American Legion of New York. His only assets upon returning from Germany consisted of a police dog.

A resolution unanimously endorsing Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, has been adopted by the Des Moines, Ia., Trades and Labor Assembly. "He has always been fair to the purpose of his organization and stands for, and we convey our hearty congratulations to the Legion for securing him as commander," the resolution reads.

More than 3,000 veterans of the World War now suffering from tuberculosis, are without proper care or hospitalization in the state of New York, according to William F. Deegan, commander of the New York Department of the American Legion, who has just completed a survey through Legion posts of the state.

The first American Legion building financed exclusively thru the sale of municipal bonds is that now under construction at South Pasadena, Calif. The building, which is to be of the bungalow type, will stand in American Legion Park, a public park of South Pasadena.

There is not one jobless ex-service man in Louisiana, the American Legion Employment Bureau of that state having found work for every veteran seeking employment.

U. S. army tanks of the type that waddled over the Hindenburg line and ex-soldiers who fought on the line have combined in Duluth, Minn., to furnish Christmas trees for the children of the city. The American Legion is supplying jobless ex-service men to do the cutting. Tanks and trucks haul them to a central location where the Legion is selling them, the proceeds going toward a merry Christmas for the unemployed and their dependents.

Employment projects ranging from land reclamation schemes to the working of a gold mine in Missouri have been submitted to the American Legion's national unemployment council, Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati, Ohio, has been appointed chairman of the council which will meet early in January at the Legion's national headquarters, Indianapolis, to draft remedial measures for the winter.

The alleged statement of Victor J. Miller, president of the police commissioners of St. Louis, Mo., that 70 per cent of the present day criminals are ex-service men, has caused the American Legion of St. Louis to request his dismissal from office.

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS FUNDS.

A great many people have now been paying money into Christmas savings funds in banks for the past year. The accumulated result of their thrift and self denial is now about to be handed over to them. What will they do with it? Some will blow it in at once on some article of household or personal use that they have long wanted. In many cases that was the inducement that originally induced them to begin saving.

But if they are to get rewards worth while for the effort, they should establish a reserve as a permanent account in one of the banks of Boone County. They have found that they can save without suffering any great loss or inconvenience. Now if they will continue a habit so well begun, in a few years they will have a substantial capital, providing a sizable interest check each year.

CREPE AND BEADS

It appears that georgette crepe and seed beads were made for one another, and it is useless to try to keep them apart. In the new blouses for fall and winter they show their fitness for each other as set forth in the model pictured here. Beads in two colors make a rich and very tasteful embellishment for this blouse.

Resolutions of Respect.

Grange Hall Camp No. 14429, Modern Woodmen of America.

Whereas the messenger of death has invaded our assembly and taken from us our neighbor and friend, John Elmer Bradford, who has been a member of our Lodge some time. Resolved, That in the death of neighbor Bradford the Lodge has lost a good member, the community a loyal citizen and the wife a true husband.

Be it further resolved That we mourn his untimely death and extend our sympathy to his family and relatives in this sad hour of bereavement. Be it further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Lodge, a copy be sent to the family and a copy to the Boone County Recorder for publication.

Hopkins county farmers are giving increased attention to the protection of their fields during the winter with the result that many fields were planted with cover crops during the past fall, a report from County Agent Morris M. Gordon states. Rye was one of the principal crops used for this purpose, local merchants and seed dealers reporting a 27 per cent increase in the sale of rye seed over that of the previous year.

Carroll county farmers are continuing their efforts to eliminate scrub breeding animals from flocks and herds of the county, a report from County Agent G. C. Routt states. Eight additional farmers were recently enrolled in the better sire better stock movement. They will use nothing but purebred animals in all their breeding work.

Marriage license was issued last Saturday by the County Clerk to Raymond Beemon, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Beemon, and Miss Leola Tanner, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tanner, all of the Florence neighborhood. They were married by Rev. Royer at his residence near Florence, last Saturday evening. This young couple have the best wishes of the Recorder for a long and happy married life.

Mon. A. B. Rouse was unanimously chosen Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee. This is an honor of national importance given one of Boone's native sons, and shows how our Congressman stands in the estimation of his colleagues with whom he has been associated with for a number of years.

State Veterinarian Hickman, of Kenton county, was in this community last week, testing cattle for tubercular trouble. He condemned six head of cows belonging to Charles Birkle, who lives about one mile from town on the Bellevue and Burlington pike. This is a heavy loss for Mr. Birkle.

Lute Bradford, the auctioneer of Florence, was in town one day last week, and he reported that a large crowd attended the sale of Walter Eubanks, at Crescent Springs, on the 10th inst., and that cows brought as high as $300 per head and other things in proportion.

Tanlac is the ideal strengthener and body builder for old folks, because it creates a healthy appetite for wholesome food and strengthens and invigorates the digestive organs. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Virgil, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kelly, who live about one mile from town on the Bellevue pike, has been quite ill for several days with pneumonia.

D. B. Wallace, President of the Equitable Bank & Trust Co., of Walton, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Monday.

If you want plenty of pep, strength and energy, take Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

The Florence Moving Picture Theater will have special features Saturday, Dec. 31st.

Get your license for your automobile now. Do not wait. Bring your old license number.

Quite a number of people from over the county had business in Burlington, last week.

Dr. E. L. Glacken, of Richmond, attended court last Thursday.

The Threeness of the One God

By REV. E. J. PACE

Director of Missionary Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all.—II Cor. 13:14

In the familiar words of the apostolic benediction, so called, without which no assembly of Christians seems fittingly dismissed, reverberates the supreme fact of the Christian revelation, namely that God exists a trinity of persons in a unity of nature. It is one God, and yet there are three persons; not three Gods, nor yet three manifestations of the one God, as in the religion of the Hindoos, but three persons, each distinct from the other two, and yet bound to both by mutual bonds of complementary life and love relationships.

We grant there is mystery here. But where in this universe will we encounter no mystery? When we can explain one of the manifold mysteries that are locked up in a single drop of water, or in one beam of light, we will then demand an explanation of this, the profoundest mystery of all, the tri-unity of the one Godhead.

So, let it be repeated, we have here a fact of revelation, and of the Christian revelation, mind you, a fact which, while not opposed to reason, nevertheless transcends reason. Science unaided never could have discovered it; and yet when once the fact is revealed, no even science comes laden with presumptive evidence from myriad sources; and not only so, but the artist from his palette, and of them come bearing united testimony that underneath all the phenomena of nature, as well as all the harmonies of both light and sound, lies the number three.

Every schoolboy knows how with three primary colors—red, yellow and blue—he can make any other color. Indeed, every imaginable tint or hue in the universe is but the blending of these three undivided colors. And it does not take long for the lassie at the piano stool to learn that all the infinite range of possibilities in the harmony of sound results from the blending of three primary triads of notes. The scientist in his eager search for unifying laws cannot get less than three categories in which to cast all physical phenomena. These three categories are substance, form and force. And how strikingly suggest we live these three! For what have we in substance but the Father? What have we in form but the Son, who is the "express image of the Father's substance" (Heb. 1:3); and what have we in force but the Spirit, by whose power all effects in creation and redemption are wrought?

Upon unbeliever's deaf ear all these voices fall in vain. Rejecting the freedom to see in Jesus Christ more than the son of a peasant of Galilee, the faithless rationalist sees in all these shadowings of the Triune God no meaning whatsoever, with the consequence that he lands just where the unitarian Moslem landed, in the icy polar region of a loveless, fatalistic, un-personal God, within whose steel grip all is "kismet" (fated); or escaping this lands at the other antipode of un-personal pantheism, which inevitably ends with the deifying of man; or falling these two, lapses into blank atheism.

But faith's Spirit-lit mind eyes see the Deity of Jesus Christ as necessary as necessary as form is to substance and as substance is to force. With this sixth sense the Christian sees and hears all the universe vibrant with praises of the Triune God.

In our text three differentiating words qualify the three persons of the Triune God, which words, we shall see, are as necessarily inter-related as substance, form and force, to which they are also analogous.

"The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ." Grace is the free bestowment of unmerited favor, and grace is love embodied. Grace is the form of which love is the substance! "God (the Father) so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son." It is very significant that nearly everywhere in the New Testament the "love of God" is bound up with the cross of Calvary. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that God loved us, and gave his Son to be the propitiation for our sins"—I John 4:10. By this one act of redemptive grace, the sin question was settled so far as the loving God was concerned. "God is reconciled—he is also reconciled to (us)" is the word of our message.

But both the substance (love) and the form (grace) in which the substance was embodied are powerless unless there is the "communion of the Holy Spirit," making effective in the believer's heart all those blessed sequences of redemption which were wrought out by the "grace of the Son, but willed by the 'love' of the Father.

HATS THAT FLATTER

Hats are the finishing touch to the costume, and they make or mar its success. There is a hat for every face, one that will enhance its good points and be kind to its faults. Three widely different models for fall and winter, as shown above, reveal that hands and embroidery are playing leading parts in trappings and that shapes are soft and becoming.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Frances Gillespie, loved by all who knew her, died in Mercy hospital Saturday at midnight. Mrs. Gillespie was the wife of Lee Gillespie, well known farmer near Millville, and at the time of her death was thirty-two years of age.

She left besides her grief-stricken widower, the daughter, Mildred Gillespie; her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Elias Boyle, one brother John Boyle, of Toledo, many other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

Mrs. Gillespie was a member and staunch supporter of the Presbyterian church of Millville besides being active in social circles in that community as well as in Hamilton. Funeral arrangements have been made for Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock at the home of her father-in-law, Hunter Gillespie, Rev. Mr. Work officiating, with interment in the Venice cemetery.

That Mrs. Gillespie should be called away at such an early age came as a severe shock to the countless friends that she made in every locality where she was known. Her life, though shortened by her untimely death, stands as an example of American womanhood that may well be copied by those seeking to live uprightly doing the most for their fellow beings.

The deceased was well known in the Bellevue neighborhood.

38 INDICTMENTS

Returned By Grand Jury After An Eight Days Session.

The grand jury adjourned Tuesday evening after having been in session eight days. They returned into court 38 indictments, ten for making and selling liquor, five for failing to send children to school, one for malicious cutting, sixteen for betting on the result of the last election, five for assault and battery and two for false swearing. A number of witnesses were called but could not be summoned, as they could not be located and the grand jury recommended that they be subpoenaed to appear before the next grand jury and that further investigation be made of matters unfinished. The grand jury recommended that certain improvements be made in the court house and at the jail, and complimented Jailer Fowler for the way in which he kept the court house and jail. They also complimented Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rouse for the efficient manner in which they have managed the county infirmary.

H. G. CROPPER DEAD

Hubert Cropper passed into the Great Beyond at his home near Bullittsville at 1 p. m. Tuesday, Dec. 20th. Mr. Cropper had been in his usual health and about 5 a. m. Tuesday morning he got up and went to the room of his son Earl, who has inflammatory rheumatism and replenished the fire and talked to his son in regard to his wants and then went back to bed, and in a short time he attempted to get up and his wife soon discovered that he had suffered a stroke of paralysis when she called their family physician, Dr. Nunnally, and he found upon examination that Mr. Cropper was in a very serious condition from paralytic which continued to grow worse until the end came at about 1 p. m. He was a brother of John, Edgar, Wm. P., and Mary Gaines, all of whom have preceded him across the river from which none return, except his sister Mary. He was a son of Peter and Sarah Cropper and was born north of Hebron October 2, 1858, and was married to Lorena Kendall thirty-six years ago, and to this union three children were born, Earl and Raymond Cropper and Mrs. Lucile Grant who survive him. He was one of the staunch, solid and substantial citizens of this county and no one can point to any act of his as being anything other than that of a Kentucky gentleman. He was a true Kentuckian in the full sense, and nothing higher can be said of any man. When you go into a neighborhood and find men with the character, honor and integrity of that possessed by Hubert Cropper you will find a neighborhood in which the prejudices and petty jealousies of man have been put aside, and they are living for the upbuilding and betterment of their fellowman. The character of a man like that of Hubert Cropper was bound to have its effect in the community in which it existed. Funeral services were held at the Bullittsburg Baptist church, of which he was a member, Thursday morning Dec. 22, by his pastor, Rev. J. W. Campbell. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, has charge of the funeral arrangements which were carried out in perfect order.

Those having business with the County Clerk after the first of the year will not be aware that there has been a change in that office. The change will be made in promoting Miss Elizabeth Rogers, who has made such an efficient and courteous deputy to the clerkship, and in the past, she will be found at her desk in the performance of her duties for which she is so well fitted.

Mr. Geo. Kite, of near Big Bone, was horned by a vicious bull last Saturday afternoon. Dr. R. E. Ryle took him to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington for treatment. His injuries are not thought to be serious.

TOBACCO MARKET

Price quotations for new crop burley tobacco ranged from 6c to 35c per lb for dark and bright red grades, and from 8c to 56c for colory stock. Dark manufacturing tobacco sold from 4c to 25c in the old crop offerings and old burleys ranged slightly higher than new crop stock for the bright red grades, which were in strong demand.

The first sale of the week in the Covington loose leaf burley tobacco market was held yesterday morning at the Kanton Warehouse, with an offering of 98,920 lbs of new-crop tobacco. Practically every grade and type of burley was represented, and prices displayed a sharp rally over last week, although a preponderance of low grades held the average down to a comparatively low figure.

The satisfactory trend of quotations was evidenced by the lack of rejections. The value of the tobacco sold was $25,394.76, representing an average of $25.68 per 100 lbs. The market was topped at $57 per 100 lbs., paid for wrapper samples. Nondecripts sold as low as $5, and ordinary red leaf commanded figures around the $15 mark.

Washington—A Government bonus for veterans of the World War to be paid out of revenue amounting to approximately $500,000,000, which would be collected by a tax on beer and light wines, will not be opposed by Andrew W. NO NEED FOR ANY TARIFF LAW.

Apparently the Republican party is going to take hold this winter and make another attempt to tinker the tariff. Their first effort, the Fordney tariff bill, which passed the House, aroused such an emphatic protest that it was quickly dropped like a hot potato. Now it remains to be seen whether it can do any better.

The Congressmen should make but few changes to the tariff at this time. Every time they jack up a rate on account of the supposed necessity of protecting some home industry, they shut off imports. And every time they shut off imports, they make it impossible for foreign countries to buy a corresponding amount of goods in this country. They can pay for the goods they buy of us, only by selling us something else, as they have no gold to pay with.

Thus for every dollar of business that they give our producers by removing the competition of foreign products, they take away another dollar from some set of American producers by killing their export trade.

Furthermore the American valuation plan, which still is a part of the proposed legislation, will make it practically impossible to import any considerable amount of goods having a similarity to any American product. It is not safe to secure American producers thus from all competition. It will be ordinary human nature to take advantage of the shelter thus given and profiteer. If Congress passes any general law revising tariff duties upward, it will wish it hadn't, when the next election returns come in.

Edward Cloud has been quite ill for several days.

Mrs. Timothy Sandford has been confined to the house for several days with rheumatism.

GUNPOWDER

Raymond Beemon and Miss Leola Tanner were married last Saturday. Lee Busby is going into his winter quarters by growing a crop of whisks.

J. H. Tanner had occasion to call Dr. Black, of Erlanger, last Friday to treat a sick horse.

Mrs. R. E. Tanner was confined to her room several days last week on account of illness.

Mrs. Alice Daughters and daughter Miss Effie, of Cincinnati, are visiting friends in this neighborhood.

The work of killing hogs is about completed and there will be no wolf hanging around any of the doors in this neck of the woods.

Hiram Long moved to his farm on Price pike, last week, and Harry Barlow will move to the farm vacated by him on the Burlington pike.

(Too Late for Last Week.)

Butchering hogs is the order of the day.

Harve Rouse and his brother Jack, left last week for their home in Ga. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Quigley united with Hopeful church last Sunday.

B. C. Surface is somewhat indisposed with a case of neuralgia in his jaw.

Moses Rouse and family, of near Limaburg, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rouse, last Sunday. Billy Busby attended the Eubank sale near Crescent Springs, last Saturday.

The Stork visited Ira Tanner's home last week, and now they are rejoicing over the arrival of a little girl.

Mrs. R. E. Tanner who was confined to her room a few days last week on account of illness, has improved sufficiently to be able to be out again.

L. T. Utz, who we reported as being in Christ's Hospital in Cincinnati, underwent a very severe surgical operation last week, and we are glad to say the operation was successful and he is doing very well at the time of this writing. He is being visited by some of his friends nearly every day, which is no doubt a great comfort to him. He contracted his trouble in the trenches in France while fighting for liberty and democracy, and it finally developed in a very serious case, hence the operation.

Miss Lillie Rouse, formerly of this neighborhood, and well known as a teacher in this county, died at a hospital in Lexington last Sunday night. She had taught school within a few days of her death, and was stricken with pneumonia and lived only a short time. She has a host of friends here who will be grieved to hear of her death. Two sisters Miss Hettie, of Florence, and Miss Iva, and one brother Harry, of Lexington who have the sympathy of this entire neighborhood.

FRANCESVILLE.

Frank Aylor and wife spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kilgour.

Miss Daisy Ritchie spent several days last week with friends in this community.

Miss Laura Katherine Evans spent Sunday with her friend Miss Katherine Beall.

J. S. Eggleston and wife and W. H. Eggleston and wife, spent Sunday at Jerry Estes.

Will Lane and family, of Cincinnati, Ohio, spent Sunday with Chris Whitaker and Jesse Barnes and wife.

John Muntz and family of Saylor Park, Ohio, visited T. B. Eggleston and family, Sunday night and Monday.

W. M. Rachal, Jr. and wife, have gone to housekeeping in the Huey Bungalow on High Street, which was recently vacated by Courtney Pope and family.

MARRIED.

Charles Akin, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Akin, of Bullittsville neighborhood, and Miss Nannie M. Beemon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Beemon, of Aurora, Indiana, were married at the Baptist parsonage in Petersburg, last Thursday, by Rev. Jeffries. "Chalk" and his bride have the best wishes of his many friends in Burlington for a long and happy voyage across the matrimonial sea.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Rouse, of Big Horse neighborhood, were business visitors to Burlington, Tuesday, and made the Recorder office a pleasant call.

IDLEWILD.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Moore are quite sick.

Mrs. Chester Grant is convalescent after a severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreylich were shopping in Cincinnati, Friday.

A Merry Christmas and prosperous New Year to you Mr. Editor and your staff.

Earl Cropper is home and much improved after a severe siege of rheumatism.

Misses Eva Mae Grant and Helen Ruth Gaines, were sick and out of school the past week.

Mrs. Lou Kendal Stephens, of Kansas, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Hubert Cropper and Mr. Cropper.

Mr. Milton Souther's badly infected hand has caused him a great deal of suffering, but is now better.

Any number of tired men in our neighborhood these days. Running from the grand jury is hard work in this hill country.

Mrs. Mary Marshall Terrell entertained her daughter Mrs. C. Scott Chambers and "Chalk", of Walton, at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Maud Norman Asbury will arrive from Paris, Dec. 22 to spend the Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Asbury.

Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Grant over the arrival of a sturdy 10 lb. son, Robert William, at their home Thursday, December fifteenth.

Dr. Nunnelle took Robt. Terrell to Cincinnati Friday to have an X-Ray examination made of Mr. Terrell's broke leg. Everything was found satisfactory and Dr. Nunnelle and his patient came home that night.

Mrs. S. B. Nunnelle, Mrs. Geo. Kreylich, Mrs. J. T. Gaines, Mrs. Matt Graves, Mrs. Milton Souther and Mrs. Ben S. Houston, spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Bernard C. Gaines and made dolls for the Covington Free Day Nursery.

LIMABURG.

There will be an old fashioned entertainment Christmas tree and Santa Claus at the little school house on the hill, Friday night, Dec. 23rd, beginning at 7 o'clock. Come. Admission free.

We wish the Recorder staff a very joyful Christmas.

W. C. Weaver, who has been confined to his home for several days, is out again.

Mrs. Carrie Afford, of Louisville, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Carrie P. Riddell and other relatives.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By English Class)

Quite an interesting chapel program was rendered by the teachers last Wednesday. All the rooms were present.

The fourth number of the Lyceum will be given at the court house on Dec. 22nd. All be sure and come.

The examinations of the first Semester will begin this week. The students are hailing them with great sorrow.

The High School enjoyed an athletic program Friday, December 16. The managers gave an account of the various games played during the season. The letter "B" was presented to each member of the first teams by Mr. Kiskey.

School will close Friday Dec. 23rd, for the Christmas holidays, and will open again January 2nd.

Miss Grow, our new English and History teacher, arrived Monday, December 5th.

The cistern which has been unfit for use for several months, has been cleaned. A new cement platform has been added, which makes it more sanitary.

The Literary Society of B. H. S. will present an interesting program next Friday afternoon, Dec. 23. The program will begin about 2 o'clock. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mr. L. A. Conner, who has been the Sheriff of the county for the past four years, will retire from office before another issue of the Recorder. Mr. Conner entered the Sheriff's office as Deputy under W. D. Cropper, whom he succeeded. Mr. Conner has performed the duties of his office in an efficient manner, and the records kept in that office are the equal of any other in Kentucky.

Mr. Conner will be succeeded by Mr. B. B. Hume who has been his deputy. Mr. Hume has had considerable experience in the office of Sheriff as he has held the office for one term and been deputy for several years, so the change in the Sheriff's office will put in a man who can take care of the business, and the public will not know that a change has been made, as one experienced in the duties of that office will be in charge. It is doubted if by Mr. L. T. Utz, who was to be Mr. Hume's chief deputy, will be able to take charge of his duties until he recovers from a very serious operation.

Mr. Hume will have as another deputy Mr. Herbert Snyder, and they can take care of all business in the office until Mr. Utz sufficiently recovers to perform the duties required.

Mr. J. S. Cason, who will be our Tax Commissioner beginning the first of the new year, will not begin with the active duties of his office until July. The duties of a Tax Commissioner are now very exacting, and it requires thought and judgment to properly make the assessment of Boone county. Mr. Cason will properly prepare himself for the duties he is to perform before he begins the next assessment.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT BURLINGTON BAPTIST CHURCH.

The young as well as the old folks will enjoy a Christmas tree and exercises that will be held in the Burlington Baptist church Saturday, December 21th, 1921. A very interesting program is being prepared by the teachers and pupils. The exercises should be attended by a crowd that will fill the church auditorium and join with the young folks in making the exercises a success.

A TOMBSTONE FOR A TROUT.

Can fish hear? Sir John Hawkins is one of several notable authorities on fishing who believe so. In his edition of the Complete Angler he affirms his belief and adds, "A friend of mine assures me that at the abbey of St. Bernard, near Antwerp, he saw carp come at the whistling of the feeder." Another, a Canadian, declares that "there is a lake very deep, in which many sacred fishes are kept; some of the largest have names and come when they are called."

In Bethune's edition of the Angler he says he has heard of a trout that was kept in a spring pond, and that answered to the name of Toin. Bethune also tells us of an eel that was kept in a spring in a garden, and asserts that when the children at the house would go to the spring and call it by its name, Rob Roy, it would come and eat from a spoon that they held. Thaddeus Norris, the celebrated American fly-fisherman, tells in his American Angler's Book of a trout hatchery where the larger trout came to be fed at the ringing of a bell.

Fish have seldom shown enough intelligence to win regard as pets. It has been said, however, that trout in particular, will learn to know those who take care of them in captivity. A breeder on the Pacific Coast even trained several of his larger trout to perform tricks for visitors. Some of the fishes would leap from the water and take bits of meat from his fingers, and at the word of command one of them would leap through a hoop he held above the surface of the water.

So far as printed records show, in only one instance has a fish had a monument erected to its memory. A traveler through rural England says that near a cottage in the village of Blockley, Worcestershire, he found a small stone monument that a Mrs. Keyte had erected on the grave of a trout. She had tamed the trout, and for many years it had fed from her hands. The inscription on the stone reads:

In memory of the old fish Under the soil The old fish do lie 20 years he lived And then did die He was so tame You understand He would come and Eat out of our hand Died April 20th 1855 Aged 20 Years

On the stone below the inscription is a chiseled outline of the big trout.

TRANSPORTATION TAXES AND BUSINESS.

The provisions of the revenue law repealing the taxes on transportation go into effect January 1. The 8 per cent tax on passenger fares is now done away with. This should be a big encouragement to manufacturing industries to send out their salesmen.

Many men who have made their living by commercial traveling have been blue the past year. One of them said last summer, and he was a man who had always been successful in that calling, that he did not know but he would have to quit. He could not sell enough at that time to pay traveling expenses.

The industries that employ these travelers are now going to save 8 per cent on their railroad fares. Also there has been some decline in hotel charges. Furthermore, the tax of three per cent on freight rates is also repealed. This saving should encourage merchants to buy goods more freely.

There is a disposition also among traveling salesmen to get along with lower expense accounts than formerly. If hotels charge high, they eat most of their meals at restaurants. It is good judgment also for them not to spend money entertaining customers. All such expenses have to be added to the cost of goods, and come out of the consumer in the end.

Thus a number of tendencies are working to make it less expensive to sell goods on the road and to promote sales. Manufacturers that have gone slow about sending out salesmen, and which have failed to cover their routes the way they used to, ought to get busy. If they go for trade in the way they used to, they can get it. The traveling salesmen in the advance adage, his information of trade movements, is the influence that persuades many doubting merchants to go ahead and help promote active business. If a big army of salesmen can go out this winter, they will do a lot to promote a hustling trade for the rest of the season and for the spring run.

A GROUP OF SWEET BREADS.

This is the time of year when cakes of various kinds may be made and kept for weeks, improving with age. A store of good things is as much a source of comfort as a bank account for a rainy day. The following recipes are some old and some new, but are all worth keeping in reserve. For an ordinary loaf two cupsful of sponge and any variety of fruit, spice and flavoring to suit the taste, may be added.

Caraway Loaf.—Take one-half cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of shortening, one cupful of raisins, one tablespoonful of caraway seeds, one egg and two cupsful of sponge. Mix the sponge with the ingredients, adding as little flour as can be handled to knead; make into a loaf, and when double its bulk bake in a moderate oven. The flour may be stirred in without kneading, and if well mixed so that the yeast plant is distributed in all parts of the dough, the bread will be even grained, light and tender.

When a rolled dough is desired more flour will be needed. The fruit and spices may be added to the loaf as it is ready for the oven, or spread over the top, rolled and baked either in a ring when very light, or cut in small slices.

Fig Loaf.—Is prepared as above, using one-half cupful of figs finely chopped, one-half cupful of walnut meats and one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. The figs take the place of the raisins.

Seed Loaf.—For this the same foundation with one-half cupful of raisins, two tablespoonfuls of poppy seeds and two tablespoonfuls of thinly sliced citron. If the poppy seeds are not agreeable, try cardamom seeds.

Ginger Fruit Loaf.—Take one cupful of mixed, dried, chopped fruit, one-fourth of a cupful of candied ginger, one egg and two cupsful of sponge.

Marmalade Loaf.—Use one-half cupful of raisins and orange marmalade with the other ingredients as above.

Coconut Date Loaf.—Take one cupful of chopped dates, one-half cupful of coconut, and a teaspoonful of almond extract.

POOL TO SECURE ALL LEAF FLOORS.

All warehouses in the burley belt valued at more than $5,000,000 will be transferred to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, plans announced at the adjournment of the first meeting of the board of directors at Lexington indicated.

Four meetings of warehousemen from different sections of Kentucky, and from Indiana and Ohio, will be called tomorrow by Ralph M. Barker, director of warehousemen.

The first was held at Carrollton, December 20, at which warehousemen from the northwestern section of the burley district and from Indiana will gather to hear the plan which has been tentatively drawn up by the association.

its second meeting Dec. 23, to approve the terms negotiated by Mr. Barker for the transfer of the warehouses to the Association.

Under the tentative plan adopted yesterday, Kentucky will be divided into four warehouse districts, in each of which a subsidiary corporation to handle and store tobacco belonging to the association.

Each subsidiary will be under cross contract with the association to handle the tobacco of the association at cost, and in return, the association agrees to pay all costs of operation, including purchasing payments.

Directors of each subsidiary will be independent of the association, in order to comply with rulings by banks and government credit agencies.
